Night Scenes in Yokohama.

In most Oriental countries sunset brings quiet to the streets, and there is little night life. But on Theater Street, Yokohama, eleven o'clock at night sees the great crowds leaving the movies, which are close together, and the resulting scene is one never to be forgotten. Humanity packed too close for comfort surges in an unbroken tide from one end of the street to the other. Add to this mass of many-hued forms the taking down of the highly colored banners, and you have a scene that makes the dropping of the big top at home look like a side show.

Sometimes the lights on the water produce an effect almost Venetian in charm, but the bulky canal-boat lacks the artistic lines of the gondola, and the water sends forth a scent which might be called by a plainer name. The newspaper boy rushes through the narrow streets, hurling the sheets to right and left as he runs, and ringing the bells at his waist to announce his arrival.—The Christian Herald.

A "Muff Controller" is not an electrical device for keeping the hands warm. It is a stevedore's controller which may be carried about swung over the shoulder of the foreman. A flexible cable connects the controller to an electric winch and permits the foreman to operate the winch from a position where he may observe the loading operations, the raising or lowering of a cargo on a ship or dock.

Why The Observer is popular—it prints the world's news today, while it is news.
