You Need a Tonic every Spring.

NEARLY EVERYBODY NEEDS A TONIC IN THE SPRING: BECAUSE DURING THE PREVIOUS WINTER THEY HAVE EATEN TOO MUCH AND CLOGGED THE LIVER AND KIDNEYS.

IT IS WISE JUST ON "GENERAL PRINCIPLES" TO TAKE A CLEANSING TONIC EVERY SPRING AND BRING BACK YOUR BUOYANCY AND INCREASE YOUR VITALITY.

WHEN YOUR FAMILY DOCTOR PRESCRIBES, BRING YOUR PRESCRIPTIONS TO US AND GET THEM FILLED SO THAT YOU CAN "RELY" ON THE MEDICINE YOU BUY.

LA GRANDE CONDUCTOR MEMBER OF FOUR-GENERATION FAMILY

From the left—C. H. Eames, Mrs. Nell M. Wilson, Master Omar Wilson, G. B. Eames

In the above group (on the left) is Conductor C. H. Eames, of La Grande, and the picture shows representatives of four Eames generations, viz: G. B. Eames, aged 90, who is the great-grandfather; C. H. Eames, the grand father; Mrs. Nell M. Wilson, the daughter and Master Omar Wilson, the son, aged 13 months. The photograph was taken in Denver, where all but Conductor Eames reside. The great grand father is in splendid health.

TAKE A LOOK AT THE SKY

La Grande, March 7.—(To the Editor).—Not all the news of the day transpires on the earth. Very interesting items are to be gleaned from the skies, too, these winter nights.

While the lesser lights of humanity have their goings and comings scrupulously chronicled, it is not amiss that the greater luminaries of outer space should sometimes be given a measure of publicity.

On these clear moonless nights the sky presents a very attractive opportunity for those who wish to make astronomical observations with the naked eye, or assisted by a bird or opera glass.

Half way down the western sky after sunset, two very beautiful planets, Jupiter and Venus, appear. A short time ago Jupiter was the upper one, now it is the lower, having passed the brilliant queenly star which it seemed to be pursuing. A little south of the zenith appears the constellation of Orion, easily identified by its belt of three stars, from which a starry sword hangs down, with the brilliant Betelgeuse above it, and Rigel below. A little north and east, in a widely spread W, is to be seen Gassiopeia's chair. Almost precisely in the zenith, a little to the west may be described a misty, shimmering little group—about the size of a saucer—which indicates where the Pleiades hold their court; the Pleiades which have been sung from of old. Some people who have good eyesight may make out six of its seven stars, but a bird or opera glass will bring out the seven very beautifully. In that misty patch, no bigger than a human hand, seemingly, there are three thousand stars, and though they seem as closely packed as snow in a snow-bank, there is yet room between and two of them for our own sun and all its planets to pass through unnoticed.

