"DIVINE SARAH" WHO IS FEATURE OF FILM AT SHERRY'S

LAST TIME TONIGHT AT ARCADE.

Julia Dean's New Play is "Matrimony."

A realistic and convincing drama of society life is "Matrimony," C. Gardner Sullivan's new play, which will be given by the Triangle combination at the Arcade theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Julia Dean wears some wonderful creations of Fifth avenue modistes, and Thomas H. Ince has achieved some charming effects in the furnishings of the various rooms in which the action takes place. Howard Hickman as Weston Rosmore, the fickle husband, is the society man to the finger tips and goes smoothly about his wicked way of falling in love with every siren that casts her eyes his way.

When Julia Dean as the neglected wife suddenly changes her tactics and begins to flirt with all the men she meets there is a subtle change in Hickman as the husband. He begins to lose interest in the women around him in watching the spectacle of his formerly subdued and domestic mate. Finally he thinks it is time to interfere after he has found that his little hints serve no purpose. On his failure the way Hickman turns for comfort to the love of his little daughter (Thelma Salter) is the very picture of the fond father. It all ends up with a happy reconciliation.

"Stolen Magic."

Raymond Hitchcock's contribution to the Triangle program at the Arcade Wednesday and Thursday is a burlesque on East Indian conjuration entitled "Stolen Magic," in which he is ably assisted by Mack Sennett, Mabel Normand and other well known Keystone actors. Mr. Hitchcock appears in the role of a traveler from India who brings back to America a work on magic and a collection of sacred snakes. The Brahmin seeking to recover the magic scroll is mixed up in the proceedings. An interesting "outback" shows how Hitchcock stole the magic book from an East Indian temple and how the nautch girls danced weirdly before him. The Hindu pursuer is a bomb thrower, and there are some funny moments when Hitchcock and Sennett get unwelcome possession of the bomb.

AT SHERRY'S

Divine Sarah Wins.

La Grande theatre goers saw the Divine Sarah (Bernhardt) perform last evening at Sherry's theatre in spite of her recent infirmities. The film adapted from the novel "Jeanne Dore" and filmed since Bernhardt recovered from amputation of one limb at the knee, has a tone of tragedy in it, and Bernhardt has splendid opportunity to utilize that wonderful facial expression of her's. She sits mostly, in the picture, some times moving about but when she does it was perfectly consistent that she employ the arms of friends. The story deals with a victim of the gambling lust, and his son who falls the victim of a vampire. There is a continuous run of heavy acting for Bernhardt to do, and she does it wonderfully well though no one in the audience, knowing her infirmities and aware that she is 71 and over, can watch her performance without a pang of sympathy for the greatest actress of ages.

The picture is unique in that Bernhardt is almost continually in the picture, in sharp contrast to the usual custom for when she first bowed to the screen she was wanted to cut her acts to the minimum.

The picture runs again tonight for the last time. It is not the story but the presence of Divine Sarah in it that makes the film worth while and one that will long linger in the mind of him who sees it.

WASTE OF INK GREAT HERE.

Traveler Wants People to Know Where His Home Is, at Least.

Minneapolis, April 29.—He entered the West hotel, a fine, courtly Southern gentleman, very affable and genial. And this is what he wrote on the register:

"Hinton Graves Lee, resident in Augusta, Ga., prior to February 1, and in Georgia state since 1852, now resident at Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan."

Clerks A. D. Hein and A. M. Shar-tin looked it over and had a whispered consultation.

"Think of it," said Hein, "Why the ink firm could afford to pay the traveling expenses and a good salary to Mr. Lee. If that habit ever spreads there wouldn't be ink enough in the United States to go around."

Wall Street at least can congratulate herself that Brandeis has been eliminated as a Presidential possibility.—Kansasburg Illuminator.
