of the Metropolitan, has a voice of bass quality, yet running very high into the baritone, almost to the tenor register. He is one of the many great artists who have demonstrated by actual comparison that Edison's Re-Creation of an artist's work cannot be distinguished from the original.

Clark of that church will preach, special speakers from out of town and the regular morning services, Sunday is "pite of the heat wave will present an activity entirely unusual for August church work. Evangelist Thompson in the Christian church, Mr. Hazelton of the Oregon Prison Reform league at the Lutheran church in the morning and L. D. S. church at night, and the presence of the Presiding Elder of the M. E. church South morning and afternoon constitute some of the special features for the day.

Conference Is Near
 The last of this month and the first of next will see the annual conference of the Methodist church South to be held at Walla Walla. Rev. Lumpner of this city will attend. Bigger things for La Grande are expected at the coming conference in the way of more appropriations to carry on the work with.

Rev. Gibbs Home Soon
 Rev. Upton H. Gibbs writes from Bryocan that he and Mrs. Gibbs will return to La Grande September 2nd after a visit to the beach.

Marcus Whitman Anniversary
 It may be interesting for church readers to know that eighty years ago tomorrow the first white woman looked upon the Grande Ronde valley. She was Narcissa Whitman and was on her way to the Nez Perce Indians. Her journal for that day is interesting, especially when compared with travel of the present day.

Mrs. Whitman was a young woman of commanding appearance; noble in deportment, cultured and refined. She had been reared in comfort, college trained and moved in the best of society. She had a wonderful soprano voice of great volume and sweetness and often around the camp fire her voice rang out to the joy and encouragement of the weary travelers.

On the evening of their departure for Oregon she became the bride of Dr. Marcus Whitman. At the close of the ceremony the pastor gave out a missionary hymn. The audience and choir were completely overcome with emotion and the last stanza was sung by Mrs. Whitman alone, her superb voice unwavering to the end. It was the last time she was permitted to sing in her native state. The scene was impressive and the words of the hymn appropriate: "Yes, my native land, I love thee. All thy scenes, I love them well. Friends, connections, happy country, Now I bid you all farewell." On September 1st Dr. and Mrs. Whitman arrived at Fort Walla Walla and for eleven years Narcissa Whitman was the life and cheer of this inter-mountain region. And then at the hands of misguided and brutal men she climbed the high steep to the kingdom of God to receive a martyr's crown.

Every woman in this beautiful valley should be grateful to this noble woman—the first to cross the continent in order to give the Indian women the gospel of Jesus Christ. Special hymns and reference to this noble woman's life will be touched upon by Rev. Chas. A. Edwards in his morning sermon.

Y. M. C. A. IS BIG AGENT

BORDER SOLDIERS GET MUCH HELP.

Paper Printed at Y. M. C. A. Camp Reaches City.

The local Y. M. C. A. received today a copy of the first edition of the new paper published on the border, by the Army and Navy department of the International committee. The paper is newsy and up-to-date and is appreciated by all the men on the border. The remarks made by an infantryman upon his arrival on the border, gives a person an idea of the efficiency of the Young Men's Christian association: "Gee," said the infantryman as he looked over the building going up in his camp, "the Y. M. C. A. is the greatest organization in the world—they looked after us at the stations and on the way down and now have a building here for us."

The magnitude of the work being done by the Y. M. C. A. is almost staggering. Thousands of letters are being written every day, tournaments of all kinds are being organized for the men, "movies" are given in scores of the buildings and the Y. M. C. A. secretary with his practical methods in dealing with men is teaching scores of the men to lead better lives. A few things that has been done may be cited:

Thirty-six buildings have been erected, nearly all of them 40 x 80 in dimensions, costing from $2,000 to $2,500 to erect and equip.

One hundred and thirty live wire secretaries are serving 116,600 men. The Rockefeller foundation has given $15,000 to the Y. M. C. A. for libraries for the troops.

Funk & Wagnalls is sending weekly to the headquarters of the Y. M. C. A. 2,000 copies of the Literary Digest for distribution.

Hearst & Co. of New York gave 200 books.

The United States Envelope company and the American Writing Paper company gave two whole car loads of stationery to the Y. M. C. A. The envelopes weighed ten tons and the letter paper twenty-five tons.

State Secretary I. B. Rhodes of Oregon is camp secretary at Palm City, California, serving 3,000 men of the California and Oregon troops.

In one camp of the Illinois troop 245 men signed clean living cards.

