SACRED HEART ACADEMY'S YEAR ENDS AUSPICIOUSLY

With the close of the present week, a remarkably successful school year comes to a close in Sacred Heart academy circles. Aside from commencement exercises, held Wednesday afternoon, a series of awards have been made by various concerns and the school for preeminence in different fields of endeavor falling within the scope of the school's curriculum. One day this week, there was on exhibit the fruits of the penmanship classes, picked at random from monthly tests without special consideration for display work, and from these the school management has picked the winners of the various prizes given. Furthermore, the awards of the Palmer system have been determined.

An Observer representative was shown the exhibit and vouches for the statement that writing is not a yet a lost art. Drill work, marginal decoration in pen and ink decorations in chief, penmanship, original titles and frontispieces innumerable constitute the exhibit. As the oldest contributor to the exhibit was but 15 the display has even a greater significance. The teaching staff must be accredited with much of the praise for the success of the course.

Of the writers Loretta Becker was accorded the distinction of being the best manipulator of the pen along Palmer methods. Her writing is clear, uniform and free from flourishes.

On the other hand the exhibit also embraces decorative originality and arrangement and to Ruth Shintaffer, aged 14, this award went. Miss Shintaffer is an artist—nothing else describes her. She does black and white and brown crayon work remarkably well, and above all, has originality. Her copy work is distinct, and worthy of a much older student. Earnings of the artist crop out in every line. She was awarded a prize by the school for her drawings.

Stella Desilet, aged 14, took the artistic quality phase of the contest. Her frontispieces and general arrangement were splendid but she lacked the finish in penmanship that Miss Becker controls. Her work ranked very high.

Miss Rafter and Miss Desilet were awarded prizes for their work. Miss Rafter's forte is drill work in which she is a master.

Mary Newlin came in for special distinction in the school by winning a school prize for English composition.

At the same time, a series of awards to pupils have been made by shorthand concerns and by the Palmer School of writing.

The students receiving the American Penman, the highest award of A. N. Palmer Co., and one for which the work must be almost perfect, are: Mary Newlin, Ruth Shintaffer, Irene O'Connell, Stella Desilet, Inez Stringham, Lavine Wolgamood, Loretta Becker, Mattie Cronen, Iolanda Klees, Etha Thomas and Mary Rafter.

The Student's certificate the second highest, was granted to Lettie Parker, Dorothy Casey, Merta Brown, Mary Fitzgerald, Lucille M. Wolgamood, Ruby Graves, Grace Zutz, Louise O'Connell, Phillip Corbett, Loretta Becker and Irene O'Connell and Eugene Newlin.

Improvement certificates granted to the students whose work was not quite good enough for the Students certificate and were received by Laura O'Leary, Florence Becker and Donna Smith.

The younger students, those of the fifth and sixth grades, have also been busy and rewarded. Progress pins, the award for the first one hundred drills in the Palmer Manual have been granted to Lela Wade, Herman Kramer, Dan Gallagher, Iris King and Lizzie Swart.

Gregg shorthand diplomas were granted to Etha Thomas and Iolanda Klees of the commercial department.

LOCAL HOSPITAL TO SEND OUT ITS FIRST NURSE CLASS

The first commencement exercises of the Grande Ronde Hospital Nurses Training school will be held next Friday evening, June 18th at eight o'clock in the Rex hall.

Seven young women will receive diplomas certifying that they have finished a two and a half years' course in all the regular branches of nursing.

This is the first class to graduate from the full two and a half years' course. The Grande Ronde Hospital Nurses' Training school ranks with the best hospitals in the state. Every girl receives a thorough theoretical training in all the branches of her profession and then is put in the various departments of the hospital where a practical knowledge of each branch is acquired.

The school is maintained by the hospital. Each nurse is given her general living expenses and a small sum of money each month, so that she is required to furnish but little herself for incidental expenses. While in training the young women live in comfortable nurses' quarters at the hospital.

Miss Bertha Williams R. N., is superintendent of nurses. Members of the staff act as a corps of lecturers who lecture to the nurses upon surgery, anatomy, medicine, anesthetics, first aid, obstetrics, infant feeding, eye, ear, nose and throat. Besides these the nurses are given courses and demonstrations in surgical technique, dietetics and cooking, anatomy, physiology, medicine and obstetrics.

With the departure of this class of graduates opening will be made for new applicants for training. During the past year a new wing has been added to the institution and as soon as this can be equipped, almost doubling the capacity, there will be opportunity for still more ambitious young women to enroll in the work.

This Year's Graduates

The young women who will receive diplomas next Friday evening are Stell Newbill, Summerville; Linnea Charalotte Johnson, Alice; Ida Irene Rettig, Alice; Nora Grey Haines; Emma Pauline Pohrman, Chippewa Falls, Wis.; Hazel Bernice McMillian, Union; and Ella Rosetta Childers, Alice.

Program for next Friday night will appear later.
