HORSE RACING RESTORED

New York, April 30.—Racing after all may be coming into its own again in New, despite the not over sanguine prognostications of those who figured that a 1915 season, conducted along the lines of the various race meetings of last year, would end in a natural death for the sport of kings. An analysis of the 1914 report of the State Racing Association, while it does not give admission figures to the various tracks sheds considerable light of a growingly brilliant hue on the amount of money distributed to horsemen in stakes and purses. In ninety-four racing days, $425,000 went to the owners of the thoroughbreds. This indicates, considering that the promoters admit small profit, that about $700,000 was taken in. Very nice sums these, but the average horseman asks more. He has been won't gaze upon variegated figures such, for instance, as those handed out by the man who prints the advance stake programmes for coming meetings. In the amounts to be hung up for the various events lies his main hope. So when the announcement was made definitely that the historic Futurity, one of the richest stakes in the world, will be run in future at Belmont Park during the autumn meeting, it was even more encouraging than the report of the commission. The past three years, saw the big two year-old classic fought out on the final day at Saratoga, adding materially to the prestige and profit of the up-state race meeting. Only the sale of the sheephead Bay grounds prevented a restoration of the Futurity to a veritable semblance of the days when it was marked by the great racing duel of the Whitney-Keene interests and the memorable occasion when the wonderful Sysonby quit cold when the still more wonderful, but unfortunate, Whitney mare, Artful, looked him in the eye at the head of the stretch and then came along to win all by herself from her stablemate Tanya.
