Synopsis of the Story

ACT I. Scene—Ko-Ko's Garden in the Town of Titipu, Japan.

Nanki-Poo flees from the court of his father, the Mikado of Japan, in order to escape marriage with Katisha, an elderly lady of the court. He comes to Titipu in the disguise of a minstrel, to find Yum-Yum with whom he is in love. He learns, to his sorrow, that she is to be married that afternoon to her guardian, Ko-Ko, formerly a poor tailor, but now raised to the exalted rank of Lord High Executioner. Nanki-Poo, overcome with despair, decides to terminate his existence but is prevented by Ko-Ko. Ko-Ko, being forced by imperial decree to execute someone, agrees to allow Nanki-Poo to marry Yum-Yum if he will allow himself to be beheaded within a month. During the merry-making over the approaching wedding of Nanki-Poo and Yum-Yum, Katisha appears, claims Nanki-Poo and tries to reveal his identity, but is prevented by shouts of the chorus. In anger she returns to the Mikado for assistance.

ACT II.

Scene—Same as Act I.

Act II opens with preparation of Yum-Yum for her approaching marriage to Nanki-Poo. Ko-Ko appears and tells of a law of Japan by which a wife is buried alive when her husband is executed. This, of course, changes their plans, but before a decision is reached the Mikado is announced as approaching the city. Ko-Ko, fearing that the Mikado is coming to find out if the execution has taken place as he ordered, causes Pooh-Bah to prepare a certificate of the execution of Nanki-Poo, and signs it with the titles of his (Pooh-Bah's) various offices. He also sends Nanki-Poo and Yum-Yum to be married by Pooh-Bah in his role of Archbishop of Titipu. The Mikado appears with Katisha and informs them he is looking for his son, Nanki-Poo. Of course, Ko-Ko and the rest are at a loss what to do, for they have already told of the execution of Nanki-Poo, having been ignorant of his identity. To save himself from being boiled in oil, Ko-Ko finally agrees to marry Katisha who implores mercy for him and his accomplices. Nanki-Poo returns and all ends in general rejoicing.

Owing to the death of his sister, Paul Knautz who took the part of the Mikado, was forced to give up the role and Superintendent John Girdler has hurriedly committed the lines and will act in the leading part. While he has never before appeared in the Mikado his knowledge of such work assures the public that the opera will be thoroughly successful and that the part of the Mikado will be handled in an able manner.

EVERY FARMER NEEDS OWN ICE

Washington, March 24.—Exit the old spring house in the shady dell, in whose cool, dark recesses brown crocks of butter and milk were sheltered from the burning sun of reaping time. Enter prosaic refrigerator. This is what would follow if the advice of the Department of Agriculture, in a bulletin just issued, were followed.

Every farmer should be his own ice man and have his own ice house, says the department, pointing out the importance of pure ice to the country home. Not only does it add to the enjoyment of country life but enhances the profitability of farming by its influence on perishable products.

"During the winter," says the department, "farmers will find it profitable to make every possible arrangement for harvesting and storing such ice as may be available in their localities. Ice is a luxury and yet in many sections of the country it may be had for the gathering if the farmer is prepared for the harvest at the right time. The cost of harvesting and storing ice is not great compared with the comfort that it brings, an ample supply of this luxury is of greater importance in the country home than in the city residence. Even such farmers as are not near lakes or streams often gather quite a supply of ice by putting out pans or troughs filled with water and removing the ice after the water has frozen.

"No only is ice appreciated because of its use in the preservation of fresh meats, butter, and other table supplies, but production of high grade domestic dairy products is almost impossible without it. Many markets to which milk is now shipped demand that it be cooled before shipment, to a degree not attainable without the use of ice. Modern methods of possibility of placing a small flock of sheep on his farm," the department states. "The success of the Tennessee lamb industry is an indication of the possibility of the industry in other southern states."

Reports received by the Department of from 290 shipping points in 16 principal late onion producing states show that approximately 21,623 carloads of onions were shipped and 7,897 carloads were held in storage at those points. Approximately 18,239 carloads were shipped and 6,695 were stored last year.

The cabbage crop was better, too. Reports from 328 shipping points in the ten principal cabbage states showed the production to be 20,390 carloads this year compared to 18,634 in 1913.