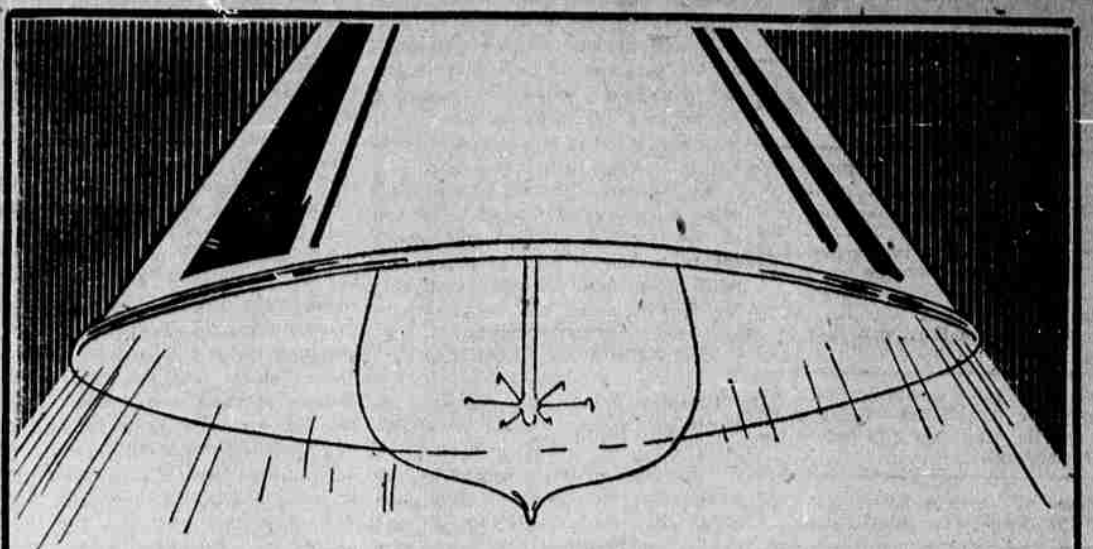

Over in the southeast, on a line with Orion's belt, Sirius may be seen, a blue-white diamond of the night. It is one of our comparatively near neighbors, being only 47,000,000,000 miles from us, its light coming to us in a little over eight years. But as it is approaching our system at the rate of 866,000 miles a day, it may be expected to grow much brighter in the course of a few centuries.

Then in the east, where the moon lately rose, red Mars may be seen. In the north, to be found by using the two stars which form the front of the big dipper as "pointers", is Polaris, which keeps constant guard above the north pole of the earth—a sentry duty of which it will be relieved in 12,000 years, when the earth's pole will be pointing toward Vega.

These are only a few of the heavenly objects which may be seen these nights—objects known to many by name but not by personal acquaintance with their appearance and position in the skies. It is amazing how little attention these nightly wonders command. Only the other day, Venus was mistaken by the people of an eastern munition manufacturing town for an airship approaching. In other times, before the stars were known for what they are, their movements caused all sorts of distress amongst the people. But nowadays, when almost any school child may find facilities for mapping the heavens, and when every adult may find his way about the greater constellations, there is much of interest and information which goes heedlessly to waste.

SWITCH ON THE LIGHT!

There are a lot of things about the coffee business that the public doesn't know.

There are a lot of coffees of the "ten-karat" variety masquerading as the "eighteen-karat" kind.

There can be no better coffee than—

Royal Club Super-Quality Coffee

It sells regularly at 40c. No "first quality" coffee should sell for more.

There might be times when a higher price would be justified—but not now.

"Green coffee" prices fluctuate just as does sugar or flour and any other staples. Due to a decreased demand in Europe, coffee has been "down" for a whole year past. During part of this time the "best" coffee could be retailed, with a reasonable profit, at 35c in the home market and 40c in distant markets. During that time we sold ROYAL CLUB at the reduced price. Recently prices have advanced—the regular price of ROYAL CLUB is now 40c, and it's worth it.

The coffee roaster who maintained a price of 40c to 45c, during this "low market" period, charged you too much—he robbed the public of thousands of dollars. They were entitled to share in this saving just as they do on sugar and flour and other staples.

The Coffee Roaster who charges you an unreasonable price fifty-one weeks out of the year, for coffee no better than ROYAL CLUB, and then reduces his price for one week to what it should have been all the year does not deserve your patronage.

We will challenge all competition. ROYAL CLUB has no equal in quality or price. We will not be undersold—no, not for a single day.

We will allow no "outside" coffee roaster to unload his surplus stock on the unsuspecting public at what he claims to be a marvelous reduction.

For two weeks you may buy ROYAL CLUB at reduced prices to meet all competition. Buy it in any quantity at these prices. You know it is the best that money can buy. You know it is fresh—for it's roasted daily in Portland and delivered to your grocer in small quantities just as he needs it. You can be certain that it has not lost its strength in warehouses or in transit.

NICE SUBURBAN HOME

Just 10 blocks from center of city, over one-half acre of ground; fine orchard of apple, cherry, peach and pear trees; currants, berries, and fine vegetable and flower gardens. Chicken houses and parks, large barn in fair condition. Good wood house with cellar under it.

8-room house, hot and cold water, bath, lights, etc. This house is in sound condition but needs some slight repairing of porch, paint and paper.

The price and terms are made to sell, $200 cash will make deal—Discount for all cash, or owner will consider trade for Ford car or cattle. Owner has moved away and must sell. Investigate this proposition. (382)
