THE RICH MAN'S AID.

By subscribing $100,000 for the relief of starvation miners and their families in Colorado the Rockefeller Foundation contradicts its critics who have been complaining that the foundation is simply an annex to the Rockefeller industries.

The nation will welcome this evidence of divorce between Rockefeller business and Rockefeller relief. The trustees of the foundation evidently do not consider it their task henceforward to discourage strikers by distinguishing between a distress caused by strikers and that caused by flood, war, disease or other calamities.

It may be that this $100,000 with the promise of more to follow, will do more to secure the safety of Rockefeller property than all the mine guards which the companies hired. At least it should convince its beneficiaries that capitalists are not wholly devoid of the milk of human kindness.

WAR ODDITIES

Paris, Apr. 17.—While the French government itself has undertaken the rebuilding of the thousands of homes destroyed in the present war, the women of France have just completed an organization to insure their refurnishing. The population in the invaded districts they assert will be as helpless to refurnish the homes as they would be to rebuild them.

The "Union Fraternelle des Femmes" is the organization which has just perfected the project. Madame Amelie Hammer, the president, has just explained to the United Press that it is to be as much moral as it is social. We propose merely to help the unfortunate and not to give them only help from us, is just the degree they need. If absolutely imperative, we will furnish their homes. But the others will pay us back in installments in conformity with their possibilities.

"While it is inevitable that Paris will be the center and the brain of this work and this organization, we have already perfected the details for other centers to participate in it. In all of the provinces adjacent to the invaded districts we have arranged for at least one to be a depot for supplying the furnishings to the houses. This will give a quicker response to the needs of the villages and isolated houses and will also result in a distribution of the work that will be involved in the manufacture of the household equipment necessary.

France is already making a reasonable use of her war prisoners in labor of the nation.

For the time being at least, the sending of the prisoners to Algeria and Morocco, where thousands have been employed from the first days of the war, has been temporarily abandoned. They are now being utilized closer to home.

In Corsica about 3,000 are now being worked in the mines. In the agricultural districts of France about 450 are being worked at Puy-de-Dome; about 1,050 in Brittany while another lot is used in railroad building up and down the coast, while large contingents are being utilized in other public works in the Champagne, Creuse, Ardeche and Herault.
