MARGUERITE CLARK, FAMOUS PLAYERS-PARAMOUNT STAR

Who Will Be Seen in Silks and Satins at Arcade Today and Tomorrow.

ARCADE

The Famous Players present the inimitable Marguerite Clarke in "Silks and Satins" on the Paramount program at the Arcade theatre today and tomorrow. The plot of this romantic drama involves two periods of historic and romantic interest, namely the Napoleonic era and the present. The old worn out method of filming a "costume play" has been entirely repudiated, and the director, J. Searle Dawley, has brought forth a new version of picturing this difficult type of subject, but intermingling it with a modern romance.

Diminutive Marguerite Clark portrays the role of a modern American girl and that of her ancient French ancestress, Felicite, for whom she has been named. The leading men and women in her support are Thomas Holding, Vernon Steel, Clarence Handysides, W. A. Williams and Fayette Perry. Felicite is found, as the play commences, to be in a very sad mood on the eve of her wedding, for her narrow minded father is forcing her to marry a man not of her choice. She detests this young Felix Breton, whose cold, nonchalant manner offends her. The only person for whom her little heart craves is Jack Desmond, who is greatly disliked by her father. From then on the plot begins to acquire great interest and is splendid photography.

SHERRY'S

At Sherry's Saturday Only. Mary Fuller has not presented such a charming picture in a twelve-month as she does in "The Huntress of Men," a five-reel Universal drama adapted by Catherine Carr from a story by G. Vera Tyler and produced at the New Universal studios at Fort Lee by Lucius Henderson. Miss Fuller, who is supported by Joseph W. Girard and Sydney Bracy, wears a gorgeous crystal and jet beaded gown and, with her hair piled high above her charming face and figure, she makes a picture of unusual beauty. Miss Fuller devoted a great deal of care to her costuming in this picture which will be released as a Red Feather feature by the Universal.

"The Huntress of Men" is a type of woman midway between a vampire and a flirt. No "straight" actor could be found on the Universal payroll who possessed the proper cast of features to play the role of the man whom the playwright chose to break the spirit of "The Huntress." So recourse was had to Joseph Girard, the Universal "villain," who was exactly the type to enact the part of Fleming Harcourt, a dominant figure both physically and mentally. Harcourt brings "The Huntress" to his feet in a clever manner.

One-cent Postage.

Efficiency in the postoffice department with a proper readjustment of rates will permit the government to inaugurate a one-cent letter rate within the next year, according to Postmaster General Albert S. Burleson.

This emphatic statement made by the postmaster general before the National Association of Postmasters of the United States at their July, 1916, convention, indicates that this important reform is much nearer realization than most people believe and that next winter will see radical steps taken toward this end.

In addressing the postmasters General Burleson declared that they are giving the best postal service in the world today, and that is what the American farmer and business man are entitled to, for they pay for it. He advised the postmasters to spare no expense that means greater efficiency.

"But that does not mean extravagance," said Mr. Burleson. "Where is an official who will tell me that employees useless to the service should not be lopped off? I do not want to be hard on postal employees. I believe the government should require only a certain number of hours work, and that under sanitary and comfortable conditions, at a salary not only adequate, but generous. It is my purpose and your duty to see that all employees perform an adequate service for the money expended.

"Every dollar intelligently saved can be utilized for the improvement, development and extension of service, resulting in a reduction in postage for those served.

"Plans are being worked out for the solution of railway mail service problems. They are being solved in a way that will enable the United States to pay the railroads adequate compensation for service rendered, and pay only for service received. With this result, if next year we can make those using the second class mail service pay a one-half part of what they should, we can go before congress and take the first step toward penny postage.

"The fact that this year we have a surplus of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 demonstrates that at last the postal service is on a strong business and self-supporting basis. If we can keep down useless extravagance, we can soon inaugurate one-cent postage in this country."

This frank statement from the postmaster general substantiates declarations which have been made during the past year or two by officials of the National One-Cent Letter Postage Association, which has its headquarters at Cleveland, that with economical operation of the department and a reasonable adjustment of postal rates, one-cent letter postage could be inaugurated without injury to the federal government, and letter users given the benefit of a big reduction over current rates.

Nearly sixty bills were presented at the present session of congress, calling for one-cent letter postage. Scores of representatives and senators have been closely studying the matter and have become united in a conviction that the time is ripe for one-cent postage, a reform sought for many years, but only recently brought to the attention of congress through the persistent campaign on the part of the National One-Cent Letter Postage Association.

