Conductors For Whom the Orchestra
Is Merely a Pedestal.

Dr. Max Nordau has an amusing article in the Paris Revue on the evolution of the orchestra conductor. Formerly the conductor was a modest man who took infinite pains with the rehearsals and effaced himself on the great day of the public concert.

Nowadays he is a hero. You only see him. The orchestra is merely a pedestal for him. In the French army of former days there was a personage who could be compared with him—the drum major. He has the same prestige without the aid of the drum major's stature, lace and stick. He must be a finished actor. He must play the part of the lion which shoots the water into the fountain.

There was Gustav Mahler, the most astounding artist in dumb show. All the muscles of his clean shaved face were contracted into the furrowed mask of a samurai when he let loose the heroic sonorities and relaxed into ecstasy during the pianissimo.

Arthur Nikisch also "reflects" tragedies and idylls, but grace suits him best. In the pastoral symphony (Beethoven) he is the rocco shepherd tending with the outstretched finger of his left hand the fair neck of a pretty shepherdess.

The President and War.

According to the constitution of the United States, article 1, section 8, clause 11, the power to declare war belongs to the congress. The president, as the chief executive, when war is declared becomes commander in chief of the army and navy, but he cannot take the initiative in bringing on the war. The president who should have the temerity to declare the country at war with another people would be instantaneously removed from his high office. The men who made the constitution upon which our government rests knew how fatal to human rights and happiness the monarchical principle had been, and therefore they saw to it that the nation's head should have nothing to do with declaring war with another nation.—New York American

His Bluff.

Mr. Montgomery was calling on a young woman to whom he wished to appear extremely well.

"Are you familiar with Dante's 'Divine Comedy,' Mr. Montgomery?" asked the young woman.

"No. I've never seen it," replied the man. "The fact is, Miss Tinder, I think this comedy business is being overdone. The sooner the stage returns to the legitimate drama the better it will be."—Lippincott's.

Jimmie's Wisdom.

Myrtle, who is studying physical geography, likes to flaunt her superior knowledge.

"Jimmie," she said to her little brother, "I bet you don't know what germination produces."

"I don't know what it produces," replied Jimmie, "but I know the German nation consumes lots of sauerkraut and wienerwurst."—Youngstown Telegram.

Her Choice.
