

LINCOLN'S OWN BIBLE IN CITY

METHODIST CONGREGATION TO SEE RELIC.

Churches of La Grande Give Special Attention to Lincoln Day.

Churches of La Grande will give special stress to Abraham Lincoln's memory in their services tomorrow, notably the Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal. Rev. Clark of the former will speak on "Abraham Lincoln" in the evening and has prepared an interesting address.

Rev. Edwards of the Methodist church was called upon some years ago to preside at the funeral of one of Lincoln's nieces, and at that time used the bible the memorial Abe had read and studied. Hence Mr. Edwards knew where to lay hands on the coveted relic, now and tomorrow night will read the scriptures from that self-same book. He will deliver his Lincoln address, which he has presented about 50 times, on that occasion.

SALONIKI NOW SPY NEMESIS

Salonica, Greece Dec. 30.—By Mail —At last Salonica is spy proof. To make it so has been a tough and long job. Gen. Sarraill settled it all today in one grand cleaning up that was full of exciting indications.

Ever since the allies came to Salonica spies have been here. The German, Austro-Hungarian, Bulgarian and Ottoman consulates have been open, as usual; the Salonica residents represented by these consulates, have gone about their business; and to see German officers, clad in civilian clothes, dining at a table next to British or French officers has been no uncommon sight.

Many German and Austrian strangers also resided in the hotels. The allies had no control over their coming or going. This situation was not so dangerous to the allies so long as they were fighting in Serbia, but when the troops fell back into Greece and Salonica became headquarters for the field forces it was necessary at once to remove from Salonica all enemy citizens and consular representatives.

Salonica, as a military precaution, had to be made an ally city. How to do it was the question. The consuls would not go; their governments would not recall them; and so long as they remained their nationals would not depart.

The beginning of the end came this morning when a flock of three German aeroplanes soared over Salonica and dropped forty bombs on the surrounding camps. At noon the visit was repeated. The warships in the harbor fired shrapnel but missed the fliers. A lonely Bulgarian shepherd, three miles out of town on a hillside with his flock of sheep, was hit by a German shell and he and five of his sheep were killed.

While the second lot of German aeroplanes was in the air, Gen. Sarraill decided to get all enemy citizens out of the town as quickly as possible. It required eight automobiles. Two cars each went to the German, Austrian, Bulgarian and Turkish consulates and detachments of soldiers were placed at all the entrances. A French officer who entered the German consulate was met by Consul Gen. Walters with the remark: "You have no right to invade German Premises on Greek Soil."

"The German invaded Greek soil with their aeroplanes this morning, monsieur," said the Frenchman. The consulate was occupied by French soldiers and "Walters was taken to French headquarters with all its staff. At the Bulgarian consulate, he was stopped by a sentry. "But I am the Bulgarian consul general," he said "and this is my consulate."

"Ah! In that case I will take in your card." Within a few moments the Bulgarian consul general received word from sentry that he would be welcomed within his own consulate. Entering, he found a french officer sitting at his desk.

"What does monsieur desire?" asked the Frenchman.

"I am the Bulgarian counsel general," replied the official.

"That is very unfortunate," said the officer, "for I am under orders to place the Bulgarian counsel general under arrest." The Bulgarian's protest was formal. He rode to the French headquarters in an automobile.

The Salonica crowds followed the operations of the military men with the greatest interest. There was something of a rush of the crowd toward the Austrian consulate, for word had gone abroad among the Salonica folk that the Austrians might put up a fight. A few French soldiers with rifles were about the place but the crowd say an officer go into the consulate and shortly return with the consul general of Austro-Hungary, who climbed into an automobile and sped to French headquarter.

Word got around after this that the consul general of Turkey had a harem and that the French and British were going to raid it. This rumor perhaps accounted for the fact that the largest crowd of all stood about the Turkish consulate. It developed that there was no harem there. The Ottoman consul general being a bachelor who was reared in Paris. He came down the steps with a French officer, chatting gaily in French and took his auto ride to General Sarraill's headquarters.

All the dependants and assistants of the four consulates numbered fifty-two men and six women. They were all put on a boat, bound, it is presumed at this writing, for Athens.

General Sarraill then sent an automobile to the American consulate and begged that John B. Kehl, the American consul—(all the other governmental representatives in Salonica were consul generals and Kehl is the most poorly paid of them all)—confer with him as to taking over the enemy consulates. Within a few hours Kehl was on the job and in possession of most of the archives and all the money the military had seized in the consulates. He immediately began the task of giving passports to German, Bulgarian, Turkish and Austrian citizens to depart from Salonica.

One box of Doan's Kidney Pills removed all these troubles."

News of One Year Ago The Lusitania sailed from Liverpool flying the British Mercantile Marine emblem in place of the Naval reserve flag she usually displays. Captain Dow said he might use the American flag on the passage. Two hundred Americans cancelled their passage on the Lusitania. American artillery shells were used for the first time on the French western front. Austrian U-boats seized two Italian merchant vessels.
