

JOHN TUTTLE BADLY INJURED

WELL KNOWN FARMER THROWN UNDER MOWING MACHINE

Escape From Instant Death Little Short of a Miracle

Imbler, July 28.—(Special).—Thursday morning John Tuttle, while mowing alfalfa on his ranch north of Imbler met with an accident which proved very serious. Mr. Tuttle and his daughter, Blanch, were running two mowers, the father's team being just ahead of the young lady. Miss Tuttle's horses became frightened and started to run. The tongue of the mower struck Mr. Tuttle and knocked him down in front of his machine, the mower passing entirely over the man's prostrate body ere the team could be stopped. The injured man was taken to the house and Dr. C. S. Moore was summoned from Imbler. On examination it was found that Mr. Tuttle had a serious scalp wound, one broken rib and other severe bruises. It is not believed that there are any serious internal injuries and the attending physician's opinion is that the injured man is not in a critical condition. At this writing he is rallying from the shock and suffering considerably. How he escaped fatal injuries is almost miraculous. Some part of the machine tore the heel entirely off one shoe but the foot was not even scratched. A passing automobile, it is thought, frightened Mrs. Tuttle's team and caused them to rush upon the other machine.

Tuesday afternoon while some children were exercising on a trapeze at the Charley Cleaver home. Lydia, Mr. Cleaver's daughter, fell and as a result is nursing a broken arm. Dr. Moore was called and set the injured limb.

NOTES FROM FILMDOM

A rain storm was being featured at a local house a few nights ago and a wag while waiting for entrance remarked: "Gee, I got soaked in a storm this afternoon and here I am going right into another and I left my rain coat in Union."

Answer to Inquiry: Yes, the piano players at each house are married. One is a man the other is a lady. The drummer is married also.

The electric bicycle erected by a local house during the "Speed 'Em Up" called forth the following question and answer: "What make is that machine, Indian or Harley?" The cashier answered: "It is Hardy".

Would you be willing to live in a grave yard with your intended? Billie Burke said she would when the minister asked her to marry him and locate in a small local village in Scotland.

Having qualified as a nurse-maid, Marie Doro, the Lasky-Paramount star, is now studying the art of making artificial flowers for her forthcoming production, "The Kid," which is now being produced under the direction of William C. De Mille. Miss Doro says that if she remains a screen star much longer she will have become so efficient with so many vocations that she can secure a position almost anywhere.

Henry B. Walthall's brother, Wallace, is now with V. L. S. E., in the booking department.

Did you know that Charlie Chaplin is left-handed? No, neither did we until we saw him playing his violin in "The Vagabond."

"We want rain," says the director.

"Someone get Manning." Charles Manning is the exact name. Rain effect artist is the official title, for the William Fox companies and the Fort Les studios need never worry about getting that particular atmospheric state which calls for wetness, as long as Manning is within reach. Whenever a storm is necessary Manning gets out his pet hose, makes one or two mysterious passes, and lo, the rain descends. He is now one of the foremost rain artists in the country.

What Would the Movies be Without Suspense.

The bone-headed usher who seats everybody in your row.
The policemen that fall in the mud-puddle.
The villain, who is probably the mildest mannered man in the play.
The automobile that falls over the bluff a thousand feet high.
The kissing scene that tells you the play is over and it's time to go home.
The emotional maid who weeps and eats chocolates at the same time.
The desert island story.
The infernal triangle eternal?
The rough-house fights that just now are so popular.

A magic ribbon whose coils unfold the tiny manikins who laugh and talk and die—A bobbin spun of mirth and pathos; of passion and witsfulness—A reel that whirls in shining light to sway a million hearts as reeds are blown by win.

Painter Ruins "Six Immortal Acts"
Anita Stewart of the Vitagraph company is highly indignant. And no wonder. She has been called immoral—by an illiterate sign-painter, too.

It all happened when an amateur Fordham letter artist, in making a poster advertising the little star in "The Suspect," unwittingly made the announcement read:

"Anita Stewart in six immoral acts in 'The Suspect'."

F. P. A., who conducts "The Conning Tower" in New York Tribune, ran the brilliant sign artist's product in his column; then Anita wrote him declaring the show was 99 and forty-four hundredths per cent pure.

May Allison, co-star with Harold Lockwood in "The River of Romance," has a new pet, a tiny black kitten named "Me-Yo," which the Metro-Yorke Film Corporation has adopted as a mascot. "Me-Yo," whose name is made from the first two letters in Metro and Yorke, proved its ability as a mascot by bringing sunshine after many days of rain.

Pauline Frederick plays her most successful role as a temptress in her own kitchen when she makes gingerbread from a New England recipe.

Thomas H. Ince is going to show "Civilization" before President and Mrs. Wilson. After that Ambitious Thomas will direct his attention towards the Vatican at Rome.

Federal Employees' Compensation Act.

Washington, July 31.—Passage of a Workmen's compensation act for government employes, on lines suggested by the American Federation of Labor, today was agreed on by Democratic and Republican leaders. For six years it has gone through all the stages of congressional action except final passage. Something always stopped it there. This year the federation demanded of both conventions the passage of the bill before congress adjourned to take up the Fall campaign, on pain of the federation's doing a little campaigning itself.

The bill provides, in case of: Death—Thirty-five per cent of wages to widow or widower, until their death or re-marriage, with 10 per cent additional for each dependent child.

Total disability—Two-thirds of wages, in no case to be less than $33.33 monthly.

