How Mr. Davis Got Rid of a 'Bad Cough.

"Some time ago I had a very bad cough," writes Lewis T. Davis, Blackwater, Del. "My brother McCabe Davis gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. After taking this I bought half a dozen bottles of it but only used one of them as the cough left me and I have not been troubled since." Obtainable everywhere.—Adv.

Between Two Baths. A Missouri official returned in very moderate circumstances to his home town after a long career in office. His fellow townsmen thought to buy a house and present it to him.

The Missouri statesman was noted for his ability to keep on the fence. He never took a positive stand on anything, but leaned one way and then another and compromised by remaining on the tight wire.

The committee went to look at a house. It was a good house, with plenty of rooms and two bathrooms. All were pleased except one man, who said nothing.

"How about it, Bill?" the other committee men asked. "Do you think this house is all right?" "Nope," replied Bill. "It's insanitary."

"Insanitary? Why, man, you're crazy! It has good plumbing and two bathrooms."

"That's jest it," said Bill. "Them two bathrooms is what I don't like. He'd never get to take a bath with two bathrooms in the house, because he couldn't decide to use one without bein' afraid he'd hurt the feelin's of the other."—Saturday Evening Post.

His Glaring Escape. In some private theatrics in a New York mansion recently a fugitive from justice was supposed to escape from his pursuers by concealing himself under a table. The table was small, and the terrified fugitive was somewhat lengthy.

The commander of the pursuing party rushed on the stage and fell over the legs of the man he was searching for. Picking himself up and ludicrously rubbing his shins, he convulsed the audience by exclaiming in true dramatic style:

"Ha, ha! The dastardly villain has eluded us again!"

Making the Dumb Speak. A man had lost all power of speech for over a year, writes Sydney Holland in the London Express. His wife brought him to the London hospital to see one of our physicians, who quickly realized that there was nothing whatever the matter with him and that he was merely suffering from the reverse of faith healing—that is, "imaginary disease suffering."

In the patient's hearing he told a
