"TENORS ARE QUEER."

Old Time Opera Stars as Seen by Clara Louise Kellogg.

In "The Memoirs of an American Prima Donna," by Clara Louise Kellogg, the author tells of her triumph as Violetta in "Traviata." She argued that Violetta would probably love curious and exotic combinations, so she dressed the part in a gown of rose pink and pale primrose yellow that seemed to be altogether enchanting.

"Apropos of the Violetta gowns, I sang the part during one season with a tenor whose hands were always dirty. I found the back of my pretty frocks becoming grimmer and grimmer and greasier and greasier, and, as I provided my own gowns and had to be economical, I finally came to the conclusion that I could not and would not afford such wholesale and continual ruin. So I sent my compliments to monsieur and asked him please to be extra careful and particular about washing his hands before the performance, as my dress was very light and delicate, etc.—quite a polite message considering the subject. Politeness, however, was entirely wasted on him. Back came the cheery and nonchalant reply:

"All right. Tell her to send me some soap."

"I sent it, and I supplied him with soap for the rest of the season. This was cheaper than buying new clothes.

"Tenors are queer creatures. Most of them have their eccentricities, and the soprano is lucky if these are innocuous peculiarities. I used to find it in my heart, for instance, to wish that they did not have such queer theories as to what sort of food was good for the voice. Many of them affected garlic. Stigell usually exhaled an aroma of lager beer, while the good Mazzoleni invariably ate from one to two pounds of cheese the day he was to sing. He said it strengthened his voice. Brignoli had been long enough in this country to become partly Americanized, so he never smelled of anything in particular."

Thoughtful Quail.

The tourist who was anxious for game entered a western Texas hotel, paused and looked around. Then he quietly approached the desk and addressed the proprietor.

"Any quail about this neighborhood?"

"Quail" echoed the proprietor, with an indulgent smile. "They have become so numerous around here that they are a nuisance. The cook complains that she can't throw a piece of toast out of the kitchen window but four or five fat quails fight to see which one shall get on it."—Lippincott's.

Sharpening a Pocketknife.

Cutlery have certain rules for sharpening razors, pocketknives, etc. "A razor," said one of the craft, "must be laid flat on the bone, because it is hollow ground and requires a fine edge. But a pocketknife requires a stiff edge, and the moment you lay it flat on a stone, so as to touch the polished side, you injure the edge. It must be held at an angle of twenty to twenty-five degrees and have an edge similar to a chisel."

Skill.

All accounts due Dr. J. W. Loughlin are payable to Dr. A. L. Richardson. 1-12tf. DR. J. W. LOUGHLIN.

LOUGHLINS LEAVE TONIGHT

H. T. Love to Journey Eastward With Them—Presidency Retained.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Loughlin, of this city, leave tonight for the east. They will go by way of Portland and Southern California, thence through the Grand Canon. At Chicago they will stop off for a short visit, likewise in Ohio. About February 1 they expect to reach New York. H. T. Love, a former jeweler of this city, and director in the Commercial left this morning for Portland where he will be joined by the Loughlins, with whom he will travel to the east. Mr. Love is on his way to Pennsylvania where he will visit his parent for two months. He leaves his family here during his absence. Dr. Loughlin will take a post graduate course in New York and his return is conditional upon conditions at his home.

His duties as president of the La Grande Library commission will be cared for by George T. Cochran during his absence, and if he finds he will not return to La Grande he will forward his resignation later. As a member of the commission and its president much of the time, Dr. Loughlin was very instrumental, and successful, in carrying out the policy that gave La Grande the very best that the appropriations would permit. While he will not stay to see the formal housewarming of the new Carnegie library, he has seen the work, and participated in the work and diplomacy necessary to obtain the Carnegie gift, looked after the early installation of the initial library, overseen the construction and finally having the pleasure of seeing the books and such paraphernalia as is now owned, moved into the new building. The permanent furniture will be here in a few days.

Not only will the medical profession, the library commission and the public in general miss the family during their absence, but ladies' clubs are feeling the loss of Mrs. Loughlin, who has taken a prominent part in all club and much church activity.

While giving much time to the library, the Y. M. C. A. came in for a great deal of attention. The doctor was one of the original workers for the actual campaign, and throughout his stay here had the Y. M. C. A. affairs close to heart and was prominent in all that was done before and after the campaign and during it.

Baxter Is President.

THE BOTTLE of COMFORT

Is a hot water bottle. If there is any one thing that the human body likes most, it is warmth. Cold feet for a single night, cost more discomfort than the cost of a hot water bottle that would keep the feet warm for a thousand nights. Every member of the family should have one. We have the good kinds at reasonable prices.
