Damage of Potatoes Confirmed.

Portland, Jan. 6.—All doubt that a very large per cent of the potato crop of the Pacific northwest was nipped by the recent cold weather has been dispelled by latest advices from various sections.

Coming as it did over month before the normal time for cold weather, the freeze caught many of the farmers of the three states unprepared. Many of them had not yet dug their potatoes while others had placed them in shallow pits.

W. W. Broddus, the well-known potato buyer, who makes the northwest territory for Weyl-Zuckerman company of California, with headquarters at Portland, has just returned from his second trip of the season to the Yakima section.

The visit there caused Mr. Broddus to completely reverse his opinions, expressed about six weeks or so ago that the crops of the northwest were so heavy that the price would likely remain low.

"I made a close examination of the potato situation in the Yakima section on my second visit to that section and what I found caused me to change my former opinions. Fully half of the potatoes of that district have been caught by the cold weather. Most of the potatoes, I found, were in shallow pits and the freeze was so deep that it extended below them.

"I dug into some of these pits and found that my conclusions were true, and the same view was entertained by the leading potato interests of Puget Sound."

These facts have already caused buyers of potatoes in the Yakima section by California interests and a quick advance in the price has already resulted there. Locally, the market is firm but quiet, with few growers at present offering.

Wants White Wheats.

Pullman, Wash., Jan. 6.—More general inclination on the part of farmers of Washington and Oregon to raise white wheat would place them in a position to demand a premium on surplus output in Liverpool markets, and would assist materially in effecting standardization of wheat, was the opinion expressed by State Grain Inspector R. D. Jarboe before the wheat convention tonight. He said the Pacific coast is one of the few regions adapted to raising white wheat, and that activity in that respect would place Washington and Oregon farmers in competition with only 10 per cent of the market, 90 per cent of the world's output being red wheat.

Two hundred farmers listened to the discussion during the first session of the convention, which is held under the auspices of the Washington State Grain Growers, Shippers and Millers association. Samuel Glasgow of Spokane, president of the association, detained by stress of his new duties as city commissioner, will be unable to attend.

a social that has elicited an unusual interest on the part of the men of the congregation, as well as of others. This social has been announced under the caption of a "Pie Social," and the vision that name has called up in the imagination of the men is a caution. The most gratifying feature of the event is that there will be no limit to the number of nice juicy apple, lemon, pumpkin, mince, peach, pear raspberry, loganberry, and infinitum pies that the men may come into the possession of with a small amount of diligence on their part. There will be prizes as well. These will be as follows: the B. A. P., L. A. P. and N. A. P. They will be given in accordance with the rules governing enterprise and diligence in general and certain other qualities in particular. This social is somewhat related to the box socials of former times and all ladies are expected to bring a nice juicy pie of some kind. All are invited. It will be held at 806 Main street on Friday, tomorrow night.
