Satisfy!—that's a new thing for a cigarette to do

It's nothing for a cigarette to just taste good—lots of cigarettes may do that. But Chesterfields do more—they satisfy! Just like a thick, juicy steak satisfies when you're hungry.

Yet, with all that, Chesterfields are MILD!

No other cigarette can give you this new enjoyment (satisfy, yet mild), for the good reason that no cigarette maker can copy the Chesterfield blend—an entirely new combination of tobaccos and the most important development in cigarette blending in 20 years.

Receding Waters Expose Indians' Duck Trap.

University of Washington, Dec. 8.—An old Indian duck trap made out of saplings and used long before the white man built a university on the shores of Lake Washington has recently been exposed by the recession of the lake's waters. The trap, although within a stone's throw of the lower edge of the campus, remained unknown to the white builders and was even forgotten by the red men who live near.

Years ago when ducks sought the shelter of the bay of Lake Washington which skirts the campus of the university, the Indians devised ways and means of trapping the birds. They constructed a kind of stockade by driving saplings and boughs close together into the bed of the bay where the water was shallow. The effectiveness of the trap was heightened by a thick growth of reeds and rushes. Frequent openings were left in the walls so that the birds might not have too hard a time getting into the trap. Once within the outer row of saplings the duck swam glibly into a wedge-shaped area bounded by boughs. The more the bird sought to get out the closer he swam to the tip of the triangular space where he was seized by a tribesman.

The trapping ground was inundated and rendered useless to the Indians when the natural outlet of Lake Washington at the source of the Black river was dammed up by a saw-mill company. The water then rose over the traps and established a higher shore line.

Only within the last few days did the history department of the university learn of the traps from an old Indian. Immediately Victor J. Farrar, research assistant in history, investigated the mud flats recently exposed when the water of Lake Washington found passage to the sea by way of the new government canals. He found the remains of the traps and set to work to have their location surveyed. The survey results will be added to the historical documents of the university.

Red Sox New Owner Former Bell Hop

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 8.—(United Press)—Harry Frazee, new owner of the Boston Red Sox, world's champion baseball club, got his start to fame much the same as did Joseph L. Lannin, late owner of the club. It was in this city years and years ago that Frazee, as a boy, worked in the old Peoria hotel as a bell-hop. Frazee was a good bell-hop and a reputation that clings with him to this day was established among the patrons.

Hopping bells in the Peoria hotel, however, didn't last very long, for Frazee jumped his job and went over to a bill-posting company, where he also became expert. His bill posting made him a habitue of local theatres, and ambition just naturally pushed him along until he finally landed a job with a burlesque company as a "banner man," one of the bill posters who is second in advance work. Frazee's climb to fortune started soon after that. He saved his money until he had enough to procure an interest in "Maloney's Wedding Day," and promoted himself shortly afterward to fame when he became connected with "Uncle Josh Spruceby" and "Uncle Josh Simpkins." Further running around the country with an occasional venture in uncertain theatrical productions finally landed him in Chicago where he opened a booking office and the way to easy sailing at the same time. One of his best known successes was "Isles of Spice." Another was "The Time, Place and the Girl." It has been his ambition, he recently declared to a friend who lives here, to own a baseball club. He always has been interested more or less in sports, and was largely responsible for the fact that Jess Willard won the world's heavyweight championship from Jack Johnson. He invested heavily in the promotion of the bout, afterward saying he did it solely to bring the championship back to a white man. Frazee also financed the world tour of James J. Jeffries and Frank Gotch several years ago.
