

Who judges Coffee at your house?

WHO SITS at the breakfast table and gets the real pleasure smile when the coffee is so good? In almost every home there's some one who instantly—and immensely—appreciates good coffee. Some one who feels that the day is somehow wrong, unless it's well started with a cup or two at breakfast. Your natural thought is, "Yes, that's right, but how can I get such coffee?"

The answer is easy. You can get such coffee only at your grocer's. It will be packed only in a vacuum-sealed tin. It will be ground.

There are several good coffees packed like this—you're safe with any of them.

Schilling's Best is good coffee plus. It is fine coffee at the price of good coffee.

The economy will surprise you. In cost by the cup it closely rivals the cheapest bulk coffee. And, as to flavor—well, there's no comparison!

Much of this is due to the vacuum-sealed tins. These permit us to grind the coffee into even bits, so that every particle yields the utmost smooth, rich flavor. Then, after taking out the bitterish chaff, the coffee is hurriedly packed into the air-tight tins that keep it ever-fresh. To get best results, follow directions.

Schilling's Best is sold through grocers only.

An important entry in the belle-lettres contest is submitted by our reliable Port Clinton correspondent, who reports that a fine brood-sow belonging to Mr. Henry Cashweck, the prominent benefactor of the race of Danbury, in the last two cute-little-cuss years has become the mother of no fewer than 66 little cusses who came out of the everywhere into here in lots of 15, 16, 17, and 18, respectively, all of whom bid fair to grow into good and useful pighood.—Ohio State Journal.

MUTTON AND LAMB MARKET STEADY.

Run of Hogs to Portland Slightly Less Than a Year Ago.

Portland, June 12.—Thirty-seven loads of California cattle came upon the local market, as expected, for the week's opening. In general the market acted somewhat weaker, with values at least 15c lower, but in some instances sales were made a quarter off former figures.

In the swine division the run over Sunday was but fractionally less than the heavy run of last Monday. Total supply available for the trade at the opening was 4252 head, compared with 4507 last Monday and 2630 head a year ago.

General mutton and lamb market conditions at North Portland were considered steady for the day. There were quite fair shipments from the interior, with total offerings during the morning at 2259 head, compared with but 668 head last Monday.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts to flush out your Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidney and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

TRAPPING A PYTHON.

The Monster is a Victim of His Own Greedy Appetite.

The python's weak point is its stomach; it is a glutton. Not satisfied with a full supper, it will start at once on next week's breakfast if by chance that future meal happens to be within easy reach.

A python generally lives in a hole in the ground or a hollow in a tree, but if it can find an old ruin in the jungle—and there are many old ruins in India—it likes to take up its sleeping quarters there, because even in the heaviest rains the water runs off the ruins quickly, whereas a hole in the ground is likely to be flooded. The python needs to eat only once a week, and to get that meal it lies flat along the bough of a tree near a stream and waits for its prey to come to drink.

When the natives see the long trail that the python's body makes near the bank and find a heap of ruins near by they make a hole in the ruined wall just exactly big enough for the python to get through. Then they tie a pig to a stake near the hole on one side of the wall, and on the other side of the wall opposite the hole they tie another pig to a stake. They also tie a wire to the leg or the tail of the near side pig, and as evening draws on they twist it from a distance, and the pig squeals. As the python comes home to bed it hears the squeals.

So the python comes along merrily and seizes its supper at a single bite. Down goes the pig into the big snake's throat, sucked in slowly by sheer muscular action. In about half an hour the pig has passed completely down the long neck, and in another half hour it is down a couple of yards farther into the python's stomach.

Most animals would go to sleep right away after a gorge like that. But meanwhile the second pig on the other side of the wall has realized its unhappy brother's woeful fate and has set up a most distressing noise. The python puts its head through the hole and sees it.

"Ah!" it says to itself. "Here's my next week's breakfast."

And instead of waiting for next week to come that greedy python swallows the second pig too. The wily natives wait until the second pig is well on its way down the python's body; then they have the snake caught. Pig No. 1 prevents it from advancing, and pig No. 2 prevents it from retreating. The natives lasso the python around the neck, break down the wall and pass a coil of rope between the two humps of pig before they can amalgamate. Then they bear away the python to captivity.—"Wonders of the Jungle."

Interviewing a Humorist.

"Good morning, Wagge. What's on the carpet today?" asked Bingleton.

"Dust," said Wagge.

"Clever boy! But I mean what have you on foot?"

"Shoes," said Wagge solemnly.

"Oh, come off, Wagge. What are you up to these days?"

"Date," sighed Wagge.

"I'll give you just one more chance, you poor frivolous fellow. What are you doing now?"

"Everybody," said Wagge.

"As usual, eh?" said Bingleton as he shoved the remains down the nearest available coal hole.—New York Times.

The Old Capitol Building.

The structure in Washington city known as the "Old Capitol building" has a memorable history. It was erected in 1800 and was originally designed as a tavern or boarding house. On account of poor management the tavern was closed after a few years. During the war of 1812 the British captured Washington and burned several of the public buildings, including the capitol. The government then purchased this tavern building for the use of congress, and here both houses met for several years. Within its walls two presidents were inaugurated, and in it John C. Calhoun died.

How a Meaning Changes.

"Cheat" is a word that now has a very ugly sound. To cheat a man is to defraud him. Originally the word conveyed no such meaning. The old word "eschate" referred to the dues that fell to the crown. It came from the French echoir (Latin, excedere). The modern meaning that attaches to the word tells a sad tale of the extortion and greed that must have been practiced in collecting the dues.
