Engineer Incapacitated by Cold. "Uncle" George Hansen, veteran locomotive engineer on the Pilot Rock run, is taking an enforced layoff on account of illness caused by getting wet while working with the steam pipes of his engine during the below zero weather Sunday says the East Oregonian. Though sitting beside his boiler, Mr. Hansen almost froze. His wet clothes became so stiff that they had to be thawed out before they could be removed.

HIS FLIGHT OF ORATORY.

The Cause Was Lowly, but the Lawyer's Plea Was Eloquent.

The wit and wisdom of members of the bar are acknowledged in all circles, and the following example, recorded in M. McDonnell Bodkin's book, "Recollections of an Irish Judge," is certainly worthy of being preserved:

"A certain barrister appeared to support an application before the recorder of Dublin for a license for a public house. The applicant was only twenty-five years old, and the recorder remarked that he was very young for so responsible a position. The resourceful advocate rose majestically to the occasion and said:

"My lord, Alexander the Great at twenty-two years of age had crushed the Illyrians and razed the city of Thebes to the ground, had crossed the Hellespont at the head of his army, had conquered Darius with a force of a million in the defiles of Issus and brought the great Persian empire under his sway. At twenty-three Rene Descartes evolved a new system of philosophy. At twenty-four Pitt was prime minister of the British empire, on whose dominions the sun never sets. At twenty-four Napoleon overthrew the enemies of the republic with a whirl of grapeshot in the streets of Paris, and is it now to be judicially decided that at twenty-five my client, Peter Mulligan, is too young to manage a public house in Capel street?"

PLEASING A SULTAN.

Why a Piece of Spanish Music Ticked the Oriental Autocrat.

Kaid Belton some years ago told the following story, which illustrated exactly the attitude of the sultan of Morocco at that time toward the French: One day the sultan asked a lady, the wife of his dentist, to play one of the pianos that were in the room of the palace. She played several pieces, one of them at length catching the sultan's fancy, whereupon the following little dialogue took place:

Sultan—That piece is very nice. What is it called?

Dentist—It is the "March on Cadix." It was written to commemorate the Spaniards driving the French out of Spain.

Sultan—What! Were the French in Spain?

Dentist—Yes.

Sultan—How many of them?

Dentist—About 200,000.

Sultan (in a surprised tone)—And the Spaniards drove them out?

Dentist—Yes, every one of them.

There was a slight pause while the sultan was thinking hard, and then:

Sultan (quietly)—Play it again.—Dundee Advertiser.

Bernard Shaw's Excuse.

Bernard Shaw was invited to a banquet in honor of the sculptor Rodin. He sent the following letter as his excuse for not attending:

"For me a banquet to Rodin is quite superfluous. I have already taken measures to assume immortality for myself by attaching my name to that of Rodin. Henceforth in every encyclopedia you will read, 'Bernard Shaw: subject of a bust by Rodin; otherwise unknown.' 'If the bust is lost, broken or spotted, so much the better for me,' he continues. 'They will speak of the lost Bernard Shaw of Rodin; as today they speak of the lost Athens of Phidias. Nothing can be more beautiful than the statues which no one ever saw. Therefore I have done all that is necessary. I can get along without banquets. You will only be Rodin's hosts. I have the honor to be his model.'"

Saving Old Couple.

They were a very saving old couple, and as a result they had a beautifully furnished house.

One day the old lady missed her husband.

"Joseph, where are you?" she called out.

"I'm resting in the parlor," came the reply.

"What on the sofa?" cried the old lady, horrified.

"No; on the floor."

"On that grand carpet?" came in tones of anguish.

"No; I've rolled it up."—Buffalo News.

The Cavity.

Cholly—The dentist told me I had a large cavity that needed filling. Ethel—Did he recommend any special course of study?

To be wise we must learn to be happy.—Maeterlinck.

Horses and Music.

The musical acuteness of horses is shown by the rapidity with which cavalry horses learn the significance of trumpet calls.

Life Struggle of the Trees.

