SURVEY WILL BE HURRIED

PRELIMINARY SERVICES HELD LAST NIGHT

Speaker Comments Welcome Arch At O-W Depot

Services preliminary to a religious survey of the city were conducted last evening by several of the Protestant churches of the city when they met in union services at the Methodist church, Rev. G. L. Clark of the Presbyterian church was the principal speaker of the evening. He paid a fitting tribute to the welcome arch at the depot saying it made him feel at home when he arrived, a stranger one midnight about seven months ago, and he considered the "Welcome" sign a splendid feature, but wondered if the city intended to welcome Jesus Christ. "What the Grande Ronde Valley needs more than anything else is Jesus Christ," the speaker declared. "You already have splendid soil, agreeable climate generally—splendid resources—everything you need except more of Him who allowed the spikes to penetrate his hands and feet some 2000 years ago."

The survey begins at 8:45 tomorrow when the various churches will send enumerators out after meetings in the Y. M. C. A., Lane chapel, the M. E. Church South and the Lutheran church. It is aimed to clear the work up as nearly as possible in one day.

The chief aim is to get acquainted, and find such people as are not now attending any church, to learn their church preferences and to generally swell the attendances in all churches of the city as far as possible.

THE BLACK BOX

of mine, so I took the trouble to see that you paid for it. Well?"

"Five years of hell, that's what I had," the man continued, his eyes flashing, his face twitching with anger. "Well, you're going to have a little bit more than five years. This shed's been burnt down twice, sparks from passing engines. It's going to be burnt down for the third time."

"Sounds remarkably unpleasant," Quest admitted. "You'd better hurry or the boss will be back."

Gallagher finally slammed the door. Quest heard the heavy footsteps of the two men as they turned toward the section house. He drew a little case from his pocket.

He opened what seemed to be a little mahogany box, looked at the ball of black substance inside, closed it up, placed it against the far wall, untwisted the coil, stood back near the door and then pressed the button. The result was extraordinary. The whole of the far wall was blown out and for some distance in front the ground was furrowed up by the explosion.

Quest replaced the instrument in his pocket, sprang through the opening and ran for the tower house. Behind him on its way to New York he could see a freight train coming along. He could hear, too, Red Gallagher's roar of anger. It was less than fifty yards, yet as soon as he reached the shelter of the tower the thunder of the freight sounded in Quest's ears. He glanced around. Red Gallagher and his mate were racing almost side by side towards him. He rushed up the narrow stairs into the signal room, tearing open his coat to show his official badge.

"Stop the freight," he shouted to the operator. "Quick, I'm Sanford Quest, detective—special powers from the chief commissioner."

The man moved to the signal. Another voice thundered in his ears. He turned swiftly around. The Irishman's red head had appeared at the top of the staircase.

"Drop that signal or I'll blow you into bits," he shouted.

The operator hesitated, dazed. "Walk towards me," Gallagher shouted. "Look here, you guy, this will show you whether I'm in earnest or not!"

A bullet passed within a few inches of the operator's head. He came slowly across the room. Below they could hear the roar of the freight.

"This ain't your job," the Irishman continued savagely. "We want the cop, and we're going to have him."

Quest had stolen a yard or two nearer during this brief colloquy. Gallagher's mate from behind shouted out a warning just a second too late. With a sudden kick, Quest sent the revolver flying across the room and before the Irishman could recover he struck him full in the face. Notwithstanding his huge size and strength, Gallagher reeled. The operator who had just begun to realize what was happening flung himself bodily against the two thugs. A shot from the tangled mass of struggling limbs whistled past Quest's head as he sprang to the window which overlooked the track. The freight had already almost passed. Quest steadied himself for a supreme effort, crawled out on the little steel bridge and poised himself for a moment. The last car was just beneath. The gap between it and the previous one was slipping by. He set his teeth and jumped on the smooth top.

Back behind the tower Red Gallagher and his mate bent with horrified faces over the body of the signalman. "What the hell did you want to plug him for?" the latter muttered. "He

WALLOWA IN STORM GRIP

SEVERE WEATHER ALSO PREVAILS THERE

Eight Athletes and One Orator Coming to La Grande

Wallowa, Ore., May 1 (Special)—The warm spell which we have had all through April, was broken Thursday. A cold wind came up, and the thermometer went down rapidly, snow falling most of the day, though most of it melted as soon as it hit the ground. It is still cold with either rain or snow, falling most of the time. Wednesday was the warmest day of the month, the thermometer going up to 83 degrees, while the next day was the coldest.

The wet weather of the last few days has caused a postponement of the county track and field meet, which was to have been held here Saturday. It is not known when the meet will be held, but Friday, May 1, may be set for the meet. The Declamatory contest which was to have been held the same day as the meet has been called off, as none of the schools besides Wallowa had any representatives.

The sophomore class play "All a Mistake" which will be given at the gymnasium on Thursday, May 6th, is the last of the school plays to be given this year, with the exception of a senior class play on graduating night. The senior and junior plays were a success, and there is every reason to believe that the sophomore play will also be a success. The freshmen will not give any play this year.

The debaters are hard at work in preparation for the County debate which is to be held Thursday, May 13. Wallowa was not successful in winning either on the negative or affirmative last year, but this year are putting more effort in on the debate. Owing to two of the debaters having to quit school, some changes have been made in the team. Some of the seniors thought they would have time to debate, as the teams who will debate are as follows: Ralph Couch and Floyd Bishop on the negative and Grace Hall and Marion Womack on the affirmative.

Wallowa will probably send about eight men to the Eastern Oregon meet. Several of the men are showing up well, and Wallowa hopes to make a good showing. Frances McKenzie has been selected to represent Wallowa high in the Oratorical contest at La Grande.

SON'S LIFE SAVED

Grateful Mother Makes Public Statement

Remarkable letter concerning Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as a quick relief for coughs and colds.

"It saved our son's life," says Mrs. Edna Cramer, in speaking of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. "Of this I am sure. Of all cough remedies we ever used, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is far ahead of them all. It has been our faithful friend for several years and we rely upon it for the quick relief of all our coughs and colds. It never fails and we recommended it to all our friends. We thought he would surely die from strangulation. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound completely and absolutely cured him. We know it and will prove it to anyone interested."

Do you know the soothing, relieving benefits of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound? You ought to. There is healing in every dose. It spreads a cool coating over the rough inflamed throat—stops the racking cough—does all this in a natural way, containing no opiates and nothing harmful.

Good druggists are glad to sell Foley's Honey and Tar Compound because they know it is reliable and successful. Refuse substitutes. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

ain't in the show at all. You've done us, Red, he's cooked!"

Red Gallagher staggered to his feet. Already the horror of the murder was in his face as he glanced furtively around.

"I never meant to drop him," he muttered. "I got mad at seeing Quest get off. That man's a devil."

"What are we going to do?" the other demanded hoarsely.

"There's the auto," Gallagher shouted. "Come on, old man! I can fix the wheel. If we've got to swing for this job, we'll have something of our own back first."

They crawled to the side of the road. Gallagher's rough, hairy fingers were still trembling, but they knew their job. In a few minutes the wheel was fixed. Clumsily but successfully, the great Irishman turned the car around away from the city.

"She's a hummer," he muttered. "I'll make her go when we get the hang of it. Sit tight."

They drove clumsily off, gathering speed at every yard. Behind, in the shadow of the tower, the signalman lay dead. Quest, half way to New York, stretched flat on his stomach, was struggling for life with knees and hands and feet.