Partial disability—Two-thirds of the difference between wages, earned before and after injury. Refusal of a partially disabled man to do what work he can do makes him ineligible to any payment.

Medical care for a reasonable time after an injury is suffered in government service is provided; and in case of death, $100 for funeral expense is allowed.

Intoxication or willful carelessness on duty makes a federal employe ineligible to benefits under the act.

Little goldfish in a bowl, Birdies in a cage, You must now be all dressed up For it's quite the rage.

New York, July 28.—The modern woman, seemingly surfeited with trimming herself and incidentally trimming her husband has turned her attention to trimming up the household canary and the family goldfish. At least, if not the canary and the gold fish personally, she has their domiciles all dolled up.

Birdcages have become fantastic dreams of beauty and decorative art. No self respecting canary, linnet, or thrush can be expected to trill in anything but a cage of rush or willow from the peasant realms of Europe, or a wire and lacquer cage from China's shores. Japanese reed cages also are permissible but birdie simply must have one of these three decorative influences for surroundings.

Mercy! Just fancy how plebeian and inartistic nowadays would be that proverbial bird in a gilded cage. Cages are positively not being worn gilded this season.

Of the lovely willow cages, some of which are fashioned by peasant hands in the Black Forest and yet others in Brittany and probably most over in New Jersey or Brooklyn, there are those in the natural toned willow, those stained grass green and those enameled white or pastel pink or blue.

Even these willow cages feel the Chinese influence however, or at least their owners do, for milady hangs a Chinese jade bracelet to a short string of jade beads suspended from the middle of the cage for the songster to sway on in lieu of a prosaic swing. From the bottom of the cage she fastens with a thumbtack a Chinese tassel green and gold.

The real Chinese cages are gorgeous in their scarlet green or black lacquer, ornate with gold. Round, oblong, square and octagonal they are, and some shaped like pagodas two or three stories high. In the finest cages the water and seed dishes are of carved jade or ivory, beads and tassels deck the outside and always there is the bracelet swing.

As for the little fishes, red and gold, their crystal abodes are iridescent bubbles of antique Venetian glass of divers fantastic shapes. Some, high huge goblet shapes, others shallow bowls poised on slender stems, two handled Grecian urns of rainbow tinted glass and one, the quaintest of all is a squat and sturdy crystal elephant.

Many of the round glass aquariums are raised on standard of carved or enameled wood and hand-painted in water lilies and deep sea flora, on the outside of the glass.

Yet others simple and effective of line are the oblong and square aquariums, crystal clear.

Feathery green water plants and the decorative branches of Chinese "Thousand-years-green" make a fairy forest for the fishes and most artistic Prohibition Amendment Suggested.

Salem, Ore., July 27.—An amendment to the present prohibition law whereby manufacturers desiring alcohol for use in their business may obtain it in larger amounts than the law now permits is suggested by Attorney-General Brown as the best way to solve the problem now confronting Oregon manufacturers.

If no one else should propose such an amendment, the attorney-general said that he would prepare an amendment for consideration of the next legislature by which the legitimate manufacturer needing alcohol could obtain it in sufficient quantities after furnishing a satisfactory bond. The attorney-general believes that the law can be amended so as to give relief to Oregon manufacturers and at the same time prevent importation of alcohol for illegitimate purposes.

Validity of Decision Doubted.

The recent decision of Circuit Judge Morrow of Multnomah county, holding that any manufacturer needing alcohol in wholesale quantities may import as much as is desired for manufacturing purposes, in the opinion of Attorney-General Brown will not stand under test.

"In any event," said Mr. Brown, "state officials will continue to enforce the law as it is now on the books. As I understand Judge Morrow's decision, the San Francisco & Portland Steamship company is held liable for delivery of two barrels of spirits to Wadhams & Co. Under the prohibition law, however, it is unlawful to receive more than the legally specified amount of intoxicating liquor, and the contention might be made that the receipt of more than the specified amount of liquor constitutes a violation of the prohibition law.

Receipt Declared Criminal

"By careful reading of section 12 of the prohibition law, it will be seen that it is made criminal for any person to receive intoxicating liquor, the transportation or delivery of which has been in violation of the provisions of the section. The legislature had a right to pass a prohibition law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in the state of Oregon. It had an equal right to limit the amount of intoxicating liquors that might be lawfully delivered to any person within the state.

"The Webb-Kenyon law especially permits the law-making power of the state to enact legislation making criminal the receipt of alcohol as was sought by Wadhams & Co.

Liquor Made Outlaw

Intoxication liquor, in the aspect of being received, possessed or kept, or in some way used in a manner prohibited by the laws of the state to which it is to be, or is in fact, imported, is an outlaw and divested of its interstate character and withdrawn from interstate protection at the hands of the federal government.

"In my mind, there is no doubt but that it is entirely lawful for the legislature to prohibit or regulate the receipt and possession of intoxicating liquors by a citizen, whether the same be for the purpose of manufacturing extracts or for personal use.

"I am confident that, if finally called upon to decide, the supreme court will uphold the validity of section 12 of Oregon's prohibition law."

Constipation and Indigestion.

"I have used Chamberlain's Tablets and must say they are the best I have ever used for constipation and indigestion. My wife also used them for indigestion and they did her good," writes Eugene S. Knight, Wilmington, N. C. Chamberlain's Tablets are mild and gentle in their action. Give them a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the agreeable laxative effect which they produce.
