PECULIARITIES OF WAR.

BY WILBUR S. FOREST
 (United Press Staff Correspondent)
 London, Dec. 2. (By Mail)—When a German torpedo destroyed the Lusitania May 7, causing riots and the subsequent wholesale internment of enemy aliens, England kept its solution of the difficult internment problem strictly secret. After seven months the United Press is able today through the courtesy of the War Office, to tell the story for the first time.

British leniency and German thoroughness have co-ordinated to make England's enemy internment business a positive success. Five London Bobbies and a ten foot fence of American barbed wire guard 750 of the Kaiser's military eligibles at Islington North London. Inside a great central building and auxiliary structures which in ante-bellum days composed a municipal refuge for the poor, is today a model system of self government where 750 "citizens" have worked out their own restricted salvation for the duration of the war.

Take note of the Germans you meet on the streets of Milwaukee, St. Louis or Cincinnati and you would know the appearance of the personal at Islington. Almost all these were business heads clerks, hakers, butchers, barbers, cabinet-makers, bookbinders or tradesmen in London before the Lusitania riots. In May hundreds of them were bundled up an sent to Islington, away from harm and mischief.

The 750 were placed in charge of Mayor Halladay, who has seen service in India. He divided the internees into units of between 30 and 40 and instructed each group to elect its captain. The captains met and elected a Captain of Captains a wealthy Prussian business man of London before the war. Presided over by this dignitary, a council of captains is held daily to adjudicate disputes, consider claims and administer business. If judgement of this body is unsatisfactory the case may be passed to Major Halladay.

The latest internee at Islington is a German merchant, enjoying an income of $125,000 a year. He was unable to secure one of the few private rooms reserved at $3.60 per week because other internees had taken them. He appealed to the council of captains. The democratic spirit of this unique tribunal asserted itself and the applicant was politely informed that his $3.60 was no better than anyone's in Islington's "Germany." He appealed to Major Halladay. The Major replied that he felt compelled to abide by the decision of the lower court.

The wealthy citizen was forced to occupy regulation quarters. These quarters, in the main building, are ample. They consist of high walled, well ventilated rooms where from eight to fifteen sanitary couches are ranged along the walls. On each is a mattress, blankets and pillow. These together with general lavatories, washrooms and bathrooms on every floor, make this internment camp more like a well planned hotel. Large day rooms where visitors may be entertained, a commodious yard with a rain shelter, workshops, a tennis court, dining rooms and tea rooms, make it unnecessary for the men to occupy their sleeping quarters during daylight.

Afternoon tea is a daily event. Here is the routine: Arise at eight; breakfast at 8:30; work, study or diversion until noon (working is optional but hundreds are busy at various tasks under supervision of the Council of Captains) dinner at 12; work, or entertain wives and children until five; tea with trimmings, 5 to 5:30; supper at 7; to bed at nine.

Other unique features are: Unrestricted smoking, except in wood-working shop, bi-monthly theatricals; a weekly paper printed in English; privilege of writing two letters each week in German, to Germany or elsewhere; opportunity of leaving the premises, under guard, for medical treatment, teetotalism.

All citizens of the Islington camp are married, hundreds of them to British wives. Each man is allowed to see his family once in 8 days for 30 minutes. When the United Press man arrived forty families were strolling about the enclosure. Many families live now near the camp of their husbands or brothers. Every wife, if in want, receives a grant of $2.76 per week with an additional 36 cents for every child.

When an enemy alien reaches Islington he deposits his cash with the commandant and keeps $5 or $10. This pocket change circulates rapidly. A laundry, manned by internees furnishes clean linen at twelve cents a week. There is a four-chair barber-shop where shaves cost four cents in the morning and two cents in the afternoon, on the systematic German version that it is worth more to be shaved up all day than half a day. A former delicatessen shop owner of Houndslow, sells genuine German liverwurst, and other Teuton palate ticklers, there are woodshops where experts are making Christmas toys for their children. These child delights are not stamped "Made in Germany," but they bear the stamp of perfect workmanship. Another shop turns out fancy toilet requisites for the wife's Christmas which she may sell. Another is making wood-inlay work. A large bakery daily turns out 1800 pounds of bread. In all these occupations the government furnishes the material and equipment.

"The plan of co-operation allows the government to feed the men at an average cost of $1.08 a week," said the commandant. "The food is wholesome and good. Our kitchen is manned by Germans who know how to cook and economize. Scores of our men are learning Spanish. German far sightedness tells them that England will not be the place for a German's business for some time after peace is declared. Many have told me they are going to South America. Not one man has attempted to escape."

The only essential that Islington's model community lacks is a dentist and he will be interned within a few days, drill, forceps, chair and all.
