Criminals Released on Probation

Chicago, April 2.—Crims swept Chicago is today finding a new source of danger—criminals, who should be behind the bars, but who through misapplication of the probation law, find themselves free. This misuse of the rule which permits first offenders only to have a second chance comes about in several ways. In many instances, lawyers misrepresent the status of their clients. In the rush of business, a probation officer accepts the lawyers word that the prisoner is a first timer. The man on probation mingles back into the life of the city perhaps changes some of his haunts and his home, but continues his career of crime.

Again, the city has only twenty probation officers to deal with hundreds of cases. Half their time must be in court. During the remainder of their day, they are supposed to visit probationers, for the law says they must make this call at least once a month.

Five thousand men and women each year go practically free forever under the probation system. Recent disclosures show that in this number are many hardened "habitual" criminals. Hence the city now sees one answer to the epidemic of "stick-ups," murders, burglaries and many other crimes with which it is afflicted. And the city literally takes itself home to bed via the middle of the road, lest thugs waylay, assault and rob, perhaps murder.

Told That There Was No Cure for Him.

"After suffering for over twenty years with indigestion and having some of the best doctors here tell me there was no cure for me, I think it only right to tell you for the sake of other sufferers as well as your own satisfaction that a 25 cent bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets not only relieved me but cured me within two months although I am a man of 65 years," writes Jul. Grobien Houston, Texas. Obtainable everywhere.
