AT THE MOVIES

AT ARCADE.

Blanche Sweet, one of America's foremost photodramatic stars, will be seen at the Arcade tonight and tomorrow in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Black-List," the thrilling drama of social conditions written especially for her by two of the country's most famous playwrights, Marion Fairfax and Wm. C. De Mille. It is a Paramount picture. The beautiful Blanche Sweet, since she has been with the Lasky company has been seen in many unusual roles, but as Vera Maroff, the school teacher in a small mining town, she is said to portray a role entirely different from anything in which she has heretofore appeared. "The Black-List" is a daring indictment of the working conditions of big corporations as they exist in many states. Vera is the daughter of a mine worker who is the head of Russian anarchists, contemplating the overthrow of the corporation. How the little school teacher, after her people have been shot down by the mine-guards for refusing to work under the terrible conditions of the "Black-List," changes the entire policy of the great corporation and brings the president to her feet, must, naturally be seen to be enjoyed. This photodrama is said to deliver a lesson to the working classes in a far more graphic and vivid manner than could be told from the pulpit or stage. Supporting Miss Sweet is a cast of unusual excellence, headed by Chas. Clary. Horace B. Carpenter is also seen prominent in the support of Miss Sweet. Others in the cast are Ernest Joy, Wm. Elmer, Lucian Littlefield, Jane Wolf and other members of the Lasky all-star stock company.

AT SHERRY'S.

"Fighting Blood" Real. Last night a large audience saw

William Farnum in "Fighting Blood" in which a prize fight of the real quill is staged. The picture appears for the last time tonight, and it is interesting to know what a real prize fighter thinks of the film. When Champion Jess Willard was in New York recently he gave out the following comment about the picture Sherry's is now showing: "Most stage fights are just stage fights, that's all," declared Willard. "The fighters usually stall and swing wild, afraid that they are going to hurt each other or ruffle each other's clothes. In these days moving pictures are too real for fake fighting. I mean the pictures in which I saw Bill Farnum fight. He is the greatest rough-and-tumble fighter, for pictures or for money, I believe that I ever saw. I do not mean that Farnum is a rowdy or anything like that. I know that he is a high-class gentleman. What I do mean is that he has demonstrated to my mind that he is more than able to take care of himself in almost any kind of company. "Farnum and his sparring partners put all they have behind their blows, or at least seem to, and I used to wonder whether it was rehearsing that made them so perfect. I know differently now. I know that they really give and take the punches that come their way. I saw Farnum in 'Fighting Blood,' 'Soldiers' Oath,' 'The Plunderer,' 'The Bondman' and 'A Man of Sorrow,' and, believe me, I have seen ring fights that did not touch these for realism and action. "Bill Farnum fights as though he likes to fight, and I have no doubt that he would have landed in the ring if the stage had not claimed him in his early youth."

A Symbol of Health. The Pythagorians of Ancient Greece ate simple food, practiced temperance and purity. As a badge they used the five pointed star which they regarded as a symbol of health. A red five pointed star appears on each package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and still fulfills its ancient mission as a symbol of health. If you are troubled with indigestion, biliousness or constipation, get a package of these tablets from your druggist. You will be surprised at the quick relief which they afford. Obtainable everywhere.
