FARM CREDIT PLAN DRAFTED

GOVERNMENT OUTLINES THREE WAYS

Bulletin Explains Manner of Arranging Farm Credit System.

Three plans by which farmers in actual practice have succeeded in improving their personal credit and securing loans at less than the prevailing rate of interest are outlined in Farmers' Bulletin No. 654, "How Farmers May Improve Their Personal Credit."

The first of these plans has worked out in certain localities in North Dakota so well that the farmer has been able to borrow money on his personal note at 8 per cent at a time when the usual rate in his vicinity varied from 10 or 12 per cent. To secure this reduction in interest, the farmer agreed that the bankers should buy the dairy stock for which he wished the loan and sell it to him at actual cost. The purchase in a number of cases was conducted with the advice of state of Federal dairy specialists. The men who furnished the money were thus in a position to make certain that it was used for productive improvements which would enable the borrower to repay the loan. Under this plan, in fact, the farmer may be said to have borrowed the improved to advance $5,000 to the association at 8 per cent when the general bank rate was 10 and 12 per cent. Two delegates from the association purchased with the money two carloads of heifers which were distributed among the members, each animal being charged with proportionate share for all the incidental expenses connected with the transaction. Each purchaser pledged himself to care for and breed the cattle by methods approved by the trustees.

In the third plan the guarantee is furnished not by the farmers themselves but by an outside interest. As the plan was developed in Wisconsin and Minnesota this outside interest consisted of local business men who were in their way as much concerned as the farmers with the general improvement of agricultural conditions in their regions. Under this plan business men subscribed a certain percentage of the funds loaned with the understanding that this was to constitute a guarantee fund to protect the bankers. Otherwise the plan was in its essential principles like that adopted in Montana.

None of these methods require more than a temporary organization. A permanent co-operative credit association is, of course a different matter, which has, however, many advantages. Such associations encourage habits of saving, afford training in business methods, and may establish a collective fund for common agricultural purposes as well as providing loans to their members on more reasonable terms than they could obtain individually. The fundamental principle of their management is that no loan must be granted unless the committee in charge believes that the member and the association will both be benefited. The funds for the loans may be secured through payments on shares, through deposits, and by borrowing from outside sources. Associations doing business of this sort, however, are subject to statutory regulations, and it is of course, important that these regulations be understood and observed by the management.

A co-operative credit association must not be considered as in any way a substitute for other banking institutions, but rather as an ally of them. The deposits in such associations are frequently in such small amounts that it is unlikely that they would be placed in a regular bank. On the other hand the total of these small sums is frequently considerable, and such part of it as is not loaned to members of the association is usually placed on deposit in the local banks. In addition to the service which the association can render to its individual members both by aiding them to obtain proper loans and by discouraging them from making unwise ones, the association can also be of service to the community in a number of ways.
