PERSONALS.

Roger Farley, of Union, is transacting business in the city today.

D. Sommer and wife of Elgin are registered at the Sommer.

C. A. Miller left last night for Shoshone, Washington.

L. S. Clark is in the city on business from Union stopping at the Savoy.

Mrs. Jess Parker came over from Hot Lake this morning to visit with Mrs. Emma Parker.

Mrs. R. A. Cook and daughter went to Kamela this morning where they will make their home.

J. J. Carr leaves tonight for San Francisco to spend about three months.

Mrs. W. D. Stoop and Miss Lottie Lewis went to Elgin this morning for a visit with relatives.

Mrs. Wm. Anders and little son went to Island City this morning to spend the day with her mother, Mrs. T. D. Elam.

Fred Gaskill, who accompanied a shipment of horses from this city to Denver, some ten days ago, returned home this morning.

Mrs. O. A. Lindsey left this morning for Portland and Eugene, where she will spend a week or ten days visiting with friends.

Mrs. E. J. Lane of South La Grande has been sick for some time but is improving and is able to receive company. Mrs. Lane is the mother of Mrs. Oscar Hopper.

J. T. Gray returned to his home in Elgin this morning after a visit with relatives in this city. His sisters, Mrs. B. W. Gilman and Mrs. E. Shelton accompanied him for a visit with Elgin relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hainey came in from Huntington last night. Mrs. Hainey leaving this morning for Drain, Oregon, to make her home, while Mr. Hainey went to Walla Walla to attend to business matters before going to the new location.

N. J. Hansen, stockman of the Flora country was in the city this morning on his way home after a business trip to Payette, Idaho. The Flora country is destined for a boom in business activities according to Mr. Hansen's way of thinking, and the approach of the railroad out of Enterprise is going to work wonders in the development of that section of country. The stock business shows no that a great stream of hogs, cattle signs of let-up in spite of the fact and sheep are turned out of there every year.

33 MOVIES ARE CLOSED.

Police Shut All Houses Which Have Failed to Get Licenses.

Philadelphia, Pa. Thirty-three moving picture theatres, in various parts of the city, were summarily closed by the police recently because the owners failed to take out licenses for 1915.

Superintendent Robinson ordered the closing, following a conference with Fire Marshal Elliott. On January 1 the Fire Marshal, who issues the licenses, notified the proprietors of all motion picture houses they would be required to take out the annual license promptly. Owners who failed to pay the fee would be forced to close their places, he warned.

All but 33 of the "movie" men paid the license fee. The ones who failed to heed the Fire Marshal's warning were surprised when policemen appeared at the theatres and compelled them to close. Many of the proprietors, declaring that the order means financial ruin to them, pleaded for another day to take out the license. Superintendent Robinson replied that all would be treated alike, and that no favors could be shown.

Rabbit Foo at Baker.

Baker, Feb. 11.—R. T. Jackson, the government rabbit expert who is working with the ranchers of this vicinity helping them get rid of the pests, is desirous of securing co-operation among the large number of ranchers as possible to mix up a large quantity of poisoned grain at one time. According to Mr. Jackson, far better results can be obtained if he superintends the preparation of the grain, for his experience shows that those using the formula have not followed it closely, with poor results and following blame on him. He will publish the formula before he leaves, but wants it distinctly understood that the directions must be followed minutely, as deviation therefrom means that success will not follow its use. Mr. Jackson has demonstrated beyond a doubt that his method of using poisoned grain will do the business, and he has consulted with many ranchers, and made several trips to give demonstrations.

CHILDHOOD'S PRAYER.

The fire upon the hearth is low,
And there is stillness everywhere;
Like troubled spirits, here and there
The firelight shadows fluttering go.
And as the shadows round me creep,
A childish treble breaks the gloom
And softly from a farther room
Comes, "Now I lay me down to sleep."

And, somehow, with that little prayer
And that sweet treble in my ears,
My thought goes back to distant years
And lingers with a dear one there.
And as I hear the child's amen,
My mother's faith comes back to me—
Crouched at her side I seem to be,
And mother holds my hands again.