At the present time letter users of the United States net a profit to the government of over $75,000,000 a year over actual cost of distribution. At the same time large magazine interests are securing distribution of their product at one-cent a pound, which means a great loss to the government, and to make up this loss users of letter postage are paying a profit of 100 per cent.

It is to correct this great injustice that the postmaster general and his hundreds of assistants throughout the country are now employed. From all indications one-cent letter postage promises to be one of the most important issues at this winter's session of congress.

Money in China and Egypt.

Coins were made in China so long ago, it is said, as the year 2250 B. C., but they could not have been other than portions of metal cast into portable shape, such as were all the earliest moneys. In Egypt, the cradle of civilization and commerce, strange to say, there was no imperial coinage. Copper, silver and gold were used, but they were manufactured into lumps, shaped sometimes like brick, and in the case of gold and silver were molded in rings, like the ancient Irish money of ten centuries ago. It appears almost inconceivable that a people who created the pyramids and erected such magnificent temples should have been entirely ignorant of coins. Yet it is certain from the statements of Herodotus that such was the case. The first coinage of money in Egypt was not struck to assist the Egyptians themselves in their commercial dealings, but, rather, because the foreign merchants with whom they traded, the Greeks and the Phoenicians, demanded some medium which would have the guarantee of its value apparent on it and which would circulate for that value.

Name of the "Dogger Bank."

The Dogger Bank has long been carefully protected, because in the shallow waters that surround it there is the finest fishing that is to be found anywhere near the English coast. The wide stretch that shelves down to a depth of only 120 feet is the largest sand bank in the North sea, and in bygone times it was claimed by both Holland and Denmark. The name has nothing to do with the geological formation of which the sand bank is composed. "Dogger" is a sandy, iron impregnated stone that is well known to the geologist. But this bank took its name from the two masted fishing boat that has been used by Holland for several centuries in the herring and cod fishing in the North sea. The Dogger is similar to the ketch, but adapted for fishing, especially in the shallow waters surrounding the Dogger Bank.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Far Better.

In a neat English village lived a tobaccoist named Farr. Now, this tobaccoist had a rival. Both wanted the trade of the town. Farr, being a wit, devised a sign and hung it outside his shop:

"Best Tobacco by Farr." The townsfolk, relishing a pun, flocked to his shop, and his trade increased at the expense of his rival's business.

Now, his rival brooded and meditated, consulted many books of ancient lore, a Roget's Thesaurus and a riling dictionary. One day his face was seen to wreath itself into smiles. Gossip hovered expectant about his shop. The anticipations of the townsfolk were not disappointed, for that very day he hung out a sign which read: "Far Better Tobacco Than the Best by Farr."—New York Post.

Interesting Uses of Asphalt.

When the word asphalt is mentioned the first thing we think of is pavements and streets, but this interesting substance has found many other uses, chiefly through the efforts of the chemists employed by the asphalt companies. The number of different compounds devised by the chemists for various purposes is enormous. Some uses are in shoemaking, waterproofing, vat linings, linoleum, driving belts, rubber articles, cork flooring blocks, protective paints, asphalt putty and a host of others.—Metallurgical and Chemical Engineering.

Poor Little Goose!

"Seems as if I can never find a decent quill in the house!" growled the eighteenth century author. "I think it would pay you to keep a goose!" sharply retorted his wife. "You mean one that would be of some help to me, don't you?" chortled the brute.—Detroit Free Press.

Coyotes.

The annual losses of live stock on the national forest ranges of the west due to predatory animals are over $500,000. Approximately 75 per cent of the sheep losses are due to coyotes. Mountain lions are charged with killing only a few head of cattle and sheep.

Life has a thousand exits, but none is swifter or surer than changing seats in a canoe when you cannot swim the distance to shore.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Ivy Poisoning. A perfectly harmless and exceedingly useful remedy for the inflammation caused by coming in contact with wild ivy is boracic acid in solution. Make a solution from boracic acid powder, four teaspoonfuls dissolved in a pint of boiling water. When this is cold apply to the affected parts. The skin should be covered with with gauze (can be bought by the roll in drug stores), kept constantly wet with cold boracic acid solution. If the itching is very intense the parts may be sponged off with a weak solution of alcohol (half water and half alcohol), when the gauze is changed. The gauze should be put on fresh quite frequently if there is much oozing from the little blebs (blisters). After the skin begins to heal and is fairly smooth a plain cold cream ointment may be kept on the skin.
