IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush out the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

SWINE PRICE IS STRONGER

PORTLAND CLAIMS HIGH PRICE LOCATION.

Portland Stock Yards, Aug. 7.—North Portland showed that it could "come back" in force when the opportunity was ripe and quality considered was probably the highest market for swine in the entire country. Sales of top swine were made during the early trading of the first day of the week at $9.75 or 45c advance over the figures which ruled toward the close of last week and 40c above the extreme record of last Monday. Quiet tone continues in the cattle market at North Portland with a rather liberal supply shown in the yards over Sunday. Buying during the early session was principally of ordinary quality but the general trend of the trade indicated no general price change at that time. Strength continues the dominating feature in the mutton and lamb trade at North Portland. There was a slightly smaller showing of arrivals over Sunday than for the same period last week and this induced quick buying.

British Expected Temporary Reverses. BY JOHN BUCHAN. (England's Foremost Writer on Military Affairs.) London, Aug. 7.—When the bombardment ceased on the morning of July 1st, and the Allied troops left their trenches in the Big Push on a 25 mile front, they did not expect an even and steady advance. A rigid line of German fortifications stretches from Nieuport to the Alps. There are no gaps. The defense has its first position, consisting of several trench lines; an intermediate position; and a second and final position some way back, of the same type as the first. The labours of 18 months have made each position a miracle of human ingenuity—a labyrinth of trenches and a subterranean city of dugouts. No such front can be broken at the first attempt. The part of wisdom is to attack on a broad front and take the thing by steady stages—to capture one position at a time, and to attack with infantry only when the guns have done their work. In the area of attack, of which Albert the point of division, the Germans on the north were prepared and the high plateau over which their lines ran was a formidable obstacle to any advance. In the southern part the ground was easier, the enemy weaker and a real surprise was achieved. The British objective in the north, the enemy's first position, except at one or two points, was not attained. Villages were blotted out and miles of country reduced to the appearance of a ploughed field by the Allied bombardment, but the German guns, well hidden behind the ridges were intact and before the hour came for the British to cross their parapets they opened a counter bombardment on the British first line. That line was largely destroyed, but the British infantry, under a devastating artillery fire, advanced steadily across No Man's Land between the lines. Then the German first trenches were taken. Their occupants had retreated to the deepest dug-outs, sometimes 50 feet below the ground. They now appeared and manned their front lines, firing with machine guns and automatic rifles. Both sides showed the most conspicuous gallantry. The attack as a whole was broken up before it reached the German firing line. Whole battalions disappeared as fighting units. By the evening of the first day the enemy's position in the northern section was unshaken. It was different in the south. There the Allies had the benefit of a real surprise. The German reply to their bombardment was feeble. In some places the initial bombardment seemed to have destroyed resistance, and the attack advanced with scarcely a casualty across trenches filled with German dead. In a few hours the immediate objective was completely attained. All the German first position was carried on a front of more than 12 miles. One French regiment had only two wounded, and the casualties of one whole corps were under 800. The German losses were very high. Crossing the captured ground on the following day one walked over piles of German dead. The first stage of the battle was beyond doubt a great Allied success. The objective was completely attained on an ample front and the way prepared for the stroke against the final German position. Without the sacrifice in the north the success of the British right wing and the French would have been impossible. We are only looking at the beginning of the greatest battle in history. It will be a slow and costly fight, for Germany knows it is her last stand. The Allies will pursue their plan soberly and methodically, with no attempt at blind rushes or wild ventures. The German man-power is shrinking low. They have been compelled to send divisions from Verdun to help Hindenburg against Russia, and in providing reserves for the present battle they are driven to scrape up battalions from every part of their western front. Reserves obtained in this way, men already wearied with much fighting, must inevitably be a frail reed to lean upon. One battalion hurried up from the South was captured intact by the British an hour or two after it had detrained. A French officer who was asked about the capture of guns, replied: "We do not want guns. Krupp can manufacture them faster than we can take them. But Krupp cannot manufacture men."

ask is a visit from Mr. Manning and we will be able to show him that Baker has a real claim for the experiment station."
