WOMEN PACIFISTS MEET.

Dutch woman, and a very large percentage of the others are from Denmark, Norway, and Sweden. A party of fifteen, under the leadership of Miss Jane Adams, came direct from the United States, via Rotterdam, in order to avoid the vexatious delays of travel through England caused by the severe regulations regarding issue of passports, Home Office permits, etc.

Delegations are also present from Russia, Austria, Hungary, Serbia, and even Turkey. One American woman has come, upon her special request, to voice the plea of the women of her country who have been suffering cruelly in the war. The war-swept countries of Belgium and Poland, Italy, Greece, and the other Balkan states are likewise represented, in addition to various British colonies.

In order to prevent acrimonious debate that might lead to a disruption of the Congress and thus defeat the objects for which it was called, the various women's organizations sending delegates agreed in advance that any reference to "relative national responsibility" for the origin or conduct of the war should be considered out of order. This suggestion was made by the central committee of Dutch women who arranged the details of the Congress and drew up the tentative resolutions which will form the basis for the general discussions.

"The only possible objection to such a meeting," said one of the organizers today, "was that at this particular time, when national feeling is running so high, it might result in unseemly dissension. But we believe that by taking this precautionary measure friction will be avoided."

The suggested resolutions contain the following demands:

That the belligerent countries publicly define the terms upon which they are willing to make peace, and for this purpose immediately call a truce. (The British delegates object to the word "immediately.")

That all future international disputes should be referred to arbitration or conciliation, and that the Powers agree to bring pressure upon any country resorting to arms without having thus referred its case.

That foreign politics shall be subject to democratic control, and that women be represented equally with men in such control, by being given the parliamentary franchise in all countries.

The resolutions also urge the necessity of "so directing the education of children that their thoughts and desires may be turned towards the maintenance of peace and that they be given a normal education so as to enable them in any eventually to act on this conviction."

The British delegation has offered the following additional resolution: "The International Congress of Women urges the governments of all the Powers to take the manufacture and control of armaments entirely out of private hands, as a step towards complete and final disarmament."
