LARGEST KNOWN ICE CAVE.

Wonders of the Frozen Grotto in the Dachstein Mountains.

A few years ago some members of the Austrian Speleological society discovered in the Dachstein mountains some caverns which are among the largest in Europe. One of these grottoes, the longitudinal axis of which is fully 6,500 feet long, moreover turned out to offer additional interest by its truly enormous ice masses and was found to be the largest known ice cave in the world.

Though a scorching sun may be burning outside on the bare mountain rock, there is always an icy wind blowing through this underworld, freezing everything within its reach. Only sometimes, when the outside temperature ranges between 32 and 41 degrees C. and a comparatively warm rain penetrates through the fissures of the rock, entering right into the cavern, will there be a temporary calm and distinct melting of the ice.

The Dachstein ice cave comprises several domes filled with ice, which communicate with one another through a number of frozen galleries. An ice crevice 80 feet deep and 110 feet in width traverses the floor of the cavern 105 feet from the entrance. Gigantic ice pillars were found to tower on both edges of this chasm, in the depth of which there unfolds a fairy-like scenery. Beyond the abyss the cavern widens out into a mighty dome (Trichterdome, as it is called), where a plain ice sheet reaches from one wall to the other, carrying ice stalagmites of the most fantastic shapes.—Scientific American.

A Hopeless Job.

Gordon Le Sueur in his hook on South Africa tells an excellent story about Cecil Rhodes.

Rhodes was very careless in the matter of dress. On one occasion an old and favorite coat of his was sent to be cleaned and mended. Soon after it came back just as it had been sent, together with this note from the cleaners:

"Dear Sir—Herewith the Right Hon. C. J. Rhodes' coat, uncleaned and unmended. We regret that all we can do with the garment is to make a new coat to match the buttons."

Wanted the Solids.

Tommy went out to dine at a friend's house one evening. When the soup was brought Tommy did not touch his, and the hostess, looking over, said:

"Why, Tommy, dear, what's the matter? Aren't you hungry tonight?" "Yes," replied Tommy. "I'm quite hungry, but I'm not thirsty."—Judge.

Subtle Scheme.

First Jeweler—Aren't you afraid to leave those diamonds in a front window at night? Second Jeweler—Not with my scheme. Just before I go home I put in a little sign on them reading, "Anything in This Window 10 Cents."—Chicago News.

Verbal Brand.

"How do you manage to keep such a clean record with so many of your cranky relations?" "Just use soft soap."—Baltimore American.

Be Slow to Throw.

After a man has thrown a rock he, nine times out of ten, wishes he had it back in his hand.—Philadelphia Ledger.

MINER KILLED AT HIGHLAND. "September Morn" Will Show Here

A. O. Prose Buried Alive in Cave-in Saturday.

Baker, Dec. 13.—Almost instantly killed in a cave-in at the Highland mine was the fate of A. O. Prose, a miner Saturday forenoon, and a companion working with him narrowly escaped losing his life, he having gone out for a moment, when the cave-in took place. Joshua Boyd was the miner employed with Prose in putting up some timbering, and when he came back to the spot was just in time to witness the accident, Prose being carried down in a mass of loose earth and rock. Boyd summoned assistance and the body was soon extricated, although too late to save the unfortunate victim, who was probably killed in the first slide which engulfed him.

The dead man was 39 years of age and had been working at the Highland but a short time. He was married and lived at the mine. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been announced.

Horse Buyer Here.

George Hewitt of Portland, is in the city and vicinity buying horses for the city of Portland. He declares they are plentiful in the valley and among the best to be had. They are averaging $150, which is a fair average price. These horses are to be used in the service of the city and are required to be of the very best. Many of them will become mounts for police officers.

Hope Chapter No. 13, O. E. S. will hold a special meeting for work on Wednesday evening, Dec. 17. All officers and members are requested to be present. By order of Worthy Matron.
