A PERILOUS CROSSING.

They Got Safely Over and Then Came a Curious Climax.

Mrs. Exe stood on a crowded corner when the traffic was at its height, staring at the tangle, tangled come and go of motorcars and drays and cabs, and not daring to venture in among the dangers of that moving mass.

"May I cross the street with you, madam?"

She turned and saw an elderly stranger with lifted hat and gallant smile.

"Oh, thank you," said Mrs. Exe. And the stranger grasped her arm with a firm grip, and together they plunged boldly into the wild crush of vehicles.

In and out, right and left, up and down, they zigzagged, at imminent peril of life and limb. Pedestrians on the sidewalk stopped and looked at them. Drivers and chauffeurs shouted and swore at them. It was plain to all that they were in unusual danger.

The escort of Mrs. Exe, still wearing his gallant smile, still grasping her arm firmly, seemed to make no effort to avoid the oncoming vehicles. He darted erratically and yet calmly this way and that.

At last by a miracle the other side was reached. Mrs. Exe then jerked her arm away from her escort's grasp and, with a look of scorn, she said:

"It's no thanks to you that we were not both killed. Why, the way you positively courted danger one would think you were blind!"

"Madam, I am blind," he replied. "That's why I asked if I could cross with you."—New York Tribune.

TALE OF A LOST MINE.

It is Somewhat Cloudy as to Its Source and Its Veracity.

This touching tale, for the veracity of which we do not vouch, comes from a source that we do not know, says the Engineering and Mining Journal:

"About 1880 a Spaniard in Peru named Jose Salcedo fell in love with an Indian girl. He proceeded to do a thing almost unheard of in those times—he married her. Out of gratitude her mother revealed to him a vein of silver of unexampled richness. He worked it and drew from it considerable wealth—too much for his happiness, for his opulence excited the enmity of the viceroys. Count Lemos, who had him charged with high treason, the penalty of which was death and the confiscation of all worldly goods.

"It was in vain that Salcedo demanded permission to appeal to Madrid and offered to pay two incents of silver daily during the fifteen months that must elapse before a reply was returned. The count refused and hanged him in 1630. But the butcher got smart, good out of it. The Indians, intent on avenging their friend, destroyed the works of the mine, filled it with water and concealed the entrance so cleverly that it could never be discovered. Neither promises nor threats could extract their secret, which remains so to this very day.

This story is more romantic than those of the Gunsight, Poglex and several other "lost mines" of the American desert.

Getting Even With the Parson.

Parson Wheeler was invited out one afternoon for a motorcar ride with one of his friends. The minister, who enjoyed all outdoor sports, was very enthusiastic over motoring, so he was allowed to drive the car. While speeding along he was stopped by a constable and ordered to the station house.

"Well," said the captain, after listening to their story, "you say you were going at only fifteen miles an hour, but the constable declares you were traveling at forty. Now, I don't like to doubt the word of either of you. Can you think why he insists you were traveling at that rate of speed? Is there any grudge he owes you?"

"No," said the clergyman thoughtfully. "No, I can't think of anything—unless it is that I married him four years ago."—Lippincott's.

Alternatives.

A stalwart young German applied for a position on a farm. As he walked into the barn he addressed the farmer. "Hey, mister, will you job me?"

"Will I what?"

"Will you job me? Make me work yet."

"Oh, I see; you want a job," said the farmer. "Well, how much do you want a month?"

"I tell you. If you eat me on der farm I come for five dollars, but for twenty-five dollars I eat myself at Schmidt's."—National Food Magazine.

The Same Medicine.

"Doctor, do you remember three years ago that you predicted positively that I would be a dead man in six weeks?"

"Why, yes, I"—

"Well, I've got a friend in the next room who is despondent about himself. Just tell him there is no hope for him, will you?"
