"Ten Commandments" for Teachers.

Boulder, Colo. Feb. 20.—"Ten Commandments" for teachers have been laid down by Prof. Frank E. Thompson, of the chair of education of the University of Colorado, to students who are preparing to take up teaching as a profession. In an address explaining his commandments, he classified some teachers as "a mob of Molle maidens mediating matrimony." He further declared that no teacher should apply for any position unless it has been declared vacant. Here are his commandments:

1. Poor teachers should not receive positions as long as there are better teachers.
2. The more expert teachers should be given the more difficult positions.
3. The individual genius of the teacher should fit the particular requirements for the position.
4. Teachers should be put where they can do the most good.
5. Change of position is subject to three requirements: (a) The good of the school the teacher is leaving, (b) The good of the school to which she is going, (c) The good of the teacher herself.
6. Personal and political pull must be eliminated.
7. Teachers of equivalent ability should be kept in close competition.
8. The method should be such as brings an upward impetus in salaries.
9. A teacher should never have her own testimonials.
10. Superintendents should not get rid of "undersirables" by writing them good testimonials.

Why It Pays To Buy Our Preparations

All remedies and toilet preparations put up in our own laboratory and sold under our label are made to meet a special demand. We handle all worthy preparations as soon as they are on the market, but often a customer wants

Best Quality At Low Prices

In such cases we often recommend our own preparations—for we are sure of the quality and can always make the price as reasonable as others. We also guarantee our own goods, and in any case where they do not give entire satisfaction, we cheerfully refund the money.
