

LUMBERMEN PICK CHIEFS

GEORGE STODDARD RETURNED TO PRESIDENCY.

Accident Commission Representatives
Outline New Phases.

Officers were elected last evening by representatives of the Eastern Oregon sawmills that belong to the Eastern Oregon Producers' association. The previous slate was re-elected. George Stoddard, of the Grande Ronde Lumber company at Perry was again made president; W. C. Geddes of the W. H. Eccles Lumber company of Baker was made vice president; Vincent Palmer of the George Palmer Lumber company of La Grande treasurer; Leon B. Stoddard of the Perry concern secretary. W. R. Marshall of the State Accident commission was present and explained to the lumbermen the new phases of the commission's requirements which become effective July 1. Aside from this and the election of officers, the business was routine.

MARION JACK APPOINTED.

Office of Fish and Game Commissioner Given to Pendleton.

Governor Withycombe has given to Marion Jack of Pendleton the office of fish and game commissioner over which there was heated wire pulling some time ago. It was generally understood that this was decided upon a few weeks ago. In fact it is reported that letters from Salem three weeks since said such would be the case.

New Mill at Klamath. Portland, May 14.—Mr. F. E. Ames Assistant District Forester, in charge of timber sales in the Portland office of the Forest Service, has just returned from a trip to the Crater National Forest. At Klamath Falls he visited the new mill of the Pelican Bay Lumber Company.

Mr. Ames reports that the mill is undoubtedly the finest in the Klamath Lake region. It is a double band mill, with a ten hour capacity of 150,000 feet. The company purchased 100,000,000 feet of timber from the Foreste Service four years ago, and has recently purchased 400,000,000 feet more. The crew in the woods has been at work for about a month.

Palmer Junction postoffice, at the mouth of Looking Glass, as its mail office, and the camps will be placed just north of there. Ed. Bean, for many years Rock Creek camp foreman, will have charge. During the summer months especially, the company will maintain its bunk and cook houses on wheels, and for the present will not need to construct steel arteries into the timber, for operations will begin at the very edge of the railroad track. As the cutting progresses, it will eventually become necessary to extend the rails back into the timber and at the same time move the camps back, but this is not a matter of immediate concern.

Horses, camp equipment and men have already been sent to Looking Glass, and just as soon as ample cars arrive, of the type needed to convey and dump logs, the cutting of this splendid belt of timber, and the hauling thereof will be started. Although the Palmer people have ceased main operations in the Palmer or that they would receive the young bride as their daughter.

Mr. Andrews made a flying trip from Florida and arrived in New York Sunday night, just one day too late to prevent the marriage.

Describes Romance.

Young Mrs. Andrews in her studio consented yesterday afternoon to tell briefly of her romance.

Fascinating to a high degree, vivacious and pretty, the little bride rested her head again at a ledge on the wall, on which a pearl handled revolver peeped out of a chamois case, and dangled her feet on a tiger skin rug, while she made it perfectly plain that she did not steal young Andrews from her "dearest chum," a Cleveland girl, to whom, up until two weeks ago, he was engaged.

"She was my dearest chum," Mrs. Andrews said. "Donald is a dear boy. They were engaged. I never had met him until last Sunday night one week ago, but I knew all about their affairs. But he came to see me with a letter of introduction from his fiancée. He fell in love with me and I with him. In fact, we are both very much in love, have been married, and now all we want is to live quietly."

Pressed for details the bride said that one week ago Mr. Andrews walked into her studio with his letter of introduction. One hour later they were in the dining room of the Plaza hotel. Mr. Andrews seemed smitten and told her his engagement had been broken. On Monday he asked her to marry him.

"I guess I must have loved him very much," the young bride said with a smile, "because I immediately began to get into communication with Cleveland to try and find out if my dearest girl friend and Donald really had parted."

Sends Son Back to Yale.

In the meantime Mrs. Andrews, Sr., got wind of the state of affairs and went to New York. When she arrived there she immediately took her son back to Yale. On Thursday he went back to New York and again asked Miss Hayne to marry him.

Attention, Eagles.

Matters of importance will be transacted tonight and a large attendance is desired. By order.
