 Enterprise, Nov. 28.—(Special)—The Record-Chief says: Ronald Wagner took the train for La Grande Sunday. Fred Smith made a business trip to La Grande Friday. Dr. C. A. Ault went on a business trip to La Grande Monday. S. J. Marshall, of Alder Slope, made a business trip to Joseph Saturday. Shelly Jones went to La Grande last Thursday, returning two days later. Peace is a good thing but principle and pluck are better. Lowell.

IMBLER MAN BACK TO SOIL

After Long Term as Merchant Mr. Westfall Will Ranch and Rancher Will Live in City—Other Imbler Items.

Imbler, Nov. 28.—(Special)—Lymman Weeks, a dairy and fruit man living south of Imbler has rented his ranch to Walter Westfall for the ensuing year and will move into town where he can more profitably care for his life insurance work. Mr. Westfall pays cash rent and also bought the livestock, implements, hay, etc., and will take possession in January. For sixteen years he has been behind the counter, having had charge of the local Co-operative store during the past three years, and says he believes a year or two of outdoor life will put his health in better condition and that he will enjoy the change of occupation. Mr. Weeks will probably wish to resume his former work in a year or two, as he is making the change now owing to his health. The Co-operative store is being closed out and the Christmas shopping will about empty the shelves, according to Mr. Westfall's estimate.

Friday evening a large and well pleased audience enjoyed another hour with the National Stock company, who presented Mrs. Southworth's "Ishmael" this trip. Increased audiences indicate that play-goers in this vicinity are pleased with the dramatic work of this troupe.

Bird hunters are having much sport bugging wild ducks which frequent the Stringham slough east of town. The recent rainy weather has brought hundreds of birds to the slough which is an ideal resort for wild ducks and geese.

As soon as cars are available several apple men will start for Middle-west and Rocky Mountain points with carloads of apples, hoping to realize better profits by this method than by selling at prices offered on board cars here.

William Day, who has been here from La Grande visiting his daughter Mrs. Clay Fox, and also looking after the marketing of apples from his orchard tract, returned to La Grande Saturday evening.

The chicken pie supper planned by the Social Aid for December 7, has been postponed till after the holidays on account of the Christmas rush and extra work. It will probably be given in February.

Local schools will close Wednesday afternoon with appropriate Thanksgiving exercises and will probably not re-open till Monday.

W. P. Rollins, Ward Lamb, Arthur Farman, Will Keown and Lynn

Stringham were in La Grande Saturday.

Lynn Stringham is home from La Grande for the winter and will work in his father's general merchandise store.

Harry K. Larsen has accepted an agency and is drumming up life insurance policies.

Joshua Witty is here from Jerome, Idaho, to visit a few weeks with his son John T. Witty.

Mr. Oliver, La Grande's veteran insurance agent, was transacting business in Imbler Friday.

This community, as well as others, is experiencing difficulties in securing coal for the winter.

William Wiggins is again able to resume his work after several days illness.

S. L. Brooks and daughter Anna were La Grande visitors Saturday.

A. Page is doing some remodeling to his dwelling on Main street.

W. V. Connor was in La Grande Saturday evening.

Wallowa News Items.

Wallowa, Nov. 28.—(Special)—The Wallowa Sun says:

Mrs. L. M. Marks and son who have been visiting with Milo Shilke and wife left for their home in South Omaha last Saturday.

Mesdames White and Coffman, of The Dalles, arrived last week for a visit with the family of their brother, J. H. Wilson, of Lower Valley.

Mrs. J. S. White and daughter returned Tuesday from Marr Flat where they had spent the summer with Mr. White's father on the farm.

John Womack left Saturday for Parma, Idaho, where he goes to visit with his sons who are thrifty farmers in that prosperous part of Idaho.

Jas. Pound and family left last Saturday for Umatilla where Mrs. Pound will visit with relatives. Mr. Pound returned Tuesday and resumed his duties at the depot.

G. S. O. Humberly, field secretary of the Eugene Bible Union, was a Wallowa visitor this week and made a talk to the high school students Wednesday morning. His talk was on the moral and spiritual upbuilding of humanity.

John Bloom and family of Modoc county California, arrived Tuesday and intend locating in this part of the county. Mr. Bloom says that Wallowa looks good to him. No sagebrush, but plenty of good old bunch grass is what looks good to him. Mr. Bloom is a veterinary surgeon and may open up an office in the city later.
