

Specify - Electric - Lights -For Your New Home-

If you are building this year specify electric lights. It is safe to say that 90 per cent of the houses built in La Grande this year will install them. No home is modern without them. They are as important as sanitary plumbing.

Good lights are equally important, however, if you happen to live in a rented house. Your landlord owes it to you, and you owe it to yourself to have nothing but the best light. Electric lights are easily installed and will prove a source of lasting satisfaction to you. Call or phone Main 84.

STOCKMEN IN BIGGER FIELD

STATE ASSOCIATION TO BE MADE TRI-STATE.

Prineville Selected as Meeting Place—Pollman Re-elected.

Pendleton, March 18.—Prineville will be the scene of the 1915 convention of the Cattle and Horse Raisers' association of Oregon and the annual meeting of the stockmen will take place on the second Tuesday of February instead of the third Tuesday in March. This decision was reached here at the afternoon session of the association yesterday.

William Pollman of Baker, was re-elected president of the association and S. O. Correll was retained as secretary, their administration having been satisfactory to all of the members. J. F. Thompson of Gibbon, was named as first vice-president and J. F. Blanchard of Prineville, who was largely instrumental in landing the next convention for his city, was honored by being selected as second vice-president.

One of the most important actions taken by the convention here was the decision to enlarge the scope of its activities and to reach out for more territory. Organized originally for the protection of members from the deprivations of cattle and horse thieves, in which purpose it has been highly successful, attention will now be given toward aiding members in marketing their stuff. To this end the secretary will send out blank forms early in the winter to all members who will report thereon the number of cattle being fed in his neighborhood, the condition of the feed and other data. From these reports will be compiled a general report of stock and feed conditions which, it is expected, will be of great benefit to the members in marketing their stuff. Mr. Blanchard, who introduced the resolution securing this action, pointed out that at this time the stockman has no means of securing any definite knowledge of conditions. This lack of knowledge, he said, led to the shipping to Portland on one day this year 156 carloads of cattle, glutting the market to the consequent loss of the growers.

It was proposed yesterday to make the organization a northwest affair instead of only an Oregon affair.

About twenty new members to the association were added to the rolls yesterday, bringing the total membership over 200.

AREA OF THE LUNGS.

Nature Has Given Us a Very Liberal Margin of Safety.

Physiologists have long observed that many of the organs necessary to life have much larger capacity than is really necessary. It is generally agreed, for instance, that under ordinary conditions one kidney would serve every purpose, although we are supplied with two. As the same is true of other glands, the conclusion is irresistible that nature, in providing for the various functions upon which our existence depends, has left a very liberal margin of safety. This is especially true of the lungs.

In cases of pneumonia the functions of one lung have been entirely suspended for a time, but life has persisted, as it has in those instances where tuberculosis has very materially curtailed breathing capacity. Such cases have led to experiments in artificially lessening lung areas for a time in order to discover, if possible, what the margin of safety really is.

By introducing inert nitrogen gas into the chest of the subject an artificial pneumothorax is formed which may be varied at will, causing corresponding variations in lung capacity. By this means Courmont finds that persons who submit themselves to his investigations get along very well with a quarter of the usual lung capacity. Similar experiments in a Paris hospital show that patients deprived of five-sixths of their breathing capacity suffer very little inconvenience and exhibit no symptoms of the lack of a proper amount of oxygen.

The conclusion is that if one can live with one-sixth of his lung power he ought to do very well indeed with a single lung.—Boston Herald.

Lights of Mars.

It is claimed that curious lights have been seen on Mars and have been believed to be signal lights sent by the inhabitants of that distant world. This phenomenon can be easily explained as follows: The prevailing color of Mars is opal. When seen by daylight there is a mingling of this color with a pearl white, a rose saffron, and a robin's egg blue. When the sun's rays stream along its surface at certain angles flashes of curious light are produced that resemble somewhat the color rays of flashlight. These have, doubtless, been mistaken by the curious for flashlight signals. They are nothing new.—Christian Herald.

Her Greatest Trial.

A lady, whose husband was the champion snorer of the community in which they resided, confided to a female friend the following painful intelligence:

"My life has not been one of unalloyed delight. I have had the measles, chickenpox, typhoid fever, rheumatism and influenza, but I never knew what real misfortune was until I married a burglar alarm."—Pearson's Weekly.
