

FIRST APPEARANCE OF BIG FILM PLEASURES MATINEE HOUSE

Signora Gonzales, "Cleopatra," in film that is in La Grande today.

This afternoon as the Arcade Theater, "Antony and Cleopatra" was produced. It is a great picture. Wonderful in fact. One of the greatest known to the film world.

Seeing this marvelous production, one cannot get away from the fact that "the movies" have made greater advances in art and entertainment than have the legitimate, and that unless the human stage exerts itself, the silent drama will supercede it in the affections and in the patronage of not only a part, but all the people.

"Antony and Cleopatra" is the high water point of the photo play, and is something to be marked with a white stone in the progress of motion picture making.

The story presented this afternoon has all the opulence of custom and splendor of architecture which made the period of the Caesars notable. It is enacted in the place the stirring events occurred; in those piping times just before the birth of Christ.

Rome, in its ancient glory, is pictured, as is Alexandria. Both of which are shown as they were when Egypt's queen revelled in luxury and lust.

The play opens with Antony, after his famous victories, demanding the tribute of Egypt, and then gradually falling victim to the allurements of the royal siren. After that we follow him and his associate through vivid scenes to their tragic end.

The story takes full two hours to present.

HIRE CROOKSTON TEACHER

WELL KNOWN MUSIC TEACHER TO COME HERE.

Good Recommendations Given by People Who Know the Teacher.

Lucile Ramsdell, of Crookston Minn., has been engaged to handle the department of music in the La Grande schools, a position left open by the resignation of Miss Lenore Buchanan, who gives "A Pansy Bed" in the form of cantata here Friday night before her departure for Boise to take up similar work there.

The new instructor comes highly recommended by people who know her. Miss Buchanan is well acquainted with her work, and from Ada Fleming of the National school of music at Chicago, comes the word that the new instructor is fully competent to take up the work where it was left at the close of the present school year. The board deems itself fortunate to obtain her services for the coming year.

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a La Grande Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of La Grande readers.

Mrs. Laura McClure, 1313 Madison Ave., La Grande, Ore., says: "Exertion and colds often brought on an attack of backache. When I had these spells my kidneys didn't do their work well, and I was annoyed by dizzy and blinding spells. I was restless and couldn't sleep well. When I got up in the morning, I felt all tired out. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me great benefit. I can confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills, and add that the benefit they gave me has been permanent. I have never had a sign of kidney trouble since."

CORRESPONDENTE EN-DURE HARDSHIPS.

must surrender in 10 minutes or we will attack!" said the envoy.

When Russell, over the field wireless, flashed the news of the incident across the bleak sandhills, to Gen. Funston's headquarters in Vera Cruz, there really was something doing. But it was among the correspondents and not among the officers and soldiers. In the first place none of the 250 of us had army passes, but only tickets which the navy had given us. We had to have army passes. We rushed up to headquarters in street cars, coaches, on foot; we besieged the building in which Funston has his headquarters. They wouldn't let us in. General Funston was busy, they said, getting reinforcements out to the water works.

"Reinforcements!" said an indignant war correspondent. "That's all right but what about us?"

"There won't be any battle for you fellows to see, if we don't get somebody out to the waterworks to fight," said a lieutenant. "We have to get reinforcements out there first, and that's what the general is busy about."

Battle Rumor Starts Rush.

Finally, it was arranged that a young lieutenant named William Bell should sign our passes, permitting us to go to the scene. But we couldn't go into the building; we must line up on the sidewalk before a door-like window which opened into the room where Lieutenant Bell sat. We were dead willing. It was our fault anyhow, because we hadn't arranged for our passes earlier. We stood in line like people at a theatre box office. As soon as a man got his pass, he started for "the front." "Starting for the front" consisting in finding something to ride on or in. One young correspondent dashed into the middle of the street, dragged a Mexican peon from a burro, bought the burro, saddle and bridle outright for 50 pesos and started off along the asphalt pavement, in entirely the wrong direction. Two very plump English war correspondents hired a coach and ordered the driver to take them to the water works; he took them to the edge of the town, got stuck in the sand and brought the pair back in the evening, after they had ridden four miles. There was one party of real war correspondents—chaps who have been in wars from Russia to Montenegro—who were caught napping, not yet having secured horses. They rode on a street car to the edge of town and then started to walk the rest of the way in the broiling sun. They had plenty of ginger and energy and enthusiasm and bravery—three of the seven carried huge revolvers—and everything was all right about their expedition, except that they went in exactly the wrong direction. They started out at noon, saw some federals through a field glass at 3 o'clock, at the same hour turned back for Vera Cruz and reached the city again eager to buy cold-cream for sunburns.

Photographers Baffled Too.

Seven photographers seized a hand-car and pumped themselves fifteen miles along the narrow gauge railroad, five miles into the Mexican lines. As soon as they saw Mexican federals they pumped themselves back again and reached the American lines exhausted. Nobody could find the waterworks, in time to see the rumpus. True, very late in the afternoon one war correspondent on a mule, who had lost his way, wound up, by accident at the water works and got the story of what had happened, first hand, from some of the soldiers who had been witnesses of the affair. He got back to town about 9 in the evening and dashed madly to the cable office, only to learn that every correspondent in town had heard the story and put it on the cable many hours before. It had all been a matter of field wireless. General Funston, and his staff officers, had been in constant communication with the forces near the waterworks and a few correspondents who had been forced to stay, broken hearted with disappointment at headquarters, were handed the story on a silver tray, as it were, hours before the war correspondents who had "gone to the front" could get back and find out that there hadn't been a battle and that the Mexicans had withdrawn.
