A number of our people went to La Grande to hear the Negro jubilee singers and report that they were very fine entertainers. The Epworth league of La Grande can be complimented on bringing such class of musicians to the city.

The eight-horse power gas engines will soon be seen pulling the "gangs" in place of horse flesh in our neighborhood which believes in advancement. You need not be surprised if some of these days you see an aeroplane making weekly tips and trips from here to La Grande.

DOUBLE GIFT FILLS THE GAP

LELICE LYNE HAILED BY LONDONERS.

Radiant Youth Found In Singing By Prima Donna Due Here.

"Triumphs fall into little Miss Lyne's lap like ripe plums in a gale. For the works of the ancient Italians mostly demand of the heroine a flexible voice and a girlish figure" says the London "Daily Mail" after Miss Felice Lyne had sung there in 1912. Then the Mail goes on to say of the prima donna who comes to the L. D. S. tabernacle under auspices of the Chautauqua association March 19, at popular prices: "Within living memory the interpreters of those parts have hardly ever combined the two qualifications, consequently when the flowery music of the school-girl, irresponsible Rosina, is sung, as it was at the London Opera House on Saturday, by a prima donna who looks as though she had hardly yet left the school room and posesses the most deliciously flexible of voices, everyone very rightly goes simply wild with surprise and delight.

"In any case the sprightly "Barber of Seville" of Rossini bears its ninety odd years singularly lightly compared with its fellow productions, now as dead as the Pharaohs. With Miss Lyne in the cast it is radiant with youth. The part of Rosina would seem to have been written for her; the amusing fioriture, which are like the festoons trimming the edges of the clouds in a fococo ceiling painting, was sung with the perfect ease that is the gift born with a singer, not acquired."
