Son Gets Mayorality.
 Belgrade, Oct. 10.—When the mayor of Mokrilug became ill no suitable grown man could be found to take his place, as all had gone to war. It was decided to let his 15-year-old son have a try at the job. The lad performed the duty so successfully that now his father has recovered the citizens refuse to restore the old man to the post. They declare that the boy not only more thoroughly appreciates the responsibilities of the office, but has greater authority over the community.

HORSE WADE THROUGH MUD

UNION AND LA GRANDE CROWDS SEE RACES.

Fair to Run Over Until Next Week—Open Daily In Meantime.

Yesterday afternoon the fair gates swung wide and the crowd from Union lead the way to the grounds, followed by many La Granders who wanted to go rain or shine and help keep up the sunshine spirit. The Union bunch was "sure alive to things" and kept bells ringing and its laughter echoed over the hall mingled with the strains of band music. The carnival band was on the scene and lent every effort toward a good time by playing some of the most lively of popular ragtime pieces and also some excellent selections from the master composers. After a goodly number had arrived and the hall had been fully inspected the crowd adjourned to the grandstand, where a few races were put on to the pleasure of those attending. To sit close to the track and watch the drivers eat mud, was one of the funnest happenings of the day. The horses showed their true colors as "mud horses" when they waded around the track for pretty good time through a sea of soft mud. None of the horses were hurt nor did any falls mar the races or endanger the drivers and riders.

Lively band music filled in the pauses between races and the peanut vender was busy with his wares and no one had any cause to complain. Announcement was made that the fair would continue beginning next Monday—into "fair" weather. Other announcements of attractions to be put on in front of the grand stand consisted of tight wire walking, a soloist who sings "to beat the band", the thrilling bicycle ride down the long incline and the leap over the fiery chasm and other numbers which will be put on by members of the Rice & Dore Carnival company, were made. All went home happy in spite of the rain and announced they would be on hand for tomorrow and some more rainy fun. The following is the list of events and winners in the races which were staged.

Wallowa Horses Here.

Among the horsemen of the northwest that have been tied up in La Grande by the rain this week and have had but little chance to show what they had, are several Wallowa county horses. In this regard, the Record-Chief of Enterprise remarks: Wallowa county has sent some thoroughbreds to help make the Union county fair a success this week. They will ensure some good numbers on the program at La Grande, and they will certainly win their share of the events in which they enter.

Two strings of relay horses have been sent out, one of Clifford Wade and Harry Mays, and the other by J. M. Blakely. Wade will ride his own string, giving the La Grande people a chance to see some real relay work, with the rider changing horses in lightning time. Kelly will ride Mr. Blakely's horses, and if he handles them as well as he did during the last day of the race here, the contest will be everybody's race until the very finish. Kelly had started away, but Mr. Blakely reached him at La Grande and engaged him for the Union county race. Wade will have one advantage, in that the same men who have caught and held his horses here will be with him in La Grande. Two strings of pony express racers have been taken out by the same men.

Mr. Wade and Charles Tippet also sent out two teams for the Roman races. They have matched up some fast stock and will give a race that will be a wonder. J. H. Tippet and other expert horsemen of this county also will be at La Grande to take part in bucking contests, or any sport that may be put on the program.

Mrs. Clayton Sues Company.

Suit for $29,000 has been started against the Enterprise Electric company by Mrs. Ella Clayton whose husband, W. S. Clayton, was killed August 5, 1912, in a pumping plant at the west border of town. Mrs. Clayton sues in her own behalf and as guardian of her four children. She asks $10,000 on her own account; $5,000 for each of three minor children, and $4,000 for Lloyd, the oldest son.

Mr. Clayton was employed to look after the motor in the pumping station put in to raise water to the farm land of Carl Roe, on the top of the hill. He went to shut off the electricity in the early evening of August 5, and did not return to his home. A son found him dead in the plant, near the 50-horse power motor.

The complaint, filed by Boyd & Fairchild of Enterprise, associated with Bennett, Sinott & Galloway of The Dalles, alleges that the pumping plant was in a small, dark shed; that the floor was of cement and wood and was "generally wet and in condition to conduct electricity, which made the building a very dangerous place to work unless switches and devices for connecting the plant were thoroughly insulated and protected." Sufficient insulation and protection were not provided, the complaint asserts.—Enterprise Record-Chief.

Vienna, Oct. 11.—The Imperial Austrian high court has rendered a decision that a husband can not sue to recover damages for injury or death to his wife. The court held that only the wife herself could bring action for damages and, in the event of her death, her children or parents were entitled to sue but the husband never.
