BIG THINGS COMING

Two Films Will Be Here Next Week of Meritorious Prominence.

Two big things are in store for the movie followers. Monday and Tuesday the Arcade presents Maclyn Arbuckle in "It's No Laughing Matter." Maclyn Arbuckle, famous for his representation of the great American types, will linger forever in our memory, and sympathetically in our hearts, after we have seen him as Hi Judd, poet, postmaster and philosopher, in "It's No Laughing Matter," by Lois Weber. Hi Judd is not only a well drawn character for an evening's pleasure and amusement—he is monumental. His is the humor that smiles with and not at one. There is a religion in his kindness and when he shakes with laughter he is the most irresistible fat man in the world. And that is what we need, more laughter to tone up our everyday drabness. But underlying the heartiness of his merry-making are the stronger and more touching moods—where Mr. Arbuckle shows us his genius as a great actor and a portrayor of tense and dramatic emotions. Then comes the time when we must raise our handkerchief up to our eyes, and choke down that resisting something in our throats—only to look again and laugh through the veil of tears, because he has swung like a pendulum, and from the depths has carried us again to the heights.

We have a small solid gold Masonic Blue Lodge Emblem button for 25c.
