"GOING STRAIGHT."

Triangle-Fine Arts Offering Is Finely Produced and Acted. Reviewed by Thomas C. Kennedy in Motography.

Norma Talmadge, whose restrained yet colorful acting we always enjoy, and a supporting cast which includes Ralph Lewis and Eugene Pallette, do a great deal toward making "Going Straight" a picture that will please. Others responsible for the appeal this offering is capable of are C. M. and S. A. Franklin, who produced a story telling of the man and his wife who

VIOLA DANA STARRER IN "THE LIGHT OF HAPPINESS"

Viola Dana, the fascinating and gifted young stage and screen star will be seen here in "The Light of Happiness," a five-part Metro wonder-play at Sherry's theatre on Sunday and Monday. This charming young artist is surrounded by an exceptionally strong supporting cast, which includes Edward Earle, Lorraine Frost, Jack Busby, George Melville, Mona Kingsley, Harry Linson, Robert Walker and other well-known artists. "The Light of Happiness" was written especially for Miss Dana by John H. Collins, who also directed its pro-

PIANOS PLAYER PIANOS

We employ no deceptive methods of selling—nor do we assemble worked-over culled stuff, from Union, Wallowa, Enterprise Umatilla, Telocaset, Hilgard, or even Portland, as freight records will show the Richey Piano House to be the only house shipping goods direct from Factories to La Grande. We do not open up and close out so often that that we cannot tell whether we are going out of business or just coming in.

We are a home institution, here to stay regardless of pressure of business elsewhere. Beware of fictitious price artists, examine the piano that you are about to purchase to ascertain if it is not like one sold to an unsuspecting customer—by one of the outside concerns—traded in after three days trial for a piano that never fails to satisfy. We have this piano (so called $350) upon exhibition, and will refer you to the customer for details.

Come in and get prices and examine pianos of merit, not worked-over trash to unload upon the innocent buyer.

are hard put in the endeavor to live down the lurid past, in a manner to bring to the fore all the interest-compelling possibilities contained in this melodrama. It will be shown at the Arcade Sunday.

Miss Talmadge is again the young mother, and once more she is appealing in the role. Ralph Lewis makes Remington as convincing as possible under the circumstances, and Eugene Pallette is a vicious, drink-soaked villain. These three players deserve praise for their portrayal of characters with which the story presents them. Kate Toncray and the Fine Arts children complete the cast.

In the opening scene John Remington and his wife are discovered in their comfortable home. While glancing through a book, Remington comes across a newspaper clipping giving details of the trial of a notorious band of crooks. Both Remington and his wife then review the past. He was the leader of the band and Grace was one of his assistants. Remington was arrested and sent to prison for three years, but Grace escaped. After serving his term, he resolved to go straight, mostly because of the child born to Grace during his stay in prison.

Remington is now fairly prosperous and he lives in the respect of his associates and neighbors. One of the band, who is still a crook, discovers this and he at once starts to blackmail the former leader. Then he insists that Remington return to the old life for just one job, threatening the while to give evidence which will send Grace to prison. Remington hesitates long, but finally decides to do the job. On the night of the proposed robbery Grace takes the children to visit a friend, and, of course, the friend's house is the very one chosen by Briggs to be robbed. Briggs is defeated in his scheme by Remington, yet he does not squal. Instead, he attempts to shoot the reformed crook. The result is that Briggs is killed and the Remingtons are safe, unless some other member of the band turns up. The settings used in the production of this story are splendid. The fight in the crook's den and the chase through alleys, across back yards and over-roof tops is done well enough to be interesting, which is a compliment to the Franklins, who, with some able assistance from the players, have made "Going Straight" a melodrama that at no stage of its development fails to hold the spectator interested.

Fruit Men To Meet.

Walla Walla, Wash., Nov. 11.—(Special).—Governor Lister of Washington has issued a call to the leading fruit shippers, fruit growers marketing organizations and commercial organizations in the State of Washington for the appointment of representatives to meet with the newly appointed Advisory Board in Spokane, November 23rd and 24th.

As this is to be the first meeting of this Board it was deemed advisable to hold the meeting at the time of the National Apple Show and start the work outlined with the aid of all those prominent in the fruit industry. This Committee was the result of a conference of Governors at North Yakima last fall. It consists of nine members, three being appointed by the Governor of each state, Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

The purpose of this Board is to study the fruit marketing situation in the three states and to determine ways and means in which the governments of the three states can be helpful to the fruit industry. Paul H. Weyrauch President of The Fruit Growers Agency, is chairman of the Washington Committee, and according to the Governor's call will be in direct charge of the arrangements for the Spokane meeting.

Running Short of Pennies.

New York, Nov. 11.—(Special).—Even though the number of the rich who are growing richer has been rapidly increasing during the era of prosperity, yet everybody must have pennies. While there may be bales of greenbacks, and currency, and wagon loads of gold still the money market is never evenly balanced when pennies run shy. Civilization depends upon copper, since otherwise the boy who sells papers would lose a large part of his patronage, and the gum machine, would fail in performing its proper function in case the copper cent failed to lurk within the pockets of subway passengers. The shortage of pennies might have been expected, as there is always something running shy in New York. One week it is milk, and then hens refuse to lay in proper quantities. Now the Treasury Department has gotten behind, with the result that Wall Street, and other streets, haven't pennies enough to make change. The Philadelphia and San Francisco mints had to steam up and run twenty-four hours a day, and the Denver mint is operating on a basis of sixteen hours a day. The use of copper coins has increased at an enormous rate, perhaps because there is an extra penny added on bread, the same thing has happened with the price of milk. Indeed it is becoming quite the usual thing for prices to end in pennies. Perhaps it is not unreasonable to predict that the man who shines shoes will soon charge eleven cents; and hair cuts may go to twenty-seven cents a scalp. In view of the frequent strikes even the subway and elevated railroads might consider raising their fares from a nickel to six cents.