A few of the recent contributions received by the Y. M. C. A. were the Rockefeller Foundation $50,000; Cleveland Dodge, $10,000; William Sloane, $10,000; E. S. Harkness, $10,000; Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, $10,000; Geo. W. Perkins, $5,000; Mrs. Russell Sage, $5,000; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Scovill, $5,000; and scores of amounts ranging from $25 to $100.

High Praise for Y. M. C. A.
 Raymond B. Fosdick, who was police commissioner of New York under Mayor Gaynor and who was sent by the Rockefeller Foundation for a three weeks' investigation trip along the Mexican border, writes as follows:

Mr. G. A. Reeder, 124 East 28th Street, New York City. Dear Mr. Reeder:—I have just returned from a three weeks' trip along the Mexican border on an errand for the Secretary of War, and I want to take this opportunity to tell you of the high praise which I heard on all sides in regard to the activities of the Young Men's Christian association. Indeed, I came to the conclusion, after a thorough inspection of the camps, that the Y. M. C. A. is the best organized thing on the whole frontier. The buildings are crowded night and day, in fact they are the club houses of the regiments and are used as such continually. General Funston and his associated commanding officers spoke in the highest terms of the influence of the organization on the army, even bringing up the subject voluntarily, although I was down there on no errand relating to Y. M. C. A. work. The efficiency of the Y. M. C. A. was what particularly appealed to General Funston and his aides. They were impressed with the generalship under which the whole machine was put together in such a short space of time. Briefly, I came back in a most enthusiastic frame of mind about the work you are doing and its almost in-war, so the consignee must go hungry. One of the tricks revealed by the museum is the nickel smuggling trick. Nickel is cut into thin strips, which are slipped into the corrugations of the sort of paper used for wrapping medicine bottles. An innocent picture is placed between two layers of this loaded paper and the whole labeled "Work of Art—With Care."

The difficulties of the censorship are increased by the fact that many of these "letters"—the parcel post having been discarded long ago as useless—are sent to addresses in Holland and Sweden, to be forwarded.

Permit Issued For Goats On The National Forests

A permit has just been issued for the grazing of a band of 1200 goats on the Crater National Forest, according to an announcement made today, by the District Forester, Portland, Oregon. This is the first permit issued for a large band of animals, and is apparently the result of the recent study made by the Forest Service to develop areas suitable for different kinds of stock, especially goats.

The Service announces that there is room for about 3000 more head on the Crater Forest, for two bands on the Umpqua, two bands on the Cascade and about 5000 on the Siskiyou and Siuslaw National Forests,—all in Oregon. These areas have been examined by grazing experts and pronounced suitable for goats. Furthermore this range is all easily accessible from railroad points.

It is stated by Forest officers that they are anxious to have these ranges used. They are not suitable for sheep as they contain more underbrush than grass. The goats are more agile and courageous, the succulent underbrush is well suited to their needs, and a rough country is no obstacle to the goat. The damage done by goats to young conifers is slight, and, it is said, they are often a real benefit in keeping down inflammable brush and thus aiding in fire protection.

Odd Parcels Find Way Into Postman's Bag

London, Aug 19.—Since the British censorship officials began to deal faithfully with the American mails the postman's knock in Germany must have lost some of its thrill. Proof of this is supplied by the Mail censor's museum, in the heart of a vast factory-like building "Somewhere in London." It is decidedly the most interesting museum in London, though probably the smallest.

During the earlier stages of the war one never knew in Germany what the post might bring. Sometimes it was a round of beef by letter post from New York, sometimes a package marked "Photographs only; do not fold," with a real photo inside and sheets of pure rubber between it and the card; occasionally it was a roll of newspapers, with false ends, and rice and coffee in the middle. These and many other gifts went from well wishers in America. Nowadays post time has lost its savor.

The museum contains an extraordinary collection of things that have not been delivered. About half are samples of goods—mostly food and rubber—that were going into Germany, and the other half articles that were being sent out by manufacturer's anxious to keep in touch with their old customers. The goods actually seized during their passing through the post would fill a small warehouse. For instance, $10,000 worth of violin strings were being exported in this way.

Great ingenuity was displayed by many of the smugglers, and is still displayed, for the business is being continued in the hope that England may be forced suddenly by the pressure of neutrals to forego the examination of American mails.

New dodges are continually being tried. For some time the newspaper mails were worked on a wholesale scale; false ends were manufactured of wood and paper and the hollow rolls were fitted with hags like sausage skins, stuffed with tea, coffee, rice, and so on.

This is no longer a very hopeful field of endeavor. As for sending hams and joints of meat through the post, it is expensive. There were stamps of the face value of $9 on the wrapper used to cover 12 pounds of beef. Even the honesty of the post-office has gone the length of putting the joint in cold storage till after the
