

POWERFUL 9 COME SUNDAY

UNION'S INDIAN PITCHER TO EXHIBIT.

Pitcher Who Has Had Remarkable Success to Perform.

One of the fiercest games of the season is due to be played here next Sunday when Union's powerful team comes to combat the La Grande bunch. Union has been going like wildfire, depending not only upon the Indian pitcher to win, but having good support behind him. The Union nine is in second place in the Eastern Oregon league largely because it has a splendid aggregation of players and next Sunday it comes here.

Manager McInnis has been officiating in the capacity of a witness in a case at Enterprise this week, but will be on the ground next Sunday strong. Union is extremely anxious to win the game Sunday; likewise La Grande is extremely anxious to humble the powerful Union aggregation—results, tip-top game sure.

Yesterday evening the Pendleton East Oregonian remarked:

Boosting the third annual Eastern Oregon Motorcycle Meet, which is to be held at La Grande on June 17, George Young and C. F. Roberts, prominent young business men of the Union county city, arrived in Pendleton at noon and this afternoon are assiduously distributing cards and posters and preaching the praises of the attraction. President Tallman of the Commercial association has called a meeting this afternoon to receive the La Grander.

What they want is a special train out of Pendleton on June 17. They feel that they have it coming for last year they sent a special to the Round-up and in other years patronized the local show liberally. Mr. Young was formerly of this city and was personally responsible for the special which brought over an excursion party headed by a band last fall. At that time he told La Grande people that Pendleton would reciprocate just as soon as their city had anything to show them.

PENDLETON INTERESTED

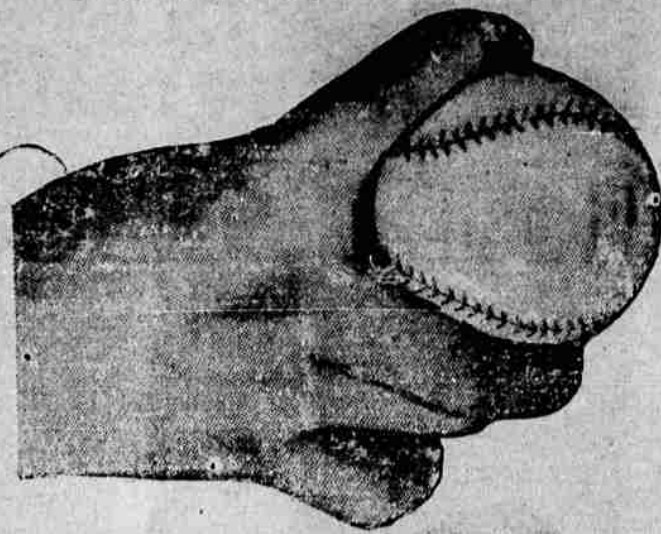

MOTORCYCLE CLUB PRESIDENT FINDS INTEREST.

President Tallman Devotes Entire Day to Visitors' Welfare.

Pendleton is mightily interested in the Motorcycle races to be held June 17 according to Chas. Roberts, president of the Motorcycle club after a return from Pendleton here he and George Young spent yesterday. President Tallman of the Pendleton Commercial club met the visitors at the train when notified by President Snodgrass of the La Grande club that the men were coming, and Mr. Roberts says that the Pendleton man donated almost his entire day to them. A meeting was scheduled for last night at which Mr. Young was to talk up the races but Mr. Roberts came away before the meeting was called to order.

"We found a great deal of interest manifested at Pendleton declared Mr. Roberts on his return, and we are assured of a big turnout from Pendleton as a compliment to the special train we took to the Round-up last year. A special train may not be necessary for the regular service is just right to handle to traffic, giving the visitors an hour or more at the street dance to catch the fastmail home or the entire evening to take the midnight train out."

HERE'S THE FORK BALL, FELLOWS

PETE STANDRIDGE, RECRUIT PITCHER OF THE CHICAGO CUBS, HAS BROUGHT THE "FORK BALL" UP FROM THE MINORS WITH HIM. THOSE WHO HAVE SEEN IT IN OPERATION KNOW THAT IT'S JUST AS GOOD. PERHAPS BETTER THAN CHICAGO'S MATHEWSON'S FAMOUS FADEAWAY.

M. I. A. FIELD DAY IS SET

CONTESTS TO PREVAIL ENTIRE DAY.

Park and Fair Grounds to Be Scenes of Intense Rivalry.

Next Saturday will be a big day for M. I. A. association of the Union stake. Commencing early in the day, the annual celebration will last well into the night.

The first thing on tap is gathering at Riverside park at 8:30 o'clock. Story telling and quartet singing contests will be held as an opening. Judges for these events will be Postmaster E. E. Bragg, Prof. John Girdler and Mrs. Stella Ingle.

At the same time nimble fingers among the stake members will be rewarded for work done during the winter. There has been a contest among all the young women as to making caps and aprons. These pieces of finery will be on display and the winner selected. Further, the art of breadmaking will have received impetus for the best bread and cake on exhibit will be named by competent judges.

After a lunch at the park, the attendance will move to the fair grounds. There, as at the park, contestants will be present from Baker, Union, Cove, Mt. Glen and La Grande. David Stoddard who has general supervision of the day announces that each of these towns will have their M. I. A. clubs represented in both morning and afternoon functions. Earl Stoddard is potentate of the track meet.

In the evening, weather permitting, the guests in the city will again return to the park where an informal ball will be given by the church and during the ball, pennants awarded to prize winners will be distributed. Furthermore the Red Cross Drug store will, through a representative, present to the M. I. A. basketball team the pennant hung up by that store for the winner of the Amateur basketball league.