Oh, for an hour in that dear place!
Oh, for the peace of that dear time!
Oh, for that childish trust sublime!
Oh, for a glimpse of mother's face!
Yet, as the shadows round me creep
I do not seem to be alone—
Magic of that treble tone—
And "Now I lay me down to sleep."
—Eugene Field.

SPANISH PROVERBS.

After praising the wine they sell us vinegar.
The wearer best knows where the shoe pinches.
From poor cloth you cannot make a good coat.
The wise hand doeth not all the foolish tongue speaketh.
A handful of common sense is worth more than a bushel of learning.
Never sign a paper you have not read nor drink water you have not examined.
When ill luck falls asleep let nobody wake her.
Suffer that you may be wise and labor that you may have.

An Early Underground Road.

London's underground railway stations are decidedly different from what they were when first built. A writer in London Society of May, 1863, describes Farringdon street station as resembling "a family vault on a large scale, with a series of hip baths introduced diagonally into it for light and ventilation. The hip baths are lined with glazed tiles, and to keep the resemblance to their prototype we find the leakage drained off at the end into a vessel something like a soap dish. A dense fog filled the place when I was there, and, as the people waiting for the trains were seen wandering up and down the platform, one might have imagined them ghosts of the great unwashed condemned to linger in sight of those lavatories they neglected in their mortal life."

Looking Ahead.

"I have just telephoned to our neighbors to ask them if there is anything we can lend them," said Mrs. Scrimpin.
"Aren't you getting wonderfully generous?" asked her husband.
"Oh, it's just as well to be neighborly. Most of our stuff is pretty well worn, and as they moved in I saw a lot of things that will be worth having when it comes our turn to borrow."—Washington Star.

NIGHT.

Mysterious night! When our first parents knew
Thee, from report divine, I heard thy name
Did he not tremble for this lovely frame—
This glorious canopy of light and blue?
Yet 'neath a curtain of translucent dew
Bathed in the rays of the great setting flame,
Hesperus, with the host of heaven, came
And 'lo! creation widened in man's view.

Who could have thought such darkness lay concealed
Within thy beams, oh, sun! or who could find,
While thy light and leaf and insect stood revealed
That to such countless orbs thou mad'st us blind!
Why do we then shun death with anxious strife
If light can thus deceive, wherefore not life?
—Joseph Blanco White.

Example of British Humor.

The late Lord Salisbury had a pretty wit. At the beginning of the South African war both his private secretaries volunteered, and they were followed, says the London Express, by the Duke of Norfolk, who asked to be allowed to resign his post of postmaster general and go to the front. "I suppose you may," said Lord Salisbury, "but I do hope Cross won't want to go." Lord Cross was then lord privy seal and was nearly eighty!

They Learn Early.

Bessie was sitting on the hotel veranda one afternoon when another child, gaudily dressed, began to parade up and down before her, flitting her fan and swishing her skirts airily. Bessie stood it as long as she could, but finally burst out:
"Dresses an' fans does not make ladies."
"But they helps," the other dunt back over her shoulder as she sauntered away.—Delineator.

Source of His Love.

"Do you like your new mamma, Harry?"
"Yes; I like her awful much."
"That is nice. Do you like her because she is pretty?"
"No. I like her 'cause I broke her nicest vase yesterday and she blamed it on the maid."—Judge.

Cornacob Bears Robber
Dallas, Texas, Feb. 11.—While New Yorkers are buying "police whistles" with which to frighten holdups, citizens of Texarkana, Tex., are buying corn cob pipes for the same purpose. W. E. Welcome pointed a cob pipe at a holdup, who fled down an alley.

Dancers to Help Tendon Hospitals.
Philadelphia, Feb. 11.—Many prominent persons affiliated with German and Austrian relief societies will attend the ball of the German-Austrian relief association here tonight. The proceeds will be used to purchase ambulances and other needed medical supplies for German and Austrian hospitals abroad.
