What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription, can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription. Drop into our store today, just to talk over the merits of this wonderful Prescription.

Small Fire Claims Victim.
Baker, Or., Oct. 14.—Fire that destroyed a small lodging house owned by the Oregon Lumber company of this city, at the Whitney camp Sunday evening, resulted fatally. Henry Metzger, an employee of the company, being burned to death in the conflagration, his charred remains being found after the fire had burned itself out.

J. F. Mahoney, another inmate of the building, was also badly burned about the face and body and was brought to this city yesterday for treatment. The fire was discovered, according to the story of those present, by Metzger, the man who lost his life. He was sleeping in a room near that of Mahoney and being awakened by the smoke, aroused the latter. Metzger said he would make his escape out the back way and Mahoney with great difficulty finally reached the open air, almost overcome and badly burned. Metzger did not get far from his room when the thick smoke suffocated him and he fell face downward, where his body, burned to a crisp, was found.

The origin of the blaze is unknown to the company officials and probably always will be. The burned building was a small structure, used only for sleeping quarters. The blaze was discovered about 10:30 Sunday evening and in a short time was a total loss, having gained such a start that those present were powerless to put it out. Owing to the condition of the remains of the victim, it may be that they will be buried at once, although the company officials have notified Metzger's father at Rochester, Minn., of the affair. Nothing had been heard from him up to last evening. Mahoney, the man who escaped badly burned, after having his injuries attended to at the hospital here, was able to be around last evening, although his burns are very severe. He owes his life to Metzger, who awakens in time to warn Mahoney of his danger, was himself the victim of the smoke and flames.

TWISTING THE LANGUAGE.

English Has Received Some Severe Jolts in the Philippines.

Holy talk is a highly developed language compared to the jargon American housewives talk to their Filipino house boys. But it usually conveys the meaning when accompanied by expressive gestures. At best, however, the performance of the command speaks well for native instruction.

Spanish construction of English words is another twist that our poor language gets by the Philippines. "No got" in the island is the most commonly used expression for "I haven't any." Similarly "no can do" means "I can't," and "no want" means "I don't want it." Not only between American and Filipino, but among Americans themselves, this twisted construction has largely supplanted the legitimate one.

With the soldier anything that he longed peculiarly to the Philippines was described as "bamboo." Now all colonials use the term. The "bamboo fleet" is the one assigned to Philippine waters, and the "bamboo government" is the Philippine civil government in distinction from the United States military.

Among other "soldierisms" (if I may be permitted this contribution to the new language) were certain pure Malay words. The list is continually growing, and now there are dozens of Tagalog and Moro expressions in constant use among the Americans. For example, there are the Tagalog words "bagnio" meaning "bathroom," "carabao" meaning an animal "pajay," meaning "rice," and "taw," meaning "man." Moro terms in common use are "amok" meaning "wild," "dato," meaning "chief," "kris," meaning a wavy edged knife, and "sarong," meaning a garment. Review of Reviews.

BOATS GROW ON TREES.

West Indian Boys Can Get All of Them They Want.

When a West Indian boy wants a toy boat all he has to do is visit a coconut tree. These trees bear great bunches of nuts among their drooping green leaves, and when the bunch first sprouts out in the form of a big bud it is inclosed within a hard, tough, woody case or spathe two or three feet long, eight or ten inches in diameter and tapering to a point at one end and to a slender stem at the other. In fact, it looks very much like a huge wooden cigar.

As the buds and flowers develop the spathe splits open, and the flower bunch continues to grow out beyond it until the nuts begin to ripen. By this time the spathe has become dry and hard and break off and drop to the ground of their own accord.

It is the spathe or bud coverings that the West Indian boys use for toy boats, and, while the dry and fallen ones will answer, better boats are made from the more flexible and partly green spathe still clinging to the flower stem. The spathe as gathered from the tree is almost in the shape of a boat, and all that is necessary to transform it to a very seaworthy and fast sailing toy canoe is to sew the open end together and fit rudder, sail and seats or thwart.

When this is done the boat is almost an exact model of the big dugout canoes that the boys' fathers use in fishing. In fact, these dugouts were probably copied from one of the tree grown boats. From "Harper's Book For Young Naturalists."

A Perpetual Error.

A printer's error in perpetuity! How many know that when joining in the "Te Deum" they are carrying on, in one phrase of that song of praise, an ancient blunder? "Make them to be numbered with thy saints," so it runs. And so when manuscript copies gave place to printed books was it rendered in the medieval Latin then in use, "nummerari"—"to be numbered," as we say in English. Transpose the first and third letters and you get "munerari," "to be rewarded," which is what all prayer books would be printing today and congregations singing were it not for that fifteenth century printer's error.—London Tatler.

Wrong Hunch, No Lunch.

"Here, my boy," said his new employer, "take this quarter and go out and get three ham sandwiches." The boy vanished and did not return for half an hour. "See here. Where have you been loitering," demanded the boss, "and where are my sandwiches?" "Scissors!" gasped the boy. "I thought they were for me!"—New York World.

Upbringing.

"Aren't you having your daughter taught to play or sing?" "No," replied Mrs. Fleming. "I have decided that she shall have no accomplishments whatever. Instead of striving for approval I want her to have the superior pose that enables her to observe the efforts of others with tolerant interest."—Washington Star.

Storage Plants a Benefit.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 14.—Mrs. Housewife, of Cleveland, has taken at least one fall out of that old bogey, High Cost of Living and the city has helped her do it. Use of the municipal cold storage plant was the hold by which the old bogey's shoulders were pinned to the mat.

Approves Wold Tour.

New York, Oct. 14.—The national commission Sunday night put the seal of approval on the world tour of the Giants and White Sox by voting $1000 from its funds for publicity purposes in connection with the trip. The world wide advertisement for baseball will be well worth the money, the commission evidently thought.

Umpire Klem has agreed upon terms to make the tour. Manager McGraw of the Giants wishes also to have an American league umpire take the trip.

to the humblest citizen as well as the biggest commission merchant. Small quantities of eggs, butter, cheese, fruit and the like can be stored in it by individuals at a nominal price. Mrs. Housewife of Cleveland can buy a barrel of fine apples today for about $2 and put them in the city's cold storage plant until May and the storage cost will be only 40 cents. In the spring when dealers want $6 a barrel for them she and her family can set their fill at one third that price. She could store away a hundred pounds of good butter along in June at 20 cents a pound and take it out in February when everyone else is paying 40 cents a pound.

Only half of the city's west side ice plant is in operation and it will earn $4,600 this year above all expenses.

Just now there is in cold storage, much of it placed there by the individuals: Six thousand bushels of cherries; nearly forty thousand pounds of butter; forty-four thousand seven hundred pounds of cheese; three thousand seven hundred bushels of various fruits; forty-two thousand two hundred dozens of eggs.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY, & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.
