An Amateur Linguist In Japan
The Japanese language is a nice little exercise, and I am going to try to learn enough phrases to make it possible for me to travel away from the tourist routes on my motorcycle. I remember my first experience with the language, which was my most successful one. It was the night of the lantern festival in Shimoneski, and I had just arrived from Korea. I had been doing some rough traveling in north China and Manchuria and was ready to attempt the Japanese language. One delicious refreshment which the Japanese have is shaved ice sprinkled with sugar or laved with syrup, and the man of whom I bought this delicacy could talk English. I had a better opinion of Japanese politeness than I have now, as I just had tea at one of the hotels of the Imperial Japanese Government Railway, so I asked the man how to say "Thank you. How much is it?" thus ending my entire vocabulary in one sentence. I now know six words instead of three.—The Christian Herald.

BY HAMILTON.

New York, Nov. 23.—(United Press Staff Correspondent)—When Chick Evans, the national open and amateur champion, visited New York recently after his triumph at the Merion club, Philadelphia, he told the United Press that in winning the national amateur champion he had vaulted into the highest point of his life's ambitions. "I have reached a point in my game," said Evans, "where it is not necessary for me to break out in cold sweat whenever I have to sink a long putt to win a hole." Fact of the matter is that it was just this point—considered the champion's weakest—which enabled him to defeat Robert Gardner for the national title, and which carried him to victory in the open tournament some time earlier. Of course, there were few times when Evans' nerves were strained by the nature of the putts he was forced to make, but the fact that he had lost many matches in his long career as a tournament player through poor putting made his performance stand out. "I have learned to drive as I never drove before," Evans said. "My mashie shots have improved all summer and I want to say right here that it was with the greatest elation that I finished off the hole which gave me the title. I've got that championship and I mean to keep it as long as I can."

Pets, Insects and Human.

In Japan if one will leave the hotel and the tourist office and the cocktail-drinkers and go out into the real native quarter, there are enough things to interest anyone. One old man passes with his load of crickets, which sing in hot weather and are kept in cages like so many canaries. These gentle creatures make a noise like a squeaky axle and one put under the hood of a twelve-passenger car would subject the most careful chauffeur to scorn. They are caught with bird-lime and make nice little pets, cheap to buy and not requiring gasoline for upkeep.

My rickshaw man is an old fellow whom I hired a year ago and who recognized me again. He is low-priced, speaks quite a little English, and has a sense of humor. I have trained him so that if we pass any one at unusual work or go near novel scenes, he points out these things to me. He knows my fondness for Japanese children, who are the cutest tots on earth, with their gay clothes, slant eyes and bobbed hair, and if he sees an unusually bright dress or a fine child, he points them out with a sort of fatherly pride of race. At two years old the Japanese surpass all other nationalities in charm and attractiveness, and these sober yet happy little folks look as though they had strolled out of a toyshop.—The Christian Herald.

King Pip Returns to Rule Over The Ninth National Apple Show

Gordon C. Corbaley, Manager National Apple Show.

Allen Meisenheimer, Chairman National Apple Show.

KING PIP will pay his ninth annual visit to Spokane and the Pacific northwest November 20 to 25 during the ninth National Apple show.

For six days the jolly old monarch will hold court, surrounded by tens of thousands of the finest apples of all varieties grown in the land. Arrangements for his visit have been assured by the raising of a fund by the business men of Spokane, who have selected a board of trustees representative of every fruit district in the northwest to make plans for the 1916 show. Allen Meisenheimer has been elected chairman of the board, and Gordon C. Corbaley, managing secretary of the Spokane Chamber of Commerce, has been chosen secretary-manager of the show for the fourth consecutive year.

"The purpose of the apple show is purely educational," states Mr. Meisenheimer. "The northwest has many millions of dollars invested in the apple business, and this show is held each year to provide a common meeting place for the growers, where they may come to compare notes and exchange experiences as to the best methods of profitably handling their orchards and marketing their product."

"This year there will be a series of conferences in which practical fruit growers, business men, bankers, transportation officials and men who are taking the leadership in marketing and every phase of the orchard industry will participate. The conferences will continue four days."

Chairman Meisenheimer has directed that the 1916 National Apple show be made the most beautiful of all, and unusual efforts are being made to display the northwest's most perfect apples in an inviting manner. "On the one hand that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy we are arranging a series of afternoon and evening programs that will keep the crowds interested every minute," he says.

"On arrival at the show, which again will be held within three blocks of the business center, each visitor will be given an apple pie on which to nibble during the inspection of the fruit. Philip Pelz and his Russian band have been engaged for afternoon and evening concerts in the apple show inclosure. The big afternoon feature at the show will be a series of children's pageants similar to those held last year, in which hundreds of elaborately and artistically decorated baby carriages, go-carts and floats, each carrying its load of interesting babyhood, paraded through the show grounds."

"The court of King Pip will be a brilliant spectacle in the evenings. Each of the leading northwestern apple districts is to select by popular vote a young woman to represent that community as a princess at the apple court. There will be six or seven princesses, including Princess Apple Blossom, who is to be selected by popular vote in the city of Spokane."

"Another feature of the evening programs will be a style show, in which a score of comely young women, wearing the latest things decreed by Dame Fashion, will occupy the stage. This feature proved quite interesting to the women, and to the men as well, at last year's show."

"The women's department, which brought out 2,000 entries of home-made pies, jellies and a thousand and one apple dishes, will be given enlarged space this year to assure facilities for the display of housewives' products from all parts of the northwest."

"We have been advised of a number of conventions to be held in Spokane during apple show week, due to the fact that all railroads have granted special reduced rates of fare and one-third for the round trip from all points in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and British Columbia."