It promises to be a big day and several scores of guests will be in La Grande for the occasion.

SPRING PLANTING WORK FINISHED

The Forest Service has just completed the work on the largest single planting project ever undertaken in the Northwest, approximately one thousand acres having been covered this spring on Mt. Hebo in Tillamook County, Oregon.

This planting of trees is a part of the regular reforestation work of the Forest Service, and is designed to restore the forest on burned over areas where the original forests have been destroyed by fire, and where nothing but brush now occupies the land. In this way are barren places on the National Forest made productive and a future crop of timber provided. While the Mt. Hebo project represents the largest area covered, reforestation work this spring has been done upon the Snoqualmie Forest, in King and Snohomish counties, Washington, and upon the Oregon, Santiam, Cascade, and Siuslaw Forests in western Oregon, and upon the Malheur Forest in eastern Oregon, covering in all approximately 2,500 acres.

It is stated that the success of the spring planting work was somewhat handicapped by the exceedingly dry weather in March and April, and while it facilitated the actual labor of planting it was a detriment to the trees and may retard their growth.

National Association Convene.

New York, May 25.—The twentieth annual convention of the National association of manufacturers opened today at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. Prominent manufacturers from all parts of the United States were assembled to discuss the effects of the year's political and economic developments, internal and international, on their business. William Howard Taft, former President of the United States; Senator Warren C. Harding, of Ohio; and other speakers of national reputation will address the manufacturers.

The subject of Mr. Taft's address is announced to be "Clayton Act and Other Things." It is expected that the former President will avail himself of this opportunity to express to business men from all parts of the country his view on the present political situation. The Clayton Act, which was vigorously opposed by many of the prominent organizations of businessmen, opens a field for discussion of great interest to manufacturers, the business legislation passed by the last Congress. James A. Emery, of the National Council for Industrial defense, will outline the work of the newly created Federal Trade Commission, which is vested with plenary powers over corporate business interests, and there will be a general discussion of the effect of the activities of this body on the manufacturing industry.

The Federal Commission Industrial Relations, which has been investigating the causes of industrial unrest, will also receive consideration at the convention sessions. The attitude which this, the Commission has assumed toward employers in general and the trend taken by the Commission at its various hearings will be discussed by Walter Drew of the National Erectors association. It has been estimated by experts that the members of this the National Association of Manufacturers supply about one-half of the world's railroad trackage and equipment, three-fourths of the world's means of telephonic communication, and the mechanical equipment paper and ink necessary to produce one-third of the newspapers and magazines published on the globe. They also excel in the production of other staple commodities, manufacturing more shoes in one day than are produced by the leading foreign competitors of the United States in a week, producing eighty per cent of the automobiles of the earth, and gathering with machines made in their factories half of the harvest of the world.

A Decalogue of Conduct.

Always be master of yourself; never betray any irritation or disappointment, or any other weakness; never sloop over; never give yourself away; never make yourself ridiculous—what American would admit that these are foremost among the rules by which he would like to regulate his conduct? It can be hardly denied that this habitual self-mastery, this habitual control over one's emotions, is one of the chief reasons why so much of American life is so uninteresting and monotonous. It reduces the number of opportunities for intellectual friction, it suppresses the manifestation of strong individuality, often it impoverishes the inner life itself. But, on the other hand, it has given to the American that sureness of motive, that healthiness of appetite, that boyish frolicsome, that purity of sex instincts, the quickness and litheness of manners, which distinguishes him from most Europeans; it has given to him all those qualities which insure success and make their possessor a welcome member of any kind of society.

CREOSOTE INCREASE

Owing to a falling off since August 1 of nearly 30 per cent in shipments of creosote from England and Germany, whence comes all but a small part of the imported oil used by wood preserving plants in this country, American manufacturers have been compelled by the Forest Service, it is of the domestic article by about 25 per cent. The imported oil ordinarily form about 65 per cent of the total used in the United States, where creosote is the most important wood preservative.

The statistics gathered show that wood preserving is one of the most rapidly advancing industries in the country. In 1895 there were fifteen plants in the United States; in 1914 there were 1322 plants of all kinds, 100 being of the pressure-cylinder type. Ninety-four of these plants last year used more than 79 million gallons of creosote oil, more than 27 million pounds of dry zinc chloride, and nearly 21 million gallons of other preservatives, such as coal tar and crude oil, treating a total of nearly 160 million cubic feet of timber, an increase of about 7 million cubic feet over 1913, and of 35 million cubic feet over 1912.

The most important consumers are the large plants in which railroad ties are treated. The preservatives materially lengthen the ties' period of service, lessen the labor cost involved by renewal, and decrease the drain up forests due to tie-cutting. To some extent the treatment of fence posts and other forms of farm timber is being taken up, an inexpensive apparatus and method having been devised by the Department of Agriculture; but as yet the use of wood preservatives by farmers is on too small a scale to have any importance in the total, while the practice of treating telephone poles is in its incipency in this country.

"With the rapid advance of this industry as a whole," says the report, "the choice of preservation has been fairly well established, but the kinds and classes of materials to be treated need development along certain lines. In Germany and other European countries practically all cross-ties laid by the railroads are treated with chemicals or preserving oils. In this country but 30 per cent of the ties purchased by the railroads are subjected to such treatment. The number poles treated in this country is a very small per cent of total in use."

A Wonderful Healing Influence in Kidney Troubles.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as stone in the bladder and prescribed Lithia water. I took Lithia water and tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicines for some time, later having some Swamp-Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass gravel until I had passed in all at least a half dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp-Root.

Your very truly,

H. W. SPINKS,

Personally appeared before me this 18th day of August 1909, H. W. Spinks, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.
