STATE NEWS

Marshfield Record: The Kruse & Banks shipyard will lay the keel of the new Bixby & Clark steam schooner within the next few days since the employees who have been working about the yard for some time have the blocking about ready to start the vessel. The lumber for the ship will be obtained from the Simpson Lumber company and it will require about 800,000 feet to construct the same. Ship timber is specially selected and much of it is difficult to obtain, since there are requirements for a great deal of long, clear sticks. Fir will enter largely into the construction of the new vessel, since white cedar in the correct form is becoming hard to secure. When the keel is finished and the vessel gets to the point where a full force can work the yard will be employing about 40 men on the job. The company has a very favorable chance it is said, of securing a second ship to build for the Charles Nelson company, and before the summer breaks Kruse & Banks will probably have the yard running at full capacity.

Unprecedented solicitude for foodless birds is reflected in the state press, the following, from the Roseburg Review, being only a specimen item: "As a result of the unusual cold weather that has prevailed in Oregon during the past few weeks, many people took upon themselves the burden of providing wheat for the children who in some instances placed sacks of wheat where it could be found by the birds."

Albany Herald: A car loaded with 4 tons of flour was shipped from the Red Crown mill of this city to New York yesterday. A. W. Bowersox, manager of the mill, says that this is the first time in 17 years that he has been in the business in this city that such a shipment has been made to New York. He says big shipments have been made to various other parts of the world, however.

Polk county Observer: A movement is on foot for the farmers of the country surrounding Monmouth to organize a co-operative creamery. It is argued that this sort of a creamery, under proper management, will pay the farmers from 25 to 30 per cent more for their cream than by the present system.

Nineteen sixteen forecasts in Dallas Observer: "The traveling men are just about unanimous in the opinion that 1916 is to be a banner year for business. (And the successful salesman, while a national born optimist, is likewise a pretty good judge of conditions."

With the object of giving financial assistance to a public bathing beach project to be established next summer, the Corvallis Commercial club is considering the advisability of giving a home talent play or minstrel in the near future.

"The outlook for modern equipped stockyards for Sutherlin at an early date," says the Sun, "begins to look good to the citizens of this valley, and in all probability construction work will begin as soon as weather conditions will permit."

The electric lighting company at Condon is planning to meter all unmetered residences and business houses, and will also reduce the minimum rate.

Snow on Road to Crescent City.

Wonder, Or., Jan. 18.—The recent snowfall here and west of this place has been unusually heavy, and the mail stages for Crescent City, passing here, are having a difficult time in getting through. The snow at this place, 13 miles west of Grants Pass, is three feet deep on a level and on Hayes hill, four miles further west, it is lying seven feet deep while on the divide, between here and Crescent City, it lies 12 to 15 feet. The stages leaving Grants Pass, where there is little snow, load up with large quantities of mail; then, on striking the deep snow here and further west, they are compelled to leave portions of it at the small postoffices. The trip over the summit is made on snowshoes and only the most urgent mail is carried at that point. The temperature here runs from 36 degrees above in day time to 32 and a little lower at night.

Girl Gets Large Damages

Santa Fe, N. M., Jan. 17.—A verdict for the plaintiff awarding $16,700 damages was returned early tonight by a jury in the $50,000 breach of promise suit of Miss Margaret Waddel of Los Angeles against A. R. Manby, a business man of Taos, N. M. The verdict as returned answers nine specific questions made by Federal Judge W. H. Pope, who heard the case. The verdict fixes the value of the plaintiff's trousseau at $700; decides that Miss Waddel spent $800 on transportation incident to the courtship and that Manby secured a total of $1,850 from her. Expenses incidental to awaiting Manby's arrival for the wedding, which had been set, according to testimony at the trial in 1912, were placed at $1000 and $350 was fixed as the sum spent in the east trying to dispose of a painting for the defendant. Damages for mental anguish were fixed at $12,000.

DEATHS AT STATE HOSPITAL

Two Of The Deceased Were Inmates For A Long Period
 Pendleton, Jan. 18.—Four deaths was the toll at the Eastern Oregon Hospital the past week-end, one passing away Saturday and three yesterday. Harry Gilman, age 72 years, who has been an inmate of the State Hospital for the past 33 years, died Saturday. His remains were taken care of here.

Ellen Conway, age 76 years, an inmate of the state institution for 36 years, passed away yesterday. She was admitted from Wasco County in 1880. Her body will be taken care of here.

Ruth Cates, age 23 years, of The Dalles, who has been an inmate of the hospital for the past two years, and a half, passed away from tuberculosis yesterday. The body was shipped to The Dalles.

William Springer, age 47, admitted to the hospital in 1914 from Pendleton, passed away yesterday from pulmonary tuberculosis. His remains will probably be taken care of here.

COLD WEATHER STORY

Pendleton Resident Tells Of The Winter Of 1861

(Pendleton Tribune)
 While the cold snap is not at all disconcerting and in fact acclaimed by farmers and stockmen as a big asset to the Eastern Oregon country, much time is given to recounting experience by old-timers during former heavy snowfalls and cold weather. A decade ago a similar storm would be attended by heavy losses among stockmen. Now it is different. The flockmaster is prepared with sheds to protect his flocks from biting winds and is always provided with an abundance of alfalfa and barley which enables him to weather such storms. Stockmen no longer depend upon a chinook to save their flocks as in times past, now having hay and straw stacks and court the opportunity of being able to feed it out each winter. The stories told of former hard winters by the pioneers are interesting.

Lot Livermore, John M. Bently and others have had their say about the cold weather and deep snow they experienced many years ago in this section, but their stories pale in comparison with the one told by J. P. Walker, clerk of Pendleton Camp No. 41, W. O. W. Mr. Walker is neither a nimrod or a big game hunter and never takes a drink, hence his word may be considered unimpeachable.

"Well sir," he commenced, "it was in 1861 when I lived in Dulfur, about 15 miles south of The Dalles and I have good reason to remember the date. Well, it commenced to snow on the 22nd of December and it continued with slight intermissions until the 7th of March. You may believe it was a snowstorm. The greatest depth reached was 30 inches and travelers from Walla Walla reported from two to three feet of snow being encountered on the way to The Dalles. The coldest weather reported was 40 below zero."

A tragic incident of this 1861 storm is also told by Mr. Walker. Grant County at the time was the placer miners' Mecca, and a few days before the commencement of the snowfall 16 miners started out from their claims for The Dalles. All carried well-filled buckskin purses of gold dust. All but one, on reaching the John Day bridge, left their gold dust in care of a Mr. Leonard, but the other having over $5,000 of the precious metal, decided to carry it through, but was unable to make the journey, his dead body being found the next spring. The gold dust was never found.

DO YOU FEEL HEADACHY LOOK TO YOUR STOMACH

It is an unusual thing for a druggist to sell medicine under a guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. Yet this is the way La Grande Pharmacy, the popular druggists, are selling Mi-o-na, the standard dyspepsia remedy.

Never before have they had so large a number of customers tell them that a medicine has been successful as with Mi-o-na. People who a few months ago looked like walking skeletons have put on flesh and today are ruddy and vigorous with perfect digestion and good health.

There is no longer any need for anyone suffering or making their friends suffer on account of dyspepsia. Mi-o-na can always be relied upon. The percentage of cures is so great that there is little risk to them in guaranteeing to return the money if the medicine does not relieve. And they stand ready to do so without
