O. A. C. WILL BE MOVED TO THE GRANDE RONDE NEXT WEEK

Commencing next Monday, Oregon Agricultural college will be moved to the Grande Ronde valley for a period of several days, continuing until the 13 inclusive. Farmers look upon this short course as the greatest event of its kind in the history of the valley and that a crowd of interested and information-seeking ranchers and stockmen will follow the progress of the school, is deemed a certainty. On a small scale this scheme has been tried out before, but not on the scope that is arranged for this time. The agricultural college will have many of its foremost instructors in the troupe, and the farmer will be able to learn something of practically every phase of farming that he may be especially interested in.
