BAD FOR PRONUNCIATION.

Silent Reading and Neglect of Conversation Are Harmful.Perhaps the most potent of influences toward diverse pronunciation, especially difference in accent, is the fact that we seldom or never hear in conversation a vast number of words which nevertheless constitute an important and indispensable part of our vocabulary."By silent reading and neglect of conversation language itself," declares Richard Grant White, "is coming into disuse." The result of this practice is not only that we are always mentally registering pronunciations peculiar to ourselves, which we have no means of ascertaining to be uncommon or ridiculous, but also that the natural tendencies of our language, unrestrained by the conservative force which occasional use in conversation might exert, rapidly foster new pronunciations and produce a diversity of pronunciation even among the most careful speakers.All these influences obviously supplement each other in resisting any trend toward uniform pronunciation and facilitate the progress of the tendencies of speech peculiar to our English tongue.—Robert J. Manner in Atlantic Monthly.

A Fleet Street Story.

Henry Arthur Broome, in "The Log of a Rolling Stone," says that in 1871 he was engaged in wood engraving for Punch when one day, at the end of the week, short of money, he stood gazing longingly at the cherries on a costermonger's barrow which stood abreast of the offices of the London Telegraph.
His gaze arrested the attention of a gentleman whom he had often seen there before, though not at midday.Then a kindly deed was done. The gentleman, averting his gaze from me a moment, purchased two paper bags of this fruit. Then, placing one of them in the pocket of his capacious dust coat, he turned to me with the sweetest smile imaginable and without a word offered the other one to me, which I gratefully accepted. He then passed on and went upstairs to the offices of the newspaper. That was my first introduction to the prince of journalists, George Augustus Sala.

A Limit to His Power.

A curious historical anecdote is handed down from the time of James I.
James, being in want of £20,000, applied to the corporation for a loan.
The corporation refused. The king insisted. "But, sire, you cannot compel us," said the lord mayor. "No," exclaimed James, "but I'll ruin you and the city forever. I'll remove my courts of law, my court itself and my parliament to Winchester or to Oxford and make a desert of Westminster. and then think what will become of you!" "May it please your majesty," replied the lord mayor, "you are at liberty to remove yourself and your courts to wherever you please; but, sire, there will always be one consolation to the merchants of London—your majesty cannot take the Thames along with you."

True Kindergarten Spirit.

Master Harold had returned after his first day at a kindergarten school, says the Manchester Guardian."Well, Harold," said a friend of his mother who was calling, "how do you like school? I suppose you are the youngest there.""Oh, no," said Harold indignantly, drawing himself to his full height and throwing out his chest—"oh, no! Some of our chaps come in perambulators."

As Far as He Could Go.

"I," she said proudly, "can trace my ancestry back to armor and shirts of mail.""I started to trace my ancestry back once," he replied, "but my wife made me stop when I got to shirt sleeves and overalls."—Judge.

Good Names and Riches.

"A good name is better than great riches," quoted the sage.
"But that's not the reason why most of us are poor," replied the fool.—Cincinnati Enquirer.Begin your web, and God will supply you with thread. Italian Proverb.
