SMELT FLOOD BIGGEST YET

RECORD RUN UNDER WAY IN COWLITZ RIVER.

Fresh Salmon Scarce and Crabs Come Scatteringly to Market.

Portland, Jan. 16.—(Special.)—The biggest winter run of Columbia river smelt is now on. Thousands of the shiny little fish are being received here every day and the demand for them is little short of remarkable. The price has dropped to two cents a pound, wholesale, a wonderful difference of a month or six weeks ago, when they were bringing $1 a pound.

Practically all the smelt are coming from the Cowlitz river, at the present time, the principal catches being made from Ostrander to the mouth of the river. They are extra color and are selling in the retail markets here at 5 cents a pound, like the proverbial "hot cakes."

Fresh salmon continues scarce. A few are coming in each day, but they are by no means sufficient. It will be some little time before enough will come in to meet the demand.

Razor clams are now on the market. A few crabs are coming in, but they are still very scarce.
