"BEAT ELGIN" THEY ALL CRY THESE DAYS. Coach Niles and a big squad of candidates are laying their campaign these days to take the strong Elgin team into camp when it comes here next Saturday.

Nector of victory has not been tasted by the team this year, and their throats and lips are parched for the lack thereof. If hard work, careful attention to instruction will bring victory to the club with the concluding game, then victory will be La Grande's. But Elgin, winner over Wallowa who decisively beat La Grande, is not a team to be sneezed at. The game begins at 2 o'clock Saturday and will wind up the season.

Senility was unmercifully tramped on by virile youth last night when the unmarried men of the M. I. A. won the club's opening basketball game of the year against the married men of the same institution. Youth wouldn't be denied victory. Senility died hard and with copious groans, but struggling gallantly, though ineffectively, until the whistle.

The M. I. A. Amusement hall was used for the game and the audience lined the walls during the ferocious play. The unmarried men got a lead early and during the first half got a substantial lead which the old-timers tried vainly to cut down enough to win. They did whittle off some of the lead in the last period, the final score being 28-26. The married men's department included some of the fellows who not so very long ago were rated as the M. I. A.'s best bets, but collectively they didn't accomplish so much last night as they once could. The first half was a phalanx attack and defense but later both teams opened up and sped up until it became a very interesting and rather scientific game—for so early in the season. As the momentum accelerated, interest grew and when the final whistle blew the atmosphere was blue with enthusiasm.

The score: Married M. I. A. (26)

After the game last evening the members of the M. I. A. squad met to elect a captain. John Schofield, who helped the high school to victory in days gone by, and has been a power on the M. I. A. team more recently, was honored with the office. Ray Baum is manager of the squad.

meeting held at Canyon City, went on record unanimously favoring immediate construction of the proposed John Day highway, the cost to be met by direct taxation from year to year, or if that is found to be impracticable, by the issuing of bonds.

The association passed a strong resolution of protest against the recent raise in grazing fees by the forest service.

The following officers were elected: George Clark, Mount Vernon, president; Allan Porter, Long Creek, vice president; J. E. Snow, Dayville, secretary; W. O. Cummings, Mount Vernon, treasurer; G. S. L. Smith, L. V. Stewart, Richard Danby, Herman Oliver, advisory board.

A cold does not get well of itself. The process of wearing out a cold wears you out, and your cough becomes serious if neglected. Hacking coughs drain the energy and sap the vitality. Big Gold Strike Reported.

Baker, Ore., Nov. 29.—(Special)—What may develop into a million-dollar gold strike is reported from the Harrison mine. News of the rich strike was partially confirmed by W. C. Fellows, manager of the mine, who, while highly optimistic over the outlook, was unwilling while on a visit to Baker yesterday to make a definite statement, pending a determination of the size of the ore body.

A drift is being started to determine the extent of the strike. The ore is said to be exceedingly rich.

ESCAPE FROM A CRUEL FATE.

How Luck Saved a Fine Fat Gobbler From the Oven on Thanksgiving Day. A Hungry Time in the Woods—Things of Interest to Children.

Thanksgiving was at hand, and, of course, Little Ned and Polly Ann were very much interested in it. I think said Uncle Ben, I will have to tell you about

A TURKEY'S THANKSGIVING.

Gobble Gobble was a big fat turkey. He lived on a farm where there were lots of chickens and ducks and geese. They had a good time, for Farmer Binks, who owned the farm, gave them lots to eat and took good care of them. Gobble Gobble was fond of eating, and he was one of the fattest turkeys of the flock.

"He'll be fine roasted," said Farmer Binks to his wife. "I think we'll keep him for Thanksgiving."

The day before Thanksgiving there was a good deal going on in the house. Every one seemed busy and gay.

When the farmer sent his son Jimmy out to feed the poultry Gobble Gobble asked him what was going on. But as Gobble Gobble used turkey talk in speaking to Jimmy of course the little boy didn't understand.

When Jimmy went whistling into the house he forgot to close the gate after him, and Gobble Gobble darted out.

"If Thanksgiving means having a good time I'm going off to have a good time myself," Gobble Gobble said, as he trotted off in the direction of the woods. "Guess I'll go off and be a wild turkey, as Grandfather Turkey Trotter said our folks all were in the long ago."

So he went through the woods looking for wild turkeys to live with, but there were none there or, of course, folks would have gone out to the woods and got one whenever they wanted a turkey dinner.

Poor Gobble Gobble couldn't find much to eat for supper. He slept in a tree, just as Grandfather Turkey Trotter said their folks had done in the long ago, but it wasn't so comfortable as he had expected.

Gobble Gobble had a crick in his neck when he got up, and breakfast was most as scarce as supper had been.

He wandered about in the woods for a day or two before Farmer Binks' son found him. Thanksgiving was over. "He would have been so much tender than old Turkey Trotter," sighed Jimmy's mother. "We'll have to keep Gobble Gobble for Christmas."
