

The Better Way

PEOPLE'S views vary on the question of burial. To some, any discussion of the subject is distasteful, and they avoid consideration of it until they are brought face to face with necessity; then they probably allow someone else to act for them. Others consider the preparation for such things important, and they realize that it is wise to attend to it when they have time and opportunity. Still others, especially those who have lost dear ones, desire to do all in their power that may betoken a respectful service to the memory of those whom they loved.

ULTIMATELY the subject must be faced, for the day will come when, as heads of households, we must provide for those who shall pass away from us, and preparation for it is plainly a duty which should not be indefinitely deferred.

THE practice of burying human bodies in the ground, coupled with certain knowledge of what becomes of them there, is responsible for much of the horror and dread of death, while the unsanitary character of this method of burial is a source of undeniable danger to the living. Sir Henry Thompson says: "No dead body is ever placed in the soil without polluting the earth, the air, and the water above and below it."

THE "Better Way" makes it very much easier for those who are left behind to lay away their loved ones. It is a plan whereby a number of families co-operate in erecting an imposing mausoleum containing sealed compartments, equipped with sanitary devices, which tend to preserve the entity of the body instead of destroying it. The Compartment Mausoleum marks the highest development of present-day burial customs. It brings within the reach of the average man the finest interment possible. Crypt owners are afforded the satisfaction of being prepared to give to those most dear to them who depart this life, the best that it is possible to give, with the certainty that in future years their last resting place will stand as secure as the monuments of the ancients.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.
