

QUO VADIS

THE PHOTOPLAY SENSATION OF THE WORLD
THREE ACTS 2 1/4 HOURS OF THRILLS 8 PARTS

An Advance Criticism:

J. WILLIS SAYRE, DRAMATIC CRITIC OF THE TIMES, SAID OF "QUO VADIS" IN HIS REVIEW OF ITS FIRST PRESENTATION HERE OCT. 12:

BEN HUR OUTDONE.
"Seattle yesterday endorsed the verdict of the rest of the world as to the extraordinary merit of 'Quo Vadis,' which opened at The Metropolitan yesterday afternoon before a big audience, and last night played to absolute capacity. Cines made this film in Italy, George Kleine has exploited it in America, and it has proved a celluloid 'Ben Hur.' If one-tenth of the big scenic effects of this screen production could be transferred to the dramatic stage the result would be not one but a dozen 'Ben Hurs.'

DAZZLING PAGEANTRY.
"Quo Vadis" has set the pace for cinematographic magnificence. First of all, it is a great spectacle. It is regally inspiring in the sweep of its banquet revelry, chariot racing, vistas of Roman architecture and gardens and showing the approach of the band of lions to the kneeling Christian martyrs in the arena. The burning of Rome is a pageant in itself, and the arena scene shows the many hundreds of spectators crowding the forms to lend realism to a few brief moments of the action.

POWER OF THE STORY.
"Even with so ideal a production, however, 'Quo Vadis' never could have obtained the hold on the world it has if it had not been for its gripping story that touches the religious fervor of all Christians. It is of the era that marked the rising of the kingdom of the true God on the ruins of dying paganism. There are reverent impersonations both of St. Peter and of the Master himself, appearing in a vision on the Appian Way and bidding His disciple turn back to serve His cause in the corrupt city.

ACTING IS SUPERB.
"The acting of the Italian cast is of the highest order throughout. The acting of Chilo by Mastripietri fairly compels mention. It is simply superb. He must surely be rated in his own country as one of its leading character actors. Novelli, who looks like Faversham, and who plays Vinitius, has an international reputation. But the entire cast is most adequately fitted to its work."—From The Times, Oct. 13, 1913.

Sacrificed All for Hobby.
At Ivory, a Paris suburb, has just died a remarkable old man, a septuagenarian, named Fraissard. He died in poverty, but had he chosen he could have become one of the most famous European sculptors. As it was, he finished life as he began it—more or less penniless. When a boy he was apprenticed to a marble cutter, and he at once discovered his powers in this direction. For fifty years he had continued to execute the most beautiful works of art, mostly in mosaics. M. Fraissard's masterpiece took him nearly twenty-four years to perfect. It is a black marble table. In the middle is a chessboard, on either side of which are playing cards arranged as fans. On the table are dominoes and dice, cigars and cigarettes, and several coins in gold and silver. All these are, of course, inlaid. The materials in the table, beside the black marble, are agate, onyx, porphyry, malachite and lapis lazuli, the tones of which are black, red, orange, blue and white. Ninety different kinds of marble were also used.

Eloped by Aeroplane.
An elopement by aeroplane which has yet some features of the old-time elopement is reported from Niort, France.

Two months ago a good-looking young airman was giving exhibition flights at Niort. A pretty governess fell in love with him and begged him to take her up in his aeroplane. A few days later the airman eloped with her in the machine, and did not descend until he reached Issy, 250 miles away. The girl's father has now lodged a complaint against the airman, whom he accuses of having abducted his daughter and detained her against her will. The governess, when she appeared before the police commissary, said that she had eloped with the airman of her own free will and declared that she would be eternally grateful to him for flying away with her. She added that, as she was of age, she was free to do as she pleased. The father's complaint was dismissed.