An interesting light is thrown on the longevity of the trees that grow along the timber line of the Rocky mountains by Mr. Enos A. Mills in his "Rocky Mountain Wonderland." He says:

A few timber line trees live a thousand years, but half this time is a ripe old age for most of the timber line veterans. The age of these trees cannot be judged by their size or by their general appearance. There may be centuries of difference in the ages of two arm in arm trees of similar size. I examined two trees that were growing within a few yards of each other in the shelter of a crag. One was fourteen feet high and sixteen inches in diameter and had 337 annual rings. The other was seven feet high and five inches in diameter and had lived 492 years.

One day by the sunny and sheltered side of a bowlder I found a tiny seed bearer at an altitude of 11,800 feet. How splendidly unconscious it was of its size and its utterly wild surroundings! This brave pine bore a dainty cone, yet a drinking glass would have completely housed both the tree and its fruit.

Conversing With "Ghosts."

Some scientists of real eminence have accepted the postulate of the individuality and self consciousness of the soul after the death of the body and have attempted to demonstrate their belief by asserting communication with these disembodied spirits. Sir William Crookes, a profound deliver in chemistry pertaining to radioactivity, asserted years ago that he had communication with souls of dead friends, but for several years he has been silent on this matter. Camille Flammarion, a rather speculative and sensational astronomer, declares that he has seen and conversed with the "ghosts" of dead friends. Professor William James, brother of Henry James, the novelist, promised before he died that if possible he would communicate with his friend Professor Hystop, both eminent psychologists, but at last accounts the soul of Professor James had not spoken.—Exchange.

The Changing Leaves.

Careful observers will note that the graduation of autumn tints in all cases are in order of those of sunrise, from darker to lighter hues, and never the reverse. The brown leaves which long persist on some trees (beech, chestnut and certain oaks, for example), though darker than the yellow or orange from which they often turn, are no exception, since these leaves are dead, and the brown is only assumed after vitality has vanished.—Garden Magazine.

George Stoddard of the Grande Ronde Lumber company left on the noon train for Baker where he goes to look after some business affairs.

N. K. West returned last night from attendance at the meeting of the State Fair board in Salem and a day or two on business affairs in Portland.

The malignant moon, which has been frequently accused of being "dry" and at twelve o'clock last night charged with being "full," is taken by many as the only correct weather guide worth noticing. The escapee of last midnight may well be condoned since it is the token that the backbone of the cold snap has been fractured.

George Hennessey, who is in charge of the Catholic Chapel car, the "St. Peter," arrived in La Grande last night. The magnificent car is on a siding to remain a short period.

J. K. Wright, of the La Grande Investment company, left on today's train for North Powder to look after some company business.

J. I. Myers, a farmer and stockman of Haines, is in La Grande on one of his occasional visits in this section.

Engineer Martin King, known in railroad circles as "Senator" King by reason of the fact that he was once a member of the Idaho legislature, came down today from Kamela where he is in the helper service. He will remain in La Grande a couple of days.

George Coygn, one of the few left of the old-time commercial men, arrived in La Grande today and his advent is taken to mean that the traveling salesmen are beginning to get busy with the advent of the new year.

Tom Johnson went over to Union today and will arrange for a shipment of three cars of hogs from that place which will go out with the regular Saturday stock special.

Although the railroad is practically clear of snow blockades trains are still arriving from a few minutes to an hour late, on account of the difficulty in making the schedule time. A rotary was sent up the hill today, as usual. Taking the entire situation "by and large" the running time of trains has been as regular as could reasonably be expected.

Sam Clay returned to Cove today after having completed the arrangements for again becoming a resident of La Grande. Mr. Clay has been living in Cove the past year and a half but will resume his residence here within a few days.

The Elocution class conducted by Rev. Drahn under direction of the Y. M. C. A. meets this evening at 7 o'clock. While the class is yet small, it promises to grow and some fine work is being done with the material at hand.

This evening there will be a joint installation of Modern Woodmen and Neighbors officers for the ensuing year. The work begins promptly on time, and will be followed by light refreshments.
