WEST EXONERATED.

I made a move I was satisfied that I was within my legal rights in doing as I did, for not only was the Copperfield trouble demanding action, but similar situations existed in other portions of the state.

"I can only repeat what I have many times stated, that I acted conscientiously and as I thought for the best. I can only again express satisfaction that a Baker county jury has given their approval of my actions and vindicated me in the courts of Baker county."

TIMES BETTER.

last September. Following the first few weeks in the cotton market following the opening of the New York Cotton Exchange, the price of cotton has been well maintained and gradually advanced. Southern spot markets are from 8 3/4 to above 9 cents per pound. Throughout this time the speculative element has sustained and led the market. The fall options at New York are now above 10 cents, indicating confidence that supply and consumption will be more evenly balanced next year.

The acreage in winter wheat is about 12 1/2 per cent greater than last year and reports from the crops are very favorable. The acreage in spring wheat will also be considerably increased, the ground is full of moisture, and if weather conditions continue good the total wheat crop should exceed even the phenomenal yield of last year.

The Railways.

Confidence in the future of railway investments has been strengthened by some recent events. The decision in December on the rate case was encouraging and the action of the Commission granting the transcontinental lines permission to meet the competition of the canal was a practical measure of relief. During the past month two decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States have decidedly improved the position of the roads with respect to regulation by the several states. It has been known that appeal could be had to the Federal Courts for protection against rates that were actually confiscatory, but it has not been clear how far the courts would go in dealing with rates that while unfair did not effect a sufficient volume of business to threaten the solvency of the roads. These two cases, one from North Dakota and the other from West Virginia, affecting respectively rates on coal and passenger fares, presented this question. The roads had other traffic which paid better and enough of it to enable them to live, but they alleged that they did not yield their fair share of all the costs of operating the roads. In other words, if all other rates had been on the same basis, confiscation would have resulted.

If the roads could do this arbitrarily why not the state in the exercise of its authority? But the court held that while the state had large powers of regulation, it did not have the right to compel a railway to accept unremunerative or unfair rates. The court lays down the rule that in determining the cost of the transportation of a particular commodity, all outlays which pertain to it must be considered. The decision considerably extends the authority of the United States Courts over intrastate rates.

83 BIG BUSY STORES

J. C. PENNEY CO.

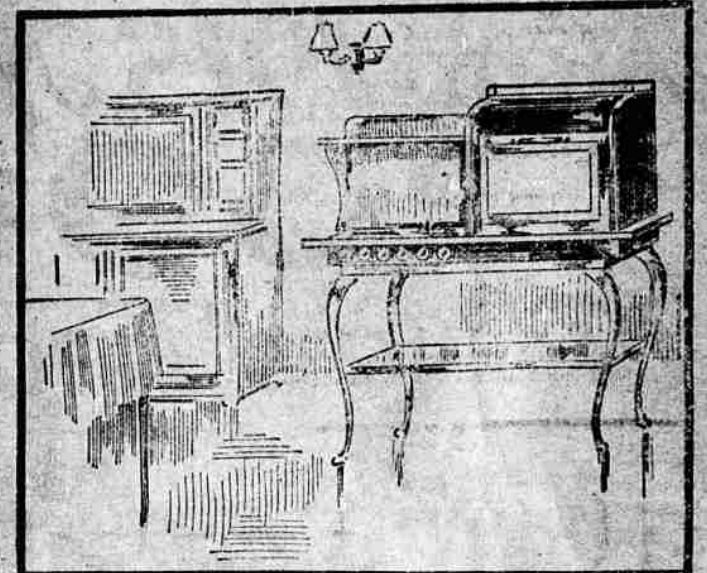

Old fashioned stoves are furnaces. And such kitchens are much like boiler-rooms.

Always there is soot—and smoke—and gas—and ashes. Always a fire to be built, constantly watched and stirred. Always a litter of the old stove utensils. And always a task to be done.

Is your wife always to spend those hours over a hot, dirty fire? If you could only know sometimes what she is thinking.

Which—Furnace or Kitchen?

Do you know that thousands of women cook their meals by the snap of a switch? Yes, in kitchens as cool and clean and tidy as any parlor. For there is no grime or dirt or reeking gas in electricity. And the Hughes Range heats the food and not the kitchen.

Women are fast finding freedom from the tiresome kitchen tasks. They deserve it. A few years from now they'll show it in appearance and health.

Hughes Electric Ranges

You can give your wife this happiness. It means new health, new freedom and an extra hour each day for rest and pleasure. You can save her all that time and work and trouble for 3 cents a day!

Step into our show room. See the new Hughes Range. See how simple in operation—how efficient in consumption of fuel. You can't afford to be without it.

One La Grande family used another make of electric range. They were pleased with it but when we installed a Hughes with its instantaneous heat another loyal supporter for the Hughes was added to the increasing list.
