

CORN SILAGE MUCH NEEDED

FORMER BOOSTER.

Chas. Tullis Finds Hay Will Do As Well and Is Cheaper.

Pendleton, Dec. 24.—That alfalfa silage is not a success such as he anticipated and that the feeding of alfalfa hay will bring just as good results as the silage is the belief of Charles Tullis, local dairyman, who erected a silo on his place last summer and has been feeding alfalfa silage this winter. He believes that corn silage will be good, however, and is planning to put up corn next summer if he can secure land on which to raise the corn. "We put our silage up properly is not profitable," said Mr. Tullis to—"I am convinced that alfalfa silage and I have been told that it is all right. But it seems to do little good. I don't believe it is any better than feeding hay and I am not going to put up any more alfalfa silage unless I can be guaranteed better results than I have had so far." According to Mr. Tullis he was not advised by agricultural experts to try alfalfa silage but he saw no reason why it should not be good and so gave it a trial. The only people he has found insisting on the value of alfalfa silage have been men who are in the business of selling silos. Even those men all are not advising alfalfa silage as he has had letters from one company stating that they were in doubt as to the value of using alfalfa in this way. Silage is prepared by chopping the hay, corn or whatever feed is used and packing it in strongly built silos which, when covered over, become air tight. The silage becomes cooked and is fed out during the winter months. Corn is generally used for making silage.

ing of inhaler and a bottle of Hyomei, costs $1.00 and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, are only 50 cents. Always use Hyomei for bronchitis, cold in the head, husky voice, croup of infants, and any inflammatory disease of the breathing organs.—Newlin Drug Co.

Sick Headache. Sick headache is nearly always caused by disorders of the stomach. Correct them and the periodic attacks of sick headache will disappear. Mrs. John Bishop, of Roseville, Ohio, writes: "About a year ago I was troubled with indigestion and had sick headache that lasted for two or three days at a time. I doctored and tried a number of remedies but nothing helped me until during one of those sick spells a neighbor advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. This medicine relieved me in a short time." For sale by all dealers.

CRAFT ON THE GRIDIRON.

When the Carlisle Indians Outwitted Harvard's Highbrows.

In football a full field run from kick-off to touchdown is a rare play. Once it was made by a Carlisle Indian, who covered the long distance in a game against Harvard, Oct. 31, 1903, and did so by the craftiest, wildest stratagem ever perpetrated by a redskin upon his pale faced brother.

The first half had closed with the Indians in the lead five points to none Harvard opened the battle by sending a long kick to Johnson on Carlisle's five yard line. The Indians quickly ran back to meet Johnson and formed a compact mass around him. Within the recesses of this mass of players Johnson slipped the ball beneath the back of Dillon's jersey, which had been especially made to receive and hold the ball. Then, the ball thus secretly transferred and hidden, Johnson uttered a whoop such as Cambridge had not heard since the days of King Phillip's war, and instantly the bunch of Indians scattered in all directions. Some ran to the right and some to the left, some obliquely and some straight up the center of the field, radiating in all directions like the spokes of a wheel.

The crimson players, now upon them, looked in vain for the ball, dumfounded, running from one opponent to another. Meanwhile Dillon was running straight down the field so as to give his opponents the least opportunity for a side or rear view and conspicuously swinging his arms to show that they did not hold the ball. Thus, without being detected, he passed through the entire Harvard team, excepting the captain, Carl B. Marshall, who was covering the deep backfield.

Obedient instructions, Dillon ran straight at Marshall. The latter, assuming that the Indian intended to block him, agilely sidestepped the Carlisle player, and as he did so he caught sight of the enormous and unwonted bulge on the back of Dillon. Instantly divining that here was the lost ball, Marshall turned and sprang at Dillon, but the latter was well on his way and quickly crossed the line for a touchdown.—Parke H. Davis in St. Nicholas.

Diverting His Attention.

Cook (7 a. m.)—Please, ma'am, the dog got hold of the steak that was for breakfast. Shall I go out and get another? Mistress—Is there any news in the morning paper? Cook—Yes, indeed, ma'am—big accidents an' horrid murders an' bomb explosions an' rumors of another war. Mistress—Very well. Warm over something left from supper and place the paper by my husband's plate.—Puck.

Lincoln's History of Himself.

When Abraham Lincoln was elected to congress Charles Lanman, then editor of the Congressional Record, according to the regular custom, forwarded to Mr. Lincoln as well as to all other members elect a blank to be filled out with facts and dates which might be made the basis for a biographical sketch in the directory. Mr. Lincoln's blank was returned promptly, filled up in his own handwriting with the following information:

"Born Feb. 12, 1809, in Hardin county, Ky.
"Education, defective.
"Profession, lawyer.
"Military service, captain of volunteers in the Black Hawk war.
"Offices held: Postmaster at a very small office, four times a member of the Illinois legislature and elected to the lower house of the next congress."

Charity Begins At Home

There will doubtless be a few families who will spend enough money this Christmas, on friends and near friends under the mock disguise of duty to make the first payment on a home.

Do you realize how rapidly La Grande is becoming a city of homes. Look about you, you can count a dozen or more of your friends who only a few years ago were tenants.

Don't chill the home getting germ, let it develop and start the new year right. La Grande is not booming but it has a steady substantial growth. Lots are worth double to day what they were three years ago in many sections of this city.

While we have been recognized for years as the pay roll city, our payrolls have annually increased with our growth.

An investment in a La Grande home means a profit, not a loss.

I have several choice properties that are priced right and much of it on very reasonable terms. No excuse for paying rent year after year. You could have bought several years ago. Paying for a home is a pleasure not a burden.
