DISAPPOINTMENT.
All day I worked and waited,
Next morn the sun rose not,
I felt as one ill fated,
Alone and God forgot.
The air no tidings freighted,
Full weary was my lot.

Far in the sullen spaces
Has sped my heart's desire,
And hemmed with strange dead faces
Wilts in its own glad fire.
places
To build my soul a pyre.
—Robert Alden Sanborn in Trent.

CHARACTER.
Be firm or mild as the occasion may require.—Cato.

Every one has his faults, but we do not see the wailer on our own backs.—Cicero.

I add this also—that natural ability without education has oftener raised man to glory and virtue than education without natural ability.—Cicero.

Whom does false honor and and empty duty deter out the vicious and the bar?—Horace.

The injury done to character is greater than can be estimated.—Livy.

We measure great men by their character, not by their success.—Nepos.

IT'S AN OVERTAKE SOOTH.
It's an overtake sooth for age
an' youth,
And it brooks w'f' use dental,
That the dearest friends are the sullest friends
And the young are just on trial.

There's a rival bauld w'f' young an' auld,
And it's him that has bereft
me,
For the surest friends are the
sullest friends
And the maist o' mine hae left me.

There are kind hearts still, for friends to fill
And fools to take and break them,
But the nearest friends are the
sullest friends
And the grave's the place to seek them.
—Robert Louis Stevenson.
